Session 1939. 133d of the General Assembly.

Vol. 23. HARRISBURG, PA., WEDNESDAY, MAY 3, 1939. No. 47.

SENATE

WEDNESDAY, May 3, 1939.

The Senate met at 1:00 o'clock, p. m., E. S. T.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor Samuel S. Lewis) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. BURLEIGH A. PETERS, offered the following prayer:

Just as we address the Chair in this body for the purpose of obtaining recognition that we may be heard, so do we now address Thee, Our Loving Heavenly Father; but when we do, it is with the basic knowledge and understanding that we speak of Perfection and Love and Strength and Holiness and Loveliness altogether.

While with but one audible voice do we speak with Thee in these few moments, O God, we pray Thee, that many inaudible voices in this Senate may petition Thy Divine Throne of Grace for guidance and strength to perform our duties this day aright and acceptably to Thee.

This flow of spiritual strength proceeds from but one source; to it every mother's son of us must repair if we desire to live aright.

Is prayer out-moded today? Does this generation believe it belongs only to the days of Abraham, Issac or Jacob? Or the beginning of the Christian era alone? Did Washington kneel in prayer on the ice-clad hills of Pennsylvania just because it was customary? Did Lincoln feel the absolute necessity of baring his bleeding heart to God for Divine guidance? Are not millions of souls guided by prayer today?

It can not be, Our Father, that we can successfully live from day to day without Thee. Let our nation turn from her idolatry in things material to a revival of things spiritual property evaluated and as of old, Thou wilt deliver us out of the economic slough of despondency into the true light of satisfied citzenship. To this end we humbly, honestly, sincerely and faithfully pray in the name of Thy Christ. Amen.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. SIPE. Mr. President, I rise for about one minute, on a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The Senator from Armstrong will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. SIPE. Mr. President, I rise in order to explain a misapprehension that resulted in my voting against Senate Bill 345 on Monday night, May 1, 1939. I was confused in the bills and inadvertently voted against Senate Bill 345, when I meant to vote for it.

I had been out, Mr. President, getting a drink and when I returned after having gotten the drinks, the Senate was already voting on a bill which I thought was another, so I voted against Senate Bill No. 345 when I meant to vote for it.

Now, for thebenefit of those Senators who seem unaccustomed to water as a beverage, I hasten to explain that the drink I got was a drink of water, so that the drink I had had nothing to do with the resulting confusion.

The PRESIDENT. The remarks of the Senator from Armstrong will be spread on the journal.

BILLS INTRODUCED

Mr. GELDER read in his place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 841 entitled:

An Act to amend the title, and the act, approved the twenty-eighth day of June, one thousand nine hundred thirty-five (P. L. 452), entitled "An act to promote the welfare of the people of the Commonwealth; creating a General State Authority as a body corporate and politic with power to construct, improve, and operate projects, and to lease the same, and to fix and collect fees, rentals, and charge for the use thereof; authorizing and regulating the issuance of bonds by said authority, and providing for the payment of such bonds, and the rights of the holders thereof, and to enter into agreements with the Government of the United States or any Federal agency; and authorizing the Department of Property and Supplies to grant, assign, convey, or lease to the authority lands of the Commonwealth and interests therein, and to acquire lands therefor; granting the right to eminent domain; and providing that no debt of the Commonwealth shall be incurred in the exercise of any of the powers granted by this act," as amended, by authorizing the Authority to equip and furnish projects, and the Commonwealth to lease as lessee such equipment and furnishings from the Authority, and extending the other provisions of the act to include such equipment and furnishings.

Which was committed to the Committee on State Government.

Mr. WOODWARD read in his place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 842 entitled:

An Act to repeal section three hundred and two of the act, approved the fifth day of December, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-six, (P. L. 2897—1937), entitled "An act establishing a system of unemployment compensation to be administered by the Department of Labor and Industry and its existing and newly created agencies with personnel (with certain exceptions) selected on a civil service basis; requiring employers to keep records and make reports, and certain employers to pay contributions based on payrolls to provide moneys for the payment of compensation to certain unemployed persons: providing procedure and administrative details for the determination, payment and collection of such contributions and the payment of such compensation; providing for cooperation with the Federal Government and its agencies; creating certain special funds in the custody of the State Treasurer; and prescribing penalties;" and setting up a reserve fund in the State Treasury.

Which was committed to the Committee on Insurance.

Mr. MUNDY. Mr. President, I rise in my place and present to the Chair a bill sponsored jointly by the Senator from Warren, Dr. Chapman, and myself.

Messrs. MUNDY and CHAPMAN read in their places and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 843, entitled:

An Act to safeguard human health and life by providing for the issuance of permits to and the regulation of persons and entities, selling milk and milk products, conferring powers and imposing duties on the Secretary of Health, establishing a Dairy Advisory Council in the Department of Health, conferring powers and imposing duties thereon, defining certain qualities for milk, providing for inspection of and standards for dairy farms and milk plants, providing for the administration of the Act and the establishment of rules and regulations thereunder and for appeals to the Court of Common Pleas of Dauphin County, therefrom, and imposing penalties, and repealing certain acts and parts thereof.

Which was committed to the Committee on Public Health.

Mr. SIPE. Mr. President, on behalf of Senators Cavalcante, Dent and myself I wish to present a bill which I hold in my hand. May I say a word or two of explanation?

A joint commission is investigating the rules and regulations of the Milk Control Board and other matters pertaining to the milk situation in Pennsylvania. There has not been one cent of money appropriated to carry on this investigation, which means that the testimony being taken at the hearings will likely vanish in thin air and be of no avail, or any assistance to the Legislature, or of no information to the farmers of Pennsylvania, unless enough money is set up to pay for the printing of a reasonable number of copies of the testimony.

Also, we have an unfortunate situation, relating to this investigation, that the commission will die when this Session of the Legislature ends. Therefore, if the members of the commission and the Legislature are to be freed from the suspicion, especially on the part of farmers, that this investigation is merely a farce, it will be necessary to do two things, first, to breathe life into the commission so that they can complete their work, and make a report to the next Session of the General Assembly; and, secondly, to print a number of copies of the testimony so that both the Legislature and the farmers may see what it is all about.

Therefore, the bill I am about to present, on the part of my colleagues and myself, simply reappropriates a part of an unexpended balance, not to exceed $2,000, of the money remaining in the commission headed by Senator Dent to investigate the tax burden on the industries of Pennsylvania. I am advised that there is still in Senator Dent's commission approximately $4,500. He expects that probably some more bills will be presented, so that this bill, which I am now introducing, simply reappropriates a part of that unexpended balance, whatever it may be, in excess of $2,000, and takes nothing from the State treasury.

So, Mr. President, I read in place and present to the Chair the following bill.

Messrs. SIPE, CAVALCANTE and DENT read in their places and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 844, entitled:

An Act re-creating and continuing the Joint Legislative Committee to study regulations of milk control created by Senate Concurrent Resolution (Serial No. 103), approved the twenty-eighth day of March, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine; prescribing its powers and duties and re-appropriating the expended balance of an appropriation made to the Joint Legislative Commission created by Senate Concurrent Resolution (Serial No. 106), approved the sixteenth day of March, one thousand nine hunhundred and thirty-seven.

MOTION TO CONSIDER SENATE BILLS ON CALENDAR FIRST

Mr. OWLETT. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now proceed first to the consideration of Senate Bills.

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, I second the motion.

It was agreed to.

BILL ON FINAL PASSAGE

Mr. WOODWARD. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now resume consideration of Senate Bill No. 456, on Final Passage postponed for the present.

Mr. OWLETT. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

I would like to explain that this is the graduated income tax joint resolution and it is really a resolution written by my colleague, Senator Edmonds; but he felt so sorry for me having tried for so many years to get a graduated income tax across that he gave me the honor of presenting the resolution.

However, this honor was somewhat handicapped by the provision put in the resolution naming a limit of six per cent on the graduated income tax. I bow to his superior tax knowledge and accept it, but I was in doubt and knew that the Senator from Montgomery, Mr. Edmonds, has a great respect for the Honorable Henry F. Long, who has had as much success as he has and possibly more. I, therefore, telegraphed Mr. Long and he sent me a very long telegram from Asheville—a prepaid telegram—part of which I read as follows: "A Constitutional limit on graduated income tax is most unwise and if adopted will breed trouble."

Mr. PRESIDENT. I, therefore, ask unanimous consent to offer strike-out amendments to strike out the six per cent limit in this bill.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair is advised that the House will not accept any Senate bills containing strike-out amendments, insisting that the amendments be printed.

Mr. WOODWARD. Mr. President, I want the bill printed.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate resumed the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 456, entitled:

A Joint Resolution proposing an amendment to section one article nine of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. WOODWARD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to amend section 1 (Section 1), page 2, lines 7, 8 and 9, by striking out the following: S all of lines 7 and 8, and the words "imposed and" in line 9.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to.

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

Ordered, To be printed for the use of the Senate.

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 416, on third reading, entitled:

An Act to amend and reenact section five hundred and thirty-two of an act approved the eighteenth day of May one thousand nine hundred and eleven (P. L. 309) entitled "An act to establish a public school system in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania together with the provisions by which it shall be administered and prescribing penalties for the violation thereof providing revenue to establish and maintain the same and the method of collecting such revenue and repealing all laws general special or local or any parts thereof that are or may be inconsistent therewith" as amended by empowering school boards in districts of the first class to make for any year such general reductions in salaries fixed by law as will enable the district to keep its estimated annual expenditures within the estimate of funds available to the district for that year and by in such instances so regulating the discretionary power vested in the Superintendent of Public Instruction to withhold requisitions for moneys payable by the Commonwealth to School Districts which have not made provisions for full payment of minimum salaries and increments that the exercise of such power shall not interfere with the operation of this act during the limited period in which it is to be in effect and granting certain options to the members of the school employes' retirement system during said period.

The PRESIDENT. It there objection? The Chair hears none.

SENATE BILL 424

Mr. KILGALLEN. Mr. President, I am going to move that this bill be recommitted to the Committee on County Government.

MOTION TO RECOMMIT

Mr. KILGALLEN. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill 424, be recommitted to the Committee on County Government in order that a public hearing may be held.

Now, this bill, gentlemen, except by way of example, has no significance to any other part of the State excepting Allegheny County; and I hope that the sponsor of the bill will consent to it going back to committee so that we can have a public hearing on it.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I second the motion.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I object to the bill being recommitted and I would ask my colleagues to vote that motion down.

The time is getting late and this bill was presented quite some time ago. It has been on the calendar now for a week or better, and I think, if there is any good reason for a public hearing that that request could have been made before this late date. For that reason, I ask that this motion be voted down.

I will be satisfied, Mr. President, to have the bill go over in its order.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, how could we have a public hearing if the bill went over in its order?

Mr. KILGALLEN. Mr. President, I understand that a bill has to be in possession of a committee in order to have a public hearing—a bill must be in the physical possession of a committee if a committee is to have a public hearing.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, if a public hearing is necessary there is no reason why it cannot be held while the bill is in the House.

Mr. KILGALLEN. Mr. President, this bill was presented on April 4. It was in the possession of the Committee on County Government until April 27. Now, the sponsor of the bill is the chairman of that committee, and the people of Allegheny County have not had opportunity to be heard on this matter.

Mr. OWLETT. Mr. President, may I suggest that the committee has not yet decided that it wants a public hearing; and if they do the bill can be then recommitted. If the Senator from Allegheny, Mr. Kilgallen, will agree that the bill go over in its order, then it can be recommitted if it is decided that a public hearing should be held.

Mr. KILGALLEN. That may be all right, Mr. President, but I do want to say that this request for a public hearing is being made not only by myself but by the other Democratic Senators from Allegheny County, and by the Chairman of the Board of Commissioners of Allegheny County and other public officials in the county.

I do not object to the bill going over in its order tonight, but I do hope that an opportunity will be given for a public hearing on this bill.

The PRESIDENT. Will the Senator from Allegheny, Mr. Kilgallen, withdraw the motion that Senate Bill 424 be recommitted for the purpose of public hearing?

MOTION WITHDRAWING MOTION TO RECOMMIT

Mr. KILGALLEN. Mr. President, I withdraw my motion to recommit Senate Bill 424, for the purpose of a public hearing.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I withdraw my second of the motion.

BILLS OVER IN ORDER

Mr. KILGALLEN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 424 on third reading, entitled:

rowing of money to operate institutions for mental patients heretofore transferred to the Commonwealth

And said bill having been read at length the third time,
On the question,
Will the Senate agree to the bill?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, Senate Bill 514 concerns the Senators from Allegheny County more than it does me; but it does concern me somewhat because this bill takes a step backwards for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

In the 1938 Session of the General Assembly the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania for the first time in many years, acquiesced, after many years of fight, in the fight and effort made to get the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in line with progressive states, by taking over full care and responsibility for insane and feeble minded patients. An Act was passed which, by its terms, provided for the immediate taking over of a Philadelphia insane institution then known as Byberry and requiring the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, by May 31, 1939, to proclaim which of the institutions outside of the County of Philadelphia would be taken over. Now, I know there is in the Legislature a bill to extend the time of the taking over for a period of two years; but, in the meantime Allegheny County, as one of the counties whose institutions would be taken over, I understand, prepared its budget for 1939 on that basis.

This bill, I take it, gives them a right to make a supplementary budget and exercise the right to borrow money to meet the deficiency between their present appropriation and that which will be necessary in order to conform to the new attitude of this new Administration.

That is a matter for Pittsburgh, so far as this particular bill is concerned, but for me, I cannot let it go by without voicing my protest of the attitude of this Administration. While I agree absolutely in the principle of economy, I think that economy should be exercised in matters other than those which concern, so seriously, the welfare of helpless citizens of the Commonwealth. When the Commonwealth has taken a progressive step, such as we took in the Special Session, I do not think the $3,000,000 in each biennium that this would cost the Commonwealth is the difference between salvation and the ruining of the Commonwealth; and I want to voice my protest, and because of that I am going to vote "No" on this bill.

Mr. GELDER. Mr. President, I want to say to the Senator from Philadelphia, and his colleagues from Pittsburgh and other counties which have institutions that if the bill which he mentions is finally passed—and if this bill is not passed—if by voting against it they delay it—they will find that they just cannot operate those institutions for the rest of this year. They will have opened the doors and allow the inmates to leave.

If the other legislation fails to pass it will not be necessary to use this Act, but, as a precaution, I would say they should consider it well before they vote "no" on this legislation.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I am not suggesting to my colleagues on this side that they should vote "no". I tried to make myself clear on that. There is nothing for them to do except vote for the bill; but I wanted to put myself on the record as to my position so that there will be no misunderstanding. I am sure my vote will not be necessary to pass this bill.

Mr. McGINNIS. The State has taken over Byberry in the County of Philadelphia, and we, in Allegheny County, feel that inasmuch as our institutions were taken over by the State that they should remain there.

I said the other night, there are forty states in the Union that take care of their mentally ill and that this was a step under the last Administration, to relieve real estate back in the counties. If those institutions are returned to Allegheny County it will mean an additional tax on the real estate of Allegheny County of two mills. That, to my mind, is a step in the wrong direction. We tried in the last Administration to relieve real estate wherever we could; and the taking over of those institutions was in that direction. Now comes along this Administration which is trying to dump that responsibility back on to the county and back on to the real estate owner and the home owner.

I feel that the Administration, if it works hard enough, could find revenues to support the mentally ill of this State. The medical societies of the State, practically everyone of them, are in favor of this. It is an enlightened step; it is following the steps of other states in taking care of the mentally sick; and I feel we are taking a backward step by returning these institutions to the county.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I do not wish to prolong the debate on this bill, but there is one impression I would like to correct. It is perfectly true that the millage in Allegheny County was reduced but at the same time it is perfectly true that the assessments were jacked-up, so that the dollars and cents the tax payers have paid is considerably more.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I should like to interrogate the Senator from Allegheny, Mr. Walker.

The PRESIDENT. Will the Senator from Allegheny, Mr. Walker, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I will.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I think the gentleman from Allegheny knows that the county budget has been prepared in Allegheny County and the levy fixed. Will the gentleman from Allegheny state whether, in making up the budget in Allegheny County, the maintenance cost of these institutions was considered and included?

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, in answer to the question of the gentleman from Fayette, and, if you will forgive me, I will speak solely on hearsay—I understand it was not included, that the budget was prepared with the idea that the county would not have these institutions to look after. It was prepared and, according to the same information that I received, and still speaking on hearsay, Mr. President, it was prepared and put through upon what we knew we had to do. We would be placed in somewhat of an embarrassing position if we say to the people of Allegheny County that they are going to have to take care of those institutions for the balance of the year.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I understand the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Kilgallen, is connected with the county solicitor—city solicitor. Will the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Kilgallen, permit himself to be interrogated?

The PRESIDENT. Will the Senator from Allegheny, Mr. Kilgallen, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. KILGALLEN. Mr. President, I will.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, will the Senator from Allegheny, Mr. Kilgallen, inform this Senate whether he knows as a fact that, in making up the budget for the County of Allegheny and the City of Pittsburgh, the cost of maintaining these institutions was not considered?

Mr. KILGALLEN. Mr. President, it was not; and we feel that we could not, as a matter of law, set aside any money to take care of these institutions. It is a very hard situation that confronts us in Pittsburgh. Our money situation is not very good. We could, of course, float a bond issue—we will require somewhere in the neighborhood of $400,000. The City of Pittsburgh in that way can take care of the situation but it would be extremely hard.

Now, the county could in no way take care of the situation. The county, as I understand it, is without authority to borrow the money. How the county is going to finance the care of those patients is just outside of my knowledge. We are going to have trouble with the situation in Allegheny County in so far as the county patients are concerned.

Understand, Mr. President, in Allegheny County we have two institutions. We have an institution conducted and maintained by the city and we have a similar institution a number of miles away financed and taken care of by the county.

Now, as I have said, if this bill goes through, the county will in no way be able to raise the money to take care of their mental patients. It will be extremely hard for the city—we will have to float a bond issue—but the county can in no way take care of those patients.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, as I understand it, the present Act requires that a supplementary budget be prepared to take care of the needs in the county, if it is found necessary. Nobody has any desire to increase taxes in any county.

The County Commissioners had notice before they prepared and submitted the budget that such an action was contemplated, and this subject has been very carefully gone over. No one realizes more than my distinguished colleague, Mr. Kilgallen, that the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is desperately in need of finances. It is impossible, because of physical surroundings, to take over the institutions because conditions are different and not analogous to taking over the Byberry institution.

We are just as deeply interested in maintaining these institutions in the Commonwealth and also in relieving real estate, but you can not do it this year. We do not have the money and we all know it. This is the only way the thing can be logically worked out.

We are willing to assume this burden. The real sensible thing to do on this bill is to carry this for the balance of this year. All we are asking the City of Pittsburgh to do is to carry it for the balance of this year until the Commonwealth is in a better position to take care of it. I think if the County Commissioners had waited that the County of Allegheny would have been in a position where this could have been worked out in the budget. This is the best arrangement that can be made with the budget and with a sympathetic interest of all of the taxpayers in mind.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I should like to ask the Senator from Pittsburgh, Mr. Kilgallen, a question.

The PRESIDENT. Will the Senator from Allegheny, Mr. Kilgallen, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. KILGALLEN. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, for my information I would like to ask the Senator from Allegheny, Mr. Kilgallen, this question: it is important to know whether this bill means anything, because it says you are entitled to make a new budget and borrow money. The question is, can you borrow money?

Mr. KILGALLEN. Mr. President, my understanding is that the county can not.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, does the Senator from Allegheny, Mr. Kilgallen, mean that the borrowing capacity limit has been reached?

Mr. KILGALLEN. That is my understanding, Mr. President.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Then, Mr. President, this bill can not be worth anything.

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, when the Poor Boards were taken over by Act of Assembly in 1937, the counties were created into institutional districts and they were given a double barreled power, and this bill provides that the institutional districts may borrow money. If the County of Allegheny has borrowed up to its limit, the institutional district has the right to borrow just as much more as the county has.

In 1938, when the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, was desirous of unloading Byberry upon the State, he joined in all other mental hospitals of the State for the purpose of getting support for his bill. When they passed the Act providing for the taking over of that institution they did not provide revenue to run that institution and we have already, in this Session, approved a deficiency appropriation bill for $1,045,000 to take care of Byberry up to the end of this biennium. It will require $6,000,000 or $7,000,000 to carry these institutions which were taken over by the Act of 1938.

The last administration provided no revenue for that purpose. I called attention to the fact at that time. The counties outside of Allegheny and Philadelphia are taking care of their own mental cases. They are doing it most successfully and most of them do not want to surrender their property to the State.

Mr. SIPE. Mr. President, commenting on the remarks of the distinguished gentleman from Allegheny, formerly from Armstrong, Mr. Walker, that Pennsylvania as a State is not able to take care of the burden of carrying this institution for another year but that Allegheny County is, I want to extend my heartfelt congratulations to the County of Allegheny in being more wealthy than the State of Pennsylvania.

As I view this bill, Mr. President, it simply means the adding of more taxes on the already over-burdened real estate holders in Pennsylvania; and in view of the rosy promises that were made by the Governor in the last campaign, and by the whole Reuublican party generally, this is simply another broken promise to the real estate holders in Allegheny County.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the Senator from Susquehanna, Mr. Gelder.

The PRESIDENT. Will the Senator from Susquehanna permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. GELDER. Mr. President, I will.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, will the Senator from Susquehanna instruct the Senate as to how much this will cost the State?

Mr. GELDER. Mr. President, I have no idea how much it will cost the State, but I want to say to the Senator from Washington that the Senate is busy right now debating a bill that is in the House and not a bill that is on the calendar.

This bill on the calendar is simply a means for the districts to raise the money, provided the bills in the House, carry and are passed by the Senate. Without it the counties, which have those districts, are going to be in a financial predicament, and this bill is intended to get them out.

Apparently the counties that failed to take cognizance of the notice that was served early in this Session, that the law was going to be deferred two years, are like the gentleman who was willed a large legacy and started to spend it before he got the money and then found the money was not there.

The only thing I can tell the gentleman from Washington is that the Department of Welfare asked us to introduce this bill, and that it is simply a provision by which the home districts can raise the same money to take care of their institutions that they had raised last year and the year before.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

An Act to amend the act, approved the fifth day of May, one thousand nine hundred thirty-three (P. L. 364), entitled "An act relating to business corporations; defining and providing for the organization, merger, consolidation, reorganization, winding up and dissolution of such corporations; conferring certain rights, powers, duties and immunities upon them and their officers and shareholders prescribing the conditions on which such corporations may exercise their powers; providing for the inclusion of certain existing corporations of the second class within the provisions of this act; prescribing the terms and conditions upon which foreign business corporations may be admitted, or may continue, to do business within the Commonwealth; conferring powers and imposing duties on the court of common pleas, and certain State departments, commissions, and officers; authorizing certain State departments, boards, commissions, or officers to collect fees for services required to be rendered by this act; imposing penalties; and repealing certain acts and parts of acts relating to corporations," as amended, by modifying changing, and clarifying certain provisions of the act relating to the corporate name.

A majority of all the Senators having voted "aye" the question was determined in the affrmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present said bill to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

MOTION TO RE-REFER SENATE BILL 22

Mr. JAMES. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill 22 be re-referred to the Committee on Judiciary Special for further consideration. This is the fireworks bill.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I object.

The PRESIDENT. There is objection and the bill will be reported on the calendar tomorrow.

BILL ON THIRD READING

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 537, entitled:

A Joint Resolution proposing an amendment to section one article eight of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania

And said bill having been read at length the third time,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

Mr. WOODWARD. Mr. President, when there were so many bills going over in order, I had high hopes of addressing the Senate for at least one hour; but owing to this recent debate I am obliged now to curtail my remarks.

This joint resolution imposes a tax qualification for the privilege of voting and it would require, I am sure, an hour to convert enough members of the Senate to pass this joint resolution.

I have been studying this question and concluded, among other things, that there are perhaps too many voters at this time.

I have been obliged to go back in our history on this matter of suffrage, I have gone back to the Declaration of Independence and remind you that in that well known phrase "life, liberty, and pursuit of happiness" the original draft of the Declaration was not only the pursuit of happiness but the pursuit of property.

I hope to briefly build up a background for the argument for the joint resolution by coming down through the ages as quickly as possibly from the Declaration of Independence.

I will say nothing about the War of 1812, nor about the Indian wars. For all Indian wars, I can refer you to the Senator from Butler, Mr. Sipe. I will say nothing about the Mexican War or about the Civil War. At the time of the Civil War it was remarked, among other things, by the rise of the Republican party.

We have had in Pennsylvania a totalitarian Commonwealth ruled by Simon Cameron and we had another totalitarian rule in our Commonwealth by Matt Quay. We have had another totalitarian rule by Boise Penrose. After the Penrose regime the Republican party shrank owing to the loss of leadership.

There then occurred the rise of the Democratic party. There arose what is known as General State Authority and dream of a super-highway, and we then had George H. Earle for President, we had George H. Earle for United States Senator and now we have George H. Earle in private life.

The Republican party again came into power. The platform on which the Republican party won its election was a very constructive one, namely, to oust all Democrats. The slogan of the Republican party is "Jobs for the jobless," but the question naturally arising to inquiring men is: "where are they?"

At this time Philadelphia became a Fourth Class city; the subways collapsed, water works collapsed, the City was put into bankhuptcy under 77-B by Harry Shapiro, and then the City Charter Act came along, the City Charter was voted on by the people, all the ward leaders, both Republicans and Democrats, left the City and prosperity returned to the City.

Philadelphia has now become a First Class city.

In the future there will be a monument on City Hall plaza dedicated to Senators Shapiro and Woodward.

Now, I stand here tonight representing the rich—the underprivileged rich—the underprivileged rich—There was a time when the rich were privileged and the poor underprivileged; but now we, the rich, are underprivileged and the shoe is on the other foot. There was a time not so long ago when it was disgraceful to own property. The Philadelphia Record is in the habit of labeling me the millionaire Senator from Germantown. They made two mistakes. I do not live in Germantown, and I am not a millionaire; but I felt somewhat hurt they did not call me a multi-millionaire Senator. I did not know whether to sue the Record for libel; I did not know whether it was a compliment or saying it with flowers, or whether it was a nasty remark. I have not made up my mind yet.

I claim that it is possible for a man of property to be a friend of the laboring man. I claim to be a friend of unionism. I am all for unions but I dislike John L. Lewis very much; and I think the leadership is very much at fault. I know from my acquaintanceship in my former home in the anthracite region that the anthracite men have been sold out from time to time by the leaders.

As the famous Lady Astor remarked to reporters in New York City when she was asked whether she believed in labor unions in the U. S. A., she said she believed the trouble was in their leadership.

Now, it was Theodore Roosevelt that invented the phrase "Malefactors of great wealth." Then that phrase was changed and the popular slogan became "Soak the rich" or, as our late Governor more beautifully phrased it, "Sock the rich."

I have not hesitated to write something about the leadership of Messrs. Pew and Grundy and I at one time offended them by saying they were Pied-Pipers of Hamlin leading the Republican party into a hole in the ground like Mammoth Cave where it is so dark that even the fish are blind.

I have since endeavored to discover the origin of this phrase "Soak the rich." I have found it goes all the way back to the Bible. As some of you men know and remember, there is the parable of Dives and Sazasur, and if you do not understand that I do not mind telling you that Dives was the rich man. Dives was in Paradise and there was a gulf. Dives was in the great gulf. He was a rich man, and I therefore argue that is the origin, the first example of soaking the rich.

Now, the truth of the matter is this, that the poor man the laboring man does not envy a man like Henry Ford. Henry Ford, through his own brain, made his fortune. The people who are the melefactors of great wealth are the people who manipulate the stock market. They do nothing constructive, they may almost be called parasites, and a perfect example of that class is Richard Whitney—now in Sing Sing. First he went to Harvard, and then he went to Sing Sing.

Now, the rest of my argument is that if we do not limit sufferage, sufferage will limit us. I would like to state to the Senator from Fayette, Mr. Cavalcante, that I hope he will turn on all his intellectual honesty and listen to this argument.

There are at this time over fifty per cent of the people of this country who have some property, they have insurance, or they have saving funds. There are something over fifty per cent who have no stake in the government. It is very simple, almost a mathematical proposition, that you will get under universal sufferage, where the 48 per cent or 49 per cent of the "have not," will become 50 or the 52 per cent and it is very easy for 53 per cent or 51 per cent to outvote 49 per cent and, therefore, I say, we will have to limit sufferage or sufferage will limit us.

This joint resolution was offered two years ago and I felt at that time that I was reminded of the phrase "fools rush in where angels fear to tread" I did not know which class I was in; but it was nice to remember, that this resolution failed two years ago by only two votes in the Senate. I am hoping, therefore, that this bill will have a majority this time; but I ask unanimous consent not to vote at this time, until Senator Heyburn can return to his seat.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, the gentleman from Philadelphia has forgotten to place on the record another great transformation that has taken place since the time Captain John Smith ruled with an iron hand at Jamestown and up to the present time. I remembered very distinctly, when I was in grade school studying the early history of our country, the teacher used to impress very emphatically that great statement made by Captain John Smith that he who will not work shall not eat. Just mark the transformation from that time to the present. Now it seems that only those who will not work are entitled to eat, through our Public Assistance laws, and they who do no work, the privilege rich, like Dr. Woodward, they foot the bill.

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. WOODWARD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 537, go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection. The Chair hears none.

RECONSIDERATION OF SENATE BILL NO. 514.

Mr. DEITRICK. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now reconsider the vote by which Senate Bill No. 514, entitled:

An Act to amend sections three hundred eight and three hundred nine of the act approved the twenty-fourth day of June one thousand nine hundred and thirty-seven P. L. 2017) entitled "An act creating in each county (except of the first class) as a separate corporation and in each city of the first and second class as a part of the city government an institution district for the care and maintenance of certain indigent persons and children prescribing the powers and duties of county commissioners county treasurers city departments of public welfare the State Department of Welfare and the State Department of Public Assistance in respect thereto abolishing certain poor districts and terminating the terms of directors overseers guardians and managers of the poor and poor district auditors and providing for the temporary employment of certain of them providing for the transfer vesting sale and disposition of the property of poor districts and the payment of their obligations imposing certain existing obligations on institution districts and on the commonwealth regulating the affairs of poor districts until abolished revising amending changing and consolidating the law relating to the care of the poor and repealing existing laws" changing the conditions for borrowing money for current expenses and authorizing a supplement budget and the borrowing of money to operate institutions for mental patients heretofore transferred to the Commonwealth was defeated.

The PRESIDENT. How did the Senator vote?

Mr. DEITRICK. Mr. President, I voted in the negative.

Mr. OWLETT. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The PRESIDENT. How the Senator from Tioga vote?

Mr. OWLETT. Mr. President, I voted "no."

The PRESIDENT. The motion is to reconsider the vote by which Senate Bill 514 was defeated.

Are there any remarks?

The motion was agreed to.

The clerk will call the roll.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, what are we calling the roll on?

The PRESIDENT. The motion was carried to reconsider the vote by which Senate Bill 514 was defeated.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Then, Mr. President, we are now voting on the bill?

The PRESIDENT. That is correct.

Mr. OWLETT. Mr. President, I insist that we are calling the roll on the motion to reconsider.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair rules that that was carried.

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. OWLETT. Mr. President I ask that Senate Bill 514 go over in its order.

MOTION TO RECOMMIT SENATE BILL NO. 22.

Mr. JAMES. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill 22, reported out tonight, be referred to Committee on Judiciary Special for further consideration in that commttee.

Mr. TALLMAN. Mr. President, I second the motion.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the Senator from Bucks, Mr. James.

The PRESIDENT. Will the Senator from Bucks permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. JAMES. Mr. President, I will.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I desire to ask the gentleman from Bucks what is the purpose for recommitting the fireworks bill known as Senate Bill 22.

Mr. JAMES. Mr. President, I desire to recommit Senate Bill 22 in order to consider the effective date of the bill. There were some members who were not present when this bill was considered today and I would like to have it reported back in order that we may reconsider the effective date of the bill.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, that is so trivial that I most vigorously object. This bill has been in committee since early in the Session. It is known as Senate Bill 22 and its number indicates it was one of the first bills introduced in the Senate. It rested in the Senate for some considerable time and it was one of the bills that was very hard to get out of committee.

Now, this bill was considered very carefully in the 1938 Summer Session. It has been before the public continuously since that time and it is a subject that is extremely alive in the Commonwealth today. I know what is going on in these halls concerning these fireworks bills today. It is the same old plan to juggle them around until the end of the Session and then there will be no fireworks bill passed; and I sincerely urge upon my colleagues in the Senate to vote this motion down.

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the Senator from Washington, Mr. Reed.

The PRESIDENT. Will the Senator from Washington Mr. Reed, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. REED. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, does the Senator from Washington understand that the bill, as it was reported out, does not become effective until after this coming Fourth of July?

Mr. REED. Mr. President, if that is the case that can be very easily taken care of without recomitting the bill and getting it frozen in committee again. The Senator from Blair well knows that a bill going back to committee at this late date—with the importance of this bill with the number of lobbyists that have been moving around this Senate hall for the last two or three months—that its chances of getting out of committee will be very small.

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, I believe that the Senator from Washington is just as anxious to vote on this bill as I am. I think if we are going to have a fireworks bill—if it is a good proposition we might as well have it effective so that it will prohibit any injuries this coming Fourth of July. I think we are in accord on that and I do not believe there is any danger. What we want to do is make it effective right away.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I am very much in favor of having Senate Bill 22 effective right away, and I think it can be done without recommitting the bill. Let those, who are interested in inserting an effective date in this bill, prepare an amendment and I will gladly go along. That amendment can be introduced without the bill going back to committee, where I am afraid it will be frozen.

Mr. JAMES. Mr. President, I would like to assure the Senator from Washington that it is with no purpose of delay that I want this bill referred back to committee; and I further assure the Senator, if this bill is referred back to Committee, that this Committee will report it out tomorrow and, therefor, it will only be delayed a few hours.

Mr. WOODWARD. Mr. President, I rise in support of the position of the Senator from Washington, on the theory that the burnt child dreads the fire. I was for the fireworks bill at the last Session and was more-or-less fooled because the bill was not regulatory, so I voted against the fireworks bill and I have been uncomfortable ever since. My local paper every week voices that fact, and, therefore, I am going to take any position I can to get a fireworks bill, no matter how bad it is.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I do not see any humor in this proposition at all. I recall very well that when we had this fireworks bill in the Senate, it had passed the House, and we had it on second reading; and I recall very well the day it came up for third reading, and everybody in the Senate thought it was going to go through, but the result of two days lobbying by manufacturers who are interested only in the sale of fireworks, who have no interest in the result—the careless use of those fireworks by children who do not know how to use them properly—they proceeded to lobby here with effect, and, as last effort—we were approaching Christmas they produced a Christmas card and used a holiday which is held in great seriousness by many people in this Commonwealth for their own sordid purposes. They sent out pictures of children saying "Merry Christmas, please save jobs for Daddy," but they forget to add on the Christmas card, "Please save fingers for children."

We are now approaching Decoration Day and they will find some appropriate cards with which to implore some of these gentleman to vote; and then we will have some other gentleman, in addition to the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Woodward, who will be ashamed; and if we do not look out we will have some who will be more than ashamed, because they will feel they were responsible for some injuries that were visited on some child, because they have not stopped playing with a bill that does not deserve the consideration that it is receiving, so far as the manufacturers are concerned. I am tired of having this bill made the basis of a public scandal and that is what is being done.

I never heard of such a reason. I was seeking the other day—on a bill which involves almost every dealer in the Commonwealth—I asked that that go over to make an amendment and what was the amendment? My amendment was to change the efiective date, and the gentleman suggested—

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. OWLETT. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The Senator from Tioga will state his point of order.

Mr. OWLETT. Mr. President, the gentleman from Philadelphia is not talking on the question at issue.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I am talking directly on the subject, whether this bill can be amended on the floor—

The PRESIDENT. The motion is to recommit.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, for the purpose of amending the effective date, and I am now talking about the effective date, and that can be changed just like I am changing the effective date on the other bill, and this is certainly no time to proceed this way. This bill is not going to pass anyway. There is a bill in the House which has already passed and instead of taking the bill in the House and amending it and saving five days we are sending Senate Bill 22 over to the House and having it bottled over there, or they will have to adjourn before we do anything. Nobody is fooling me with that.

MOTION WITHDRAWN

Mr. JAMES. Mr. President, I, at this time, withdraw the motion I made, hoping that the matter may be ironed out in the meantime and I reserve to myself the right to renew the motion tomorrow morning. If there is any delay in the passage of this bill it is the fault of the gentleman on the left.

Mr. TALLMAN. Mr. President, I withdraw my second to the motion to recommit.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I might say that if the Senator from Bucks desires that the effective date be advanced I will have an amendment drawn and placed in his hands so that he can introduce it on the floor of the Senate tomorrow.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, if he does not, I will.

Mr. JAMES. Mr. President, we will prepare our own amendments without assistance.

Mr. DiSILVESTRO. Mr. President, I would like to interrogate the Senator from Bucks.

The PRESIDENT. Will the Senator from Bucks permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. JAMES. Mr. President, I will.

Mr. DiSILVESTRO. Mr. President, I think I heard correctly that the Senator from Bucks said that he would withdraw his motion temporarily in order to present the same motion tomorrow. I would like to know whether he made that statement.

Mr. JAMES. Mr. President, I did not.

Mr. DiSILVESTRO. Mr. President, what did the Senator from Bucks say?

Mr. JAMES. Mr. President, I said I would withdraw the motion at this time with the hope that in the meantime matters might be straightened out—matters may be smoothed out and arranged, without the necessity of referring the bill back to committee. I reserve the right to make the motion tomorrow if necessary.

Mr. OWLETT. Mr. President, just in order to keep the record straight, with reference to this matter—I am not a member of the Judiciary Special Committee, but I listened with a great deal of interest to this argument and I think it ought to be pointed out that if this bill is amended on the floor it will have to go over for printing; and the further objection that has been made to referring this bill back to committee is that it will delay its passage one day more than if it were handled in the way the Senator from Bucks suggests.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the Senator from Tioga, Mr. Owlett.

Mr. PRESIDENT. Will the Senator from Tioga permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. OWLETT. Mr. President, I will.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Will the Senator from Tioga tell us how we will lose one day if the bill is on second reading and we amend it tomorrow.

Mr. OWLETT. Mr. President, this bill was reported out this evening and will receive first reading today. Now, as I understand the Senator—

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, The bill is on second reading for tomorrow and will not be delayed.

Mr. OWLETT. Mr. President, the bill will have to go back on second reading tomorrow in order to amend it. It has had two readings. I am exactly correct.

BILL ON THIRD READING

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 561, entitled:

An Act to amend section two of the act approved the ninth day of July one thousand eight hundred and ninety-seven (P. L. 219) entitled "An act providing for the classification of real estate and other property for purposes of taxation and for the election of assessors and prescribing the duties thereof in cities of the second class" by providing for refund of taxes paid on assessments reduced after appeal and requiring the payment of interest and penalties on taxes based on such reduced assessments

And said bill having been read at length the third time,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading as amended?

Mr. KILGALLEN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to amend title by adding: "and requiring the payment of interest and penalties on taxes based on such reduced assessments; Amend page 2, line 29, by adding the following: "and provided, further, that such appeals shall not operate to relieve the appellant from paying accrued interest and penalties on the amount of the assessment as finally established.

Mr. President, this bill was amended in committee but through some mistake the amendment is not printed in the bill. Although the bill is on third reading, I want to offer an amendment and I, therefore, request unanimous consent to do so.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

BILLS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 674, entitled:

An Act constituting a commission to examine the tax laws of the Commonwealth and of other States and countries and to prepare and submit bills to carry into effect its recommendations prescribing the powers and duties of said commission and making an appropriation.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, this is a bill which creates a commission to examine into the tax laws of this state and other states with the provision that it shall report to the General Assembly at the next regular or special session of the General Assembly. In terms and powers it is identical with the act which passed the General Assembly in 1923 which was the last tax commission that we had of this nature. It is, of course, a subject which is bound to be much in our thoughts in the next year, unless we have very good fortune in our public financing, but it is estimated that for the year of 1938 the total tax collections in the United States were $13,800,000,000, and it is also estimated for the same year the gross income of all the individuals of the country, including salaries and wages and rent and dividends and interest, patent royalties and everything else we want to consider as income, was perhaps $62,000,000,000,000, so that 22 percent of the gross income of the country was taken for taxes last year, and even with that the budgets were not balanced, it would have been $18,000,000 rather than $13,800,000,000 if enough money had been raised to meet all the expenses of government.

Now, in order to meet this situation that has been caused by an exorbitant program bill after bill, ideas after ideas, have been tried to raise money. There apparently are no harmless taxes in existence today and I am very much afraid from the point of view of political expediency that there is no such thing as a good tax. We have gotten down to the stage where we have to raise more money. It has been estimated that, in all the general assemblies of the union in a two year period one thousand five hundred new tax laws will be passed by the different general assemblies; one thousand new tax laws will be added in the odd years when more of the general assemblies meet and five hundred will be added when only a smaller proportion of the general assemblies meet.

Now, at some stage of the game this must end. In the first place budgets have got to be stabilized and when they become stabilized there ought to be sessions without passing new tax legislation. I can recall in some of my own experiences in the House of Representatives, twenty years ago, that there were frequent periods in which there was no tax legislation considered. What we had then was a very fortunate system of general taxes at low rates, the effect of which was that, with the increasing prosperity there was increasing income for the States and that took up the slack and the increasing debts of the State.

Now, my theory is that with eight or nine years of emergency tax legislation, both in the State and nation, the time has come when a survey could very properly be made, and this act proposed a survey by a commission of nine, three named by the president pro tempore of the Senate, and three by the speaker of the house and three by the Governor, and it is my feeling that that is the proper method to approach the taxing problem of this State. We have a great number of taxing laws that are inter related and if you make amendments into one you may possibly throw out of balance some of the other taxes. The whole subject has got to be studied and therefore, inasmuch as this bill provides what seems to me to be a reasonable and attested method of ascertaining what tax legislation is needed, I hope very much it will appeal to my colleagues on both sides of the house because it seems to me to indicate a right step of approach to what is one of our most important problems.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the Senator from Montgomery.

The PRESIDENT. Will the Senator from Montgomery permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. EDMONDS. With pleasure, Mr. President.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, do I understand that the purpose of this commission is to study the substitution of taxes for the present biennium in place of the so called punative taxes which the Earle Administration is supposed to have imposed?

Mr. EDMONDS. It is my own thought, Mr. President, that approximately six months will be required to study these matters, but it is also my thought very strongly, if we need a special session to consider special questions that the commission should report at that time with ideas and different suggestions, and it is so stated.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, does the gentleman from Montgomery feel that that is the only way to approach the solution of this problem, to substitute new or other taxes for these present ones?

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I would not say the only way, my thought would not be for an instant this would prevent us all from studying this subject and advancing such ideas as we might have. I think that this is the rational way of doing it.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Does the Senator from Montgomery mean that this is a rational way of studying the question of the substitution of one tax for another?

Mr. EDMONDS. Oh, Mr. President, certainly, yes.

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, as a matter of fact, each decade has seen a commission appointed by this legislature, is that not so?

Mr. EDMONDS. That is correct, Mr. President, in 1913 we had a tax commission. Francis Shunk Brown, in 1927 headed another Pennsylvania Tax Commission, and I might say that commission in its final report called attention to the fact that our system would last for approximately ten years and then break down, and break down because of the demands of the public schools.

Mr. STIEFEL. In other words, Mr. President, history repeats itself?

Mr. EDMONDS. Absolutely, Mr. President.

Mr. STIEFEL. As a matter of fact, Mr. President, if the findings of the commission of the Senator from Montgomery in 1927 would have been adopted many of the present evils would have been avoided?

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I think that is true. As a matter of fact, two-thirds of the legislation that we recommended was adopted and we had one piece of great good fortune that I think perhaps the Senators here are acquainted with. In 1926 the Federal Government adopted a plan of allowing a drawback up to eighty per cent of Estate taxes that were actually imposed and paid. We had to defend that in the Supreme Court but it was eventually confirmed by the Supreme Court and taking up that slack was with I might say some ten million dollars a year on the average and that is one of the reasons we were able to hold on so long; but we made other recommendations as to business taxation—shifting from capital to income—which were not accepted at the time we made them and I think it would have been good for Pennsylvania if they had been accepted then.

Mr. STIEFEL. Will the appropriation for this commission produce approximately the same results?

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I think so. As a matter of fact, there was $25,000 appropriated in 1923 and this appropriation is only for $10,000, which is in accord with the ideas of economy of this administration. My own thought is that there is a difference between 1923 and 1938. In 1923 very little data had been collected on taxes. In 1938 we have today a current fund of data collected not only by business but commissions appointed by the state and auxiliary organizations of one sort or another, so that I think we start off with very much more material than there was in existence fifteen years ago, and for that reason we ought to be able to get along on less appropriation.

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, I doubt very much whether or not ten thousand dollars will suffice the undertaking of such an extended study as this, because I believe they will be confronted with the famous myth—about industry moving from Pennsylvania—and they will have to delve into that problem all over again, so unless we have a monumental contribution to study the taxing and fiscal system of Pennsylvania the undertaking is really not worthwhile, and for that reason I believe that the appropriation of $10,000 will not be sufficient to present this legislature with a complete and exhaustive study of the taxes throughout the union and especially Pennsylvania.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I desire to again interrogate the Senator from Montgomery.

The PRESIDENT. Will the Senator from Montgomery permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I will.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I desire to inquire from the gentleman from Montgomery whether this commission will be necessary if the new Department of Commerce recommended by Governor James is provided for in our legislation during this Session.

Mr. EDMONDS. Yes, Mr. President, I would say so. I think that the relationship between the Department of Commerce and the taxing commission ought to be very intimate because unquestionably the Department of Commerce, if established, in its endeavor to induce new industries to come into the state, will find out the questions that are blocking their coming in at the present time.

The Department of Commerce would be an administrative department whereas this commission is a commission to provide new laws, it is a little different in its functions, and while I am inclined to think as years go on and the Department of Commerce gets better established this is the kind of work that might perhaps come from it.

I do not think it can come from it in the early days—at the present time. Might I say just a word and suggest to the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Stiefel, in regard to business coming into the state, it is not so much business that has moved out of the state as it is business outside of the state that has considered the advantages of Pennsylvania, but then decide to go somewhere else. We have tremendous advantages to offer industry, we have splendid transportation, we have splendid facilities, all sorts and all kinds, we are the center of an enormous population, we are a big distributing area and one of the wealthiest distribution areas in the world—and yet industry will not come in if you get the reputation of passing four or five new tax laws every year, because they do not know what the future will hold for them.

We have got to get this system stabilized some way and I think that stabilization must result in the bringing of more revenue. Do not anyone for an instant think that taxes taken off and no new ones imposed. Any stabilization program must result in bringing in new revenue but the one particular thing we ought to question is the wisdom of new taxes before we make amendments.

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, has the Senator from Montgomery examined the recent biennual census of manufacturers?

Mr. EDMONDS. In this State, Mr. President, yes?

Mr. STIEFEL. And, Mr. President, what is the result of the Senator from Montgomery's comparison of the biennual census of manufacturers for 1935 and 1937.

Mr. EDMONDS. I must confess, Mr. President, there is no conclusion suggested to my mind connected with the tax problem. Does the Senator from Philadelphia have one?

Mr. STIEFEL. I do, Mr. President.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, will the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Stiefel, enlighten me?

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, the volume of business of the manufacturers of Pennsylvania for the period 1935 to 1937 increased 35 per cent, despite the so-called punitive taxes, which indicates that taxation has nothing to do with the growth of industry in Pennsylvania. Mr. Edmonds: Mr. President, not necessarily that. That might be a question of currency, a question of value of the dollar, it might be a question of machinery producing more than labor used to produce. I think all those elements have to be considered.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, in the interest of economy I will refrain from asking the gentleman from Montgomery any questions, but I will ask my colleagues to go along and vote for it.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

NAYS— 0

A majority of all the Senators having voted "aye" the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present said bill to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

Mr. OWLETT. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now resume consideration of Senate Bill No. 498, (House Bill No. 436), on Page 4 of the Calendar.

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, I second the motion.

It was agreed to.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate bill No. 498, (House bill No. 436), entitled:

An Act relating to and providing for the promotion and development of business industry and commerce in the Commonwealth conferring powers and duties upon the Department of Commerce and other agencies of the Commonwealth abolishing the Pennsylvania State Publicity Commission terminating the terms of its members and conferring its powers upon and transferring and appropriating the balance of its current appropriation to the Department of Commerce and repealing certain laws

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, this is the Department of Commerce bill. I listened with great interest to the statement of the gentleman from Montgomery that a Department of Commerce would not be able to take care of the provisions or the purposes, of the bill we just passed, and I am going to inquire whether the gentleman from Montgomery and I am quite in accord with the gentleman from Montgomery, but as I read this bill I was wondering just what the Department of Commerce would be able to do. As I see the bill, it provides that the Department of Commerce shall investigate commerce, shall prepare data, file it away, induce people to come see the Pennsylvania State beautiful—one of the functions of the Pennsylvania Publicity Commission—and then proceed to abolish the Pennsylvania Publicity Commission.

I was under the impression the Department of Commerce was going to be a department which would invite business back to Pennsylvania and I think we spent several hundred thousand dollars in the Department of Publicity last year. I don't know how much business we invited back, but judging from the campaign speeches I think more business went out than came in—maybe it was because we spent so much money sending out pictures about Pennsylvania Beautiful.

I am going to say about this bill, that I do not see anything about this bill that has any meat in it that I can put my hands on and say it is going to accomplish something. I want to call attention to a bill which follows, which I understand amends the administrative code and it establishes a Department of Commerce with a secretary at a salary of $10,000 a year, and in that department a planning board—transfers a planning board which I understand has some distinct duties other than to bring business into Pennsylvania.

I should like to call attention to whoever is assuming responsibility for this bill to the fact that a planning board is provided for, a board of nine made up of five fiscal offices and four men to be appointed by the Governor appointed rather—I see nowhere in the bill who appoints those gentlemen—so unless the administrative code provides that the governor shall appoint all of the members of the board existing at the time of its passage, and this department is created thereafter, you will have an anomalous situation of a board of nine with only five men who can be functioning. I wish to call attention of those responsible to that so that they may correct that.

Take the two bills together. I do not see where anything constructive can be accomplished and I would like someone to tell me where the money for the purposes for conducting this department—I think it is called Industry or Commerce—where that money is going to come from, and then I would like to know whether it would not be wise and proper to follow up and take the next step and change the Department of Labor and Industry to the Department of Labor.

It seems to me if we are going to do this job, if we are going to get anywhere that the thing to do is to make the Department of Commerce the Department of Industry and call it whatever you please and give it all the function heretofore exercised by the Department of Labor and Industry, and restrict the Department of Labor to its own functions, but simply to have two departments now—one of Labor and Industry and another of Industry to me seems nonsense. You are going to have a conflict between the two departments and you are going to make the new department degenerate into what I said it would be, nothing more or less than a publicity commission, and it seems folly to me to do that, there is nothing constructive in it.

I would like to know two things. First, why leave the Department of Industry remain where it is, and, where is the money coming from?

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, I believe that the trouble with this bill is the fact that the department of commerce is a mosnomer. I looked up the definition of the word "commerce" and it means interchange of merchandise and I cannot see how this department can deal with the movement of good and besides that, in my opinion, there should be some statistics with regard to the duties of this department, and we have a very fine bureau of statistics and internal affairs. I fail to see how the new department can be called the department of commerce.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I may not be in a position to answer all the inquiries which the first gentleman from Philadelphia made, but I am very glad to say the reason why I believe this is a good department for the State, this department of commerce idea—I remember it was first suggested in the gubernatorial campaign of 1922, the time when Gifford Pinchot was first elected, and he called attention to the fact that as the department of labor and industry had developed it had become primarily a department of labor and therefore the industry side needed other representation, not with a view of conflict between the two but with the view that the two would work together and while working together set an example to labor and industry throughout the state.

Now, I have been interested in some of the suggestions that have developed here. Here is an instance: "To investigate, study and undertake ways and means of promoting and encouraging the prosperous development and protecting the legitimate interests and welfare of Pennsylvania business, industry and commerce within and without the Commonwealth."

Now, what does that mean? A business today might seek to locate a branch in this State and will send a letter to the State to find out about business conditions there generally. Where would they go in Pennsylvania at the present time without this department? They might go to the Governor, they might go to the Department of Labor and Industry, they might go to the Bureau of Internal Affairs. The Bureau of Internal Affairs could give them statistics and the Department of Labor could tell them about labor conditions, but there is no one who understands business from a businessman's point of view. Now, I think we need that.

I was very much interested a few months ago in talking with my friend Mr. Robert Brown of Philadelphia who has been taking a deep interest in this question, and Mr. Brown spoke of his visiting Detroit, where he had a conference with Mr. Sloan, and he put to him the question why is it that General Motors has never located a plant in Pennsylvania and Mr. Sloan explained that there was a slight variation in one of our labor laws that made it impossible to work their shifts the way they wanted, they would have to work two eight hour shifts and our laws would not permit that. Another point was concerning women working. Our labor law for women does not permit a sixteen hour employment spread—it is only fifteen—and they therefore decided not to come into Pennsylvania—they concluded that Pennsylvania did not want an industry organized as theirs is.

Now, we only get that information through business men talking to business men. They are the people who are able to find out just what is in the minds of those that have organizations and sometimes they may be able to point out to us a very valuable thing that can be done which by doing will be of aid to the State.

Now, there is another thing I like very much and I want to suggest in particular because it has been considered in some resolutions that have been offered by other Senators, particularly those in the coal regions.

"To initiate, promote and conduct or cause to be conducted research designed to further new and more extensive uses and consumption of natural and other resources and their by-product and for such purposes to enter into contracts and agreements with research laboratories maintained by educational or endowed institutions in this Commonwealth and to expend appropriations made to the department for such purposes."

Take, for instance, anthracite coal which I claim some slight connectioon, because my own family came from the Schuylkill County region and we have always tried to keep in touch with that situation.

This is an industry that shortly after the war produced ninety million tons and today is producing from fifty to sixty million tons. Does that mean that anthracite coal has changed in its character? No. It means other things through research have been developed to take the place of anthracite and if that continues to take place to anthracite coal what happens to our thousands of anthracite workers? Their market is simply cut from under them. Business research should study those variations and out of the research work out a plan and offer that plan and see to it that the community takes advantage of the conditions, if it is to keep its business, if it is interested in the welfare of its people.

I think all of that can be done by a Department of Commerce and therefore I regard this as a very healthy development in the organization of our State Government.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I do not believe we need this new Department of Commerce, it is another bureau, another commission, established to spend money when the duties that it is supposed to perform are now being performed or should be by the Secretary of Internal Affairs.

I read from the Pennsylvania Manual: "Bureau of Statistics. This bureau collects, by constitutional authority, compiles and publishes statistics and useful data and information relating and pertaining to labor, coal mining, oil and gas production, manufacturing industries, commercial operations, public service companies, taxes and assessment for local purposes, and other business interests of the Commonwealth."

"A decision of industrial statistics gathers, compiles, and disseminates detailed industrial information while a division of public utilities is charged with gathering information annually from the public service companies of the Commonwealth."

It goes on further and gives other duties of this particular bureau. Now, there is no necessity of standing here and saying we need a Department of Commerce when you have a Department of Commerce by constitutional authority. They can gather all this information; it should be gathered, it should be put into the various departments, giving it to them if they need it, as you prescribed a minute ago; and I think you will find in Pennsylvania Industrial Directory the questions and answers pertaining to anthracite reduction in production and so on, I do not believe we need this bureau—it is nothing but a little more patronage, in plainer words.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. In order, Mr. President, to make the statement of the gentleman from Westmoreland full and complete, I wish to state that the Constitutional authority mentioned by him in his statement is found in the Constitution in Article 5, Section 19.

Mr. WOODWARD. Mr. President, the truth is I think we need a Department of Commerce more than we need the Department of Internal Affairs. That is not a very gracious thing to say today, after the induction of the Republican Secretary with all those flowers. I was not at all enthusiastic about the Department of Commerce, nor was I about the Department of Internal Affairs when it was established, but there is one good word that can be said for it that has not been said. Recently, in Chicago there was a meeting of the Interstate Conference of Trade Carriers and unless I am very much mistaken Pennsylvania was not represented at that conference.

Now, I urged Mr. Brown, because I suspected very strongly that he would be Secretary, to go to Chicago at his own expense and he participated and defended Pennsylvania because Pennsylvania was held up as the worst example, as far as the liquor traffic is concerned, and when they met there was not one there to represent the State of Pennsylvania, and that has converted me to this Department of Commerce.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I should like to interrogate the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Woodward.

The PRESIDENT. Will the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Woodward, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. WOODWARD. Yes, Mr. President.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, would the Senator from Philadelphia support a measure to do away with the Department of Internal Affairs?

Mr. WOODWARD. I would, Mr. President.

Mr. DENT. He would, Mr. President?

Mr. WOODWARD. I would.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, will the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Woodward, cosponsor a bill with me and see that it gets out of committee?

Mr. WOODWARD. Mr. President, I will. I think he had better let me do it.

MOTION FOR BILL TO GO OVER IN ORDER

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I understand there is a question of constitutionality and while we are working on that important problem I move that this particular bill go over in its order until we decide which department we want.

Mr. OWLETT. Mr. President, I object.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, in order to correct an error I made previously in speaking on that constitutional authority, mentioned by the gentleman from Armstrong, it is Article 4, Section 19 of the Constitution.

Mr. SIPE. Mr. President. I would like to interrogate the Senator from Montgomery, Mr. Edmonds.

The PRESIDENT. Will the Senator from Montgomery, Mr. Edmonds, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. EDMONDS. With pleasure, Mr. President.

Mr. SIPE. I should like to ask the Senator from Montgomery whether one of the principal functions of the proposed Department of Commerce would be to try and induce industries to come to Pennsylvania?

Mr. EDMONDS. Yes sir, Mr. President.

Mr. SIPE. That being the case, Mr. President, we should keep in mind that the Republican Campaign orators from the Governor down, last fall told the world that industry was being driven from Pennsylvania by the unjust destructive and injurious Earle taxes.

A day or two ago, after having adopted those Earle taxes, the Republican majority re-enacted the Earle taxes. Now, I wish to ask the Senator from Montgomery, in view of that action of readopting re-enacting, the Earle taxes which drove allegedly industry, in a large measure, out of Pennsylvania, what inducements can this proposed Department of Commerce offer to industry that has been driven out by these taxes to come back to get another sock?

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I am very glad to answer that.

This is what happened. The Earle taxes are being imposed because of the Earle deficit. We do not intend to keep them permanently. We do propose to find a better taxing plan if we can.

One of the bills on the schedule tonight provides an orderly method of dealing with it. Now, I never said in the campaign that the Earle taxes were driving industry out of the State. I said the Earle taxes were keeping industry out; and I think that is true. We do know of some cases where they drove industry out. In the case of the Viscose Company, they started their first plant at Marcus Hook and then after they succeeded there they expanded and built a second plant at Lewistown, Pennsylvania and then in 1936 they had the question before them of a third plant which they brought down to the State of West Virginia.

I stopped at Lewistown, returning from State College, and I was very much interested to see that they were putting in new machinery, they were expanding the Lewistown plant, and they told me that they expected all the labor slack in that particular valley would be taken up with the expansion of the work of the Viscose Company.

I do not mean to say the Viscose Company are not going to expand in Pennsylvania until we get our taxing problem straightened out but I think that they hope that Pennsylvania will work out a plan for taxation which will at least give them a fair show and the moment business can get that Pennsylvania they will begin to come back.

I feel just as strong as ever on that and I believe in adopting these tax bills here we develop the trend of business in Pennsylvania. Business would rather go where there is an executive pledge of economy, business would rather go to a community where taxes are acceptable to them and if we can get past those two things there is still some hope for us, even in Butler county.

Mr. SIPE. Mr. President, I desire to further interrogate the Senator from Montgomery, Mr. Edmonds.

The PRESIDENT. Will the Senator from Montgomery, permit himself to be further interrogated?

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I will.

Mr. SIPE. Mr. President, I agree that the Senator from Montgomery is a gentleman. I wish to ask the Senator from Montgomery whether I am to understand from his remarks that the fleeting and flying industry will not be invited back to Pennsylvania by this new Department of Commerce until other taxes are substituted for the taxes which have driven so many out.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I would say that the effort will be made at once to bring industry back, and in many, many cases I would very strongly urge that we say to industry, If you find Pennsylvania taxes so burdensome, what is the particular trouble? Are the taxes burdensome; the method of taxes—the method of taxation? I have in mind one business that has been in Pennsylvania twenty-five years that was ordered out by telegram. That business was ordered to take its Pennsylvania plant out of the state because our Department of Revenue insisted upon collecting a tax based on the sales in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland, West Virginia and Virginia, and for years that corporation has been paying on its sales in Pennsylvania alone, and the moment the Department of Revenue put that particular ruling on, the effect was that the main office of that business merely sent a telegram to the agency in Philadelphia to withdraw.

I think if they become convinced we are approaching this tax question in a broad and tolerant way, in a way that has some basis in equity—business is not trying to get out of paying taxes, it realizes it is going to have to pay taxes, nevertheless it must be taxed according to methods that appeal to its sense of justice.

I appeal to the gentleman from Butler—if he had to deal with a client that felt he was perfectly willing to pay on the Pennsylvania sales but was not willing to pay on sales in five more states, whether or not he would not sympathize with that client. I think myself it was a great mistake in Pennsylvania, if, for the sake of a slight temporary advantage, we tried to do something that looked like gouging. Now we have to get rid of that.

Mr. SIPE. Mr. President, I should further like to interrogate the Senator from Montgomery.

The PRESIDENT. Will the Senator from Montgomery, Mr. Edmonds, permit himself to be further interrogated?

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I will.

Mr. SIPE. Mr. President, I want the gentleman from Montgomery to say whether or not the task of the new or proposed new Department would be easier if the Republican administration, instead of reenacting the taxes, which it told the world were injurious and were driving industry out of Pennsylvania, had had the wisdom to dig up some taxes that would not be injurious and that would not drive industry out of Pennsylvania.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I hope myself that we can get a better taxing system than that we have voted into being at this Session, or voted into being two years ago. I hope and believe we can get a better system than that; but before we get it we have got to have expenses stabilized. Taxation is a little bit unlike ordinary budget making—ordinarily you earn a certain amount of money and then budget it, but in government you first estimate expenses and then budget income. It seems to me you have got to have a real study made of expenses before you can estimate what normal expenses are. Then after that comes the problem of raising that money and raising it in ways that will not countenance gouging of the business industry at this state.

Mr. SIPE. Mr. President, it occurs to me that the administration is not in a very good position to command confidence in it on the part of those industries that have fled the State on account of the very injurious taxes of the Earle Administration which the present administration is re-enacting. The present administration, when running for office, held itself out to Pennsylvania business, and to business generally, as having a great deal of wisdom, at least having enough wisdom to say to a breathlessly waiting world that the taxes of the Earle Administration were very injurious and were driving industry out of Pennsylvania.

I claim that those driven industries, those industries that fled, will not likely have very much confidence in the wisdom of the Administration, in view of the fact that after having made this pronouncement to the whole world, it has not, to the present time, been able to dig up new taxes as a substitute for those vicious taxes and reenact them; and I am wondering how long it will take the present Administration to establish confidence in them, on the part of those industries that fled and have been deceived, at least, they have been greatly disappointed, I think, in view of the fact that after so decidedly telling the World how vicious those taxes were, they could do nothing better, after six months, than to re-enact every one of those important acts.

I think that the industries that fled are wondering when, if ever the day will arrive when this Administration will have the wisdom to dig up taxes that will not be injurious to industry and will not drive them out of the State.

If the administration during all these months has not yet had a lucid interval in this respect, how long will these industries have to wait, how long will Pennsylvania have to wait to get taxes that will not be injurious and drive industries out of the State.

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, I expect next Tuesday to submit some remarks which will be of an explosive nature. It will explode the famous myth about industry fleeing from Pennsylvania.

We have been told about industries moving to South Carolina, North Carolina, New York, Wisconsin, Illinois and Indiana—all of them—we have heard of that same lament here in Pennsylvania, about industry moving from the State of Pennsylvania.

I am going to wait until Tuesday to make a statement—I have a few further studies to make—but may I only state for the sake of the record that the Viscose Corporation left Pennsylvania not to escape new taxes but because of labor legislation.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, the remarks of the Senator from Montgomery, in answer to the interrogations, have covered a very wide field. When you sit here on the floor after a year and a half of study relative to the question of taxation on industry, which has a direct bearing on the question before us tonight, and hearing the statements from the gentleman from Montgomery relative to the position of industries, that have stayed out of Pennsylvania, and some of those who have fled from Pennsylvania purely on the basis of the taxing problem, that they are now going to come into Pennsylvania and return here, those that have fled, because of their faith in this new administration, I want to say that their faith in this new administration is balanced and predicated upon the profits and losses of their industries, if they are true business men, they are coming back to Pennsylvania—if they do—new industries will come to Pennsylvania not upon the faith they have in this administration or the taxing program, but upon the faith that this administration will destroy the labor legislation that they think is retarding them.

Look on the calendar in the House. Look at the calendar in the Senate. Every progressive piece of labor legislation that was passed by the Earle administration is under fire at this time and so the industries, particularly the Viscose Company, whom I had the pleasure of hearing in Philadelphia, are not so much interested in taxes they pay but in who is the tax collector.

I stood on the floor of this Senate when I reported the findings of my tax studying commission—and the very men who complained about the taxing problem in Pennsylvania the day after the general election last fall, forgot all about the taxing problem and burdens in Pennsylvania and started to tear down the taxing structure of the Federal government. The same myth that was used in Pennsylvania to destroy the faith of Pennsylvania in this Commonwealth and the Democratic administration is now being used to so destroy the faith, as you put it, and the confidence of the American business man in the Federal administration.

There is no point in debating here this evening on the question of whether taxes have any bearing on industry in Pennsylvania, but I want to say to the members of the Senate that that particular type of businessman is ninety-nine per cent politician and one per cent businessman.

He is more interested, and I repeat, he is more interested in the tax collector who is going to collect those taxes, what administration is going to be at the helm of Pennsylvania or the Federal government, than in the question of keeping taxes lower.

The gentleman from Montgomery recognized that when he said industry recognizes that it must pay large taxes. Industry recognizes that. Then why don't they quit crying about the taxing problem in the Federal government and settle down to formulating a taxing problem in Pennsylvania, in the year 1939, relative to the taxing problem of Pennsylvania? I say to every member of this Senate that the promises held out by this administration for the business man that Mr. Edmonds spoke about—have confidence and faith in—promises to create a bon fire, to destroy the liberal and humane legislation placed upon the books by the Democratic administration, of which I am so proud to have been a member.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I am very serious about this situation. I do not know how making a political issue out of this got mixed up with the question of our present taxes, but I have read this bill carefully.

When I first read it I had mostly in mind what the Governor said what the purpose of this department was, and when I read it again, last night, I got the definite impression and came to dintinct conclusion that all this bill does is to set up this department which has the right to investigate, to inquire into and gather data on statistics, on certain subjects mentioned in this bill and here I find the constitution provides, as a constitutional duty for the Secretary of Internal Affairs that he shall embrace, the Department embrace the Bureau of Industrial Statistics, and he shall discharge such duties in relation to corporations, charitable institutions, agricultural, manufacturing, accounting, mining, mineral, timber and other materials or business interests of the state, as may be prescribed by law, and he shall annually or at each such other time as may be required by law make reports to the General Assembly.

Now, the Department of Labor and Industry under the administrative code, section 2202—and I am not going to read them, there are too many—they have an industrial investigating bureau and they have all of the functions that are mentioned in the commerce act.

I do not think that upon a careful reading of the proposed commerce bureau and the Constitution and of the labor bureau you will find much, if anything, that is not covered by both those bureaus.

You are going to have duplication so far as this Internal Revenue Department is concerned, at least to the extent to which it makes investigations and compiles statistics regarding industry.

You are going to have conflict with the labor and industry department and my thought on the whole matter is some people want to vote for this new bill, because the two departments are not carrying out their functions. That is all there is to the proposition.

The Senator from Montgomery, Mr. Edmonds, said something about a gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Sloan, I think it was, coming to Pennsylvania—he could have gotten all that information from the Department of Labor and Industry, and what is more important he cannot get any help from the Department of Commerce as now proposed, because only the Department of Labor and Industry could look into that and give him that information, and if the head of that department was a labor man he could not get any help because they would not stand for a reduction in hours.

There is not a thing in this department that it can do except investigate and report, there are no teeth in this bill that gives them the right to bring industry in; it can made recommendations, and we have got those two departments now, and nobody yet has told me where the money is coming from which will support this new department which is going to investigate and make recommendations to the General Assembly, which is what the Bureau of Internal Affairs can do, and it is because it does that I am inclined to vote against this bill, because I see no reason for it, and certainly I see no money for it and just to have a department head, to make out of an investigating bureau really a commission, make a cabinet office out of it seems to me to be varrying it a little bit too far, and I am afraid this is just an effort to keep a promise that was made, even though it develops the keeping of this promise will not bring any result. You have a new $10,000 cabinet officer and a new group of employees who will be vieing with each other to get statistics—with two other groups empowered by law to do just what this new department is empowered to do. It seems to me unnecessary, and certinly there is nothing constructive about it.

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, I have listened attentively to the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, and I hope that he is sincere and not motivated by politics. The same arguments that he would advance against this bill could have been advanced against the Publicity Commission, which I was glad to support, and which I believe did a real worthwhile job.

Now, this commission will continue the work of the Publicity Commission. I have that assurance from the gentleman in who, it would be supposed, will head this commission. That was a worthwhile proposition—to spend money to induce tourists and residents of other States to come into Pennsylvania. We cannot compel industry to come into Pennsylvania—I agree with the Senator from Philadelphia—but if we can induce tourists to come in, a live wire man at the head of this commission may be able to give information and induce business to come in; and if that can be accomplished I do not think any of us want to resort to politics, and I hope that all of the members of this Senate will support this bill.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

Ordered, That the Clerk return said bill to the House of Representatives with information that the Senate has passed the same without amendments.

BILL ON THIRD READING

Mr. WOLFENDEN. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now resume consideration of Senate Bill No. 412, (House Bill No. 331), on page 2 of the Calendar.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I second the motion.

It was agreed to.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 412, (House Bill No. 331), entitled:

An Act defining and prohibiting unfair sales providing remedies for violations thereof and establishing penalties therefor

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

Mr. WOLFENDEN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to amend section 2, page 2, line 20, by striking out after the word "than" and before the word "per" the word: S "six" and inserting in lieu thereof the word: "four".

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to present amendments, and I would like to explain their contents for the information of the Senate.

The PRESIDENT. Does the gentleman from Philadelphia wish to present the same amendments as are being presented by the Senator from Indiana, on the same bill?

Mr. SHAPIRO. On the same bill, Mr. President. This bill has been giving me a great deal of concern and I have not made up my mind as to how I am going to vote on this bill; but I do feel that this is the type of bill that we will all agree, I am sure, the Constitutionality of which can be questioned, and I do not want to see the same situation arise here that we had in the Federal Government where a law was enacted—the N.R.A. Law and I think it was the Schechter Brothers contested it and the Supreme Court ruled the law was unconstitutional and by that decision the N.R.A. was put out of business. I have explained my amendment to the sponsor in order that there will be complete understanding. I have substituted, where it says in this bill that it shall become effective sixty days after final enactment, the following: "This bill shall become law November 1, 1939." I fixed that date because the Supreme court will be in Session the first week of October and I think that that will be time enough to test the matter.

Mr. WOLFENDEN. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro.

The PRESIDENT. Will the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Certainly, Mr. President.

Mr. WOLFENDEN. Mr. President, I would like to ask the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, if the amendment is agreed to will he vote for this bill?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I cannot answer that question one way or the other, but I do feel that if the bill is passed, with or without my vote, there ought to be that protection so that the people will not be bound by a bill which may subsequently be found unconstitutional. I assure the Senator from Indiana I have an open mind on the bill.

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, I should like to interrogate the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro.

The PRESIDENT. Will the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Certainly, Mr. President.

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, I would like to know how the bill can be brought into question before it becomes effective—how the constitutionality of the law can be questioned. The Supreme Court is not going to pass upon it if it is not a law.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Oh yes, Mr. President, the Supreme Court will pass on this because it is a law and an injunction to restrain enforcement of it can be sought—because by the time the question comes before any court—by the time of the decision the law will be effective. I have not any question about that; I am quite sure of it. I think in one or two cases that has been done.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, as I understand this Act it is supposed to go to the fair retail price act. I cannot understand the interest displayed by my colleague from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, in protecting or giving aid to someone who is demoralizing the market. This only states, in the Act, that a person will sell goods, commodities, at the cost price plus six per cent. This is only a measure giving the corner groceryman some sort of a weapon to use to keep the large chain stores from driving him completely out of business by using as leaders marked-down goods.

I do not think this amendment was particularly—I was going to yield to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. DiSilvestro, but I think he only wants to help me and not take the floor entirely.

Mr. President, to continue, I do not believe this amendment is at all necessary, and I heard this same gentleman from Philadelphia talking about lobbyists coming in here and wanting the effective date on the fireworks bill changed; and I am going to say to him there have been some lobbyists to see me to change this effective date on this particular bill. I do not whether they saw him or not, but the amendment is here.

Now, Mr. President, this amendment is not necessary and if we are going to help these people, if we recognize this thing as an evil and want to get rid of it, why sit around until November—let us go on ahead now.

There are sixty days, in the bill now they are given sixty days in which to adjust their business.

All we say to all these retailers is, "We are giving you a measure whereby you can make some money;" and I do not think we are going to help them make money if we say we do not want them to make money until November.

Mr. President, I am very much interested in this legislation and my retailers at home do not want it to take effect November 1, they want it to take effect as soon as possible; and so I am going to ask my colleagues to vote "no" on the amendment.

The PRESIDENT. The clerk will read the amendment.

The amendment was read.

QUESTION OF PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. OWLETT. Mr. President, I rise to a question of parlimentary inquiry.

The PRESIDENT. The Senator from Tioga will state his question of parlimentary inquiry.

Mr. OWLETT. Mr. President, I would like to inquire whether the amendments introduced by the Senator from Indiana have already been adopted.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair so understands.

Mr. OWLETT. Then, Mr. President, at this time, as I understand it, we are voting merely on these last amendments.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair so understands.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, as I understand the matter, this bill is on third reading at this time and unanimous consent has been asked to make amendments, and I heard the gentleman from York, Mr. Lanius, object to the unanimous consent.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I would like to say on that, if that is the position, I am going to ask that this bill be moved back to second reading, because I talked to the sponsor of this bill on the floor of this Senate and asked him whether he would allow the amendment to be made so that we would not have this very question raised; and if that is what is going to happen then I am going to take the position that this will be a dangerous bill in its present condition and ask that this bill go back to second reading.

I have tried to be fair about the matter and I am going to ask my colleagues to vote against this bill because I believe it is not fair to take that position on the matter.

I agreed and raised no objection to the gentleman from Tioga's motion. If I had objected it would have had the same effect; but and it was an agreement among the Senators, a gentlemen's agreement, that this amendment would go in, and I made no objection; if I had, the bill would have been back on second reading. I think if that is the position the Senators are going to take, we have arrived at a new method of dealing among ourselves.

Mr. WOLFENDEN. Mr. President, just to keep the record straight, the gentleman from Philadelphia did ask me if I had any objection to his amendment, and I told him I did not like it, that I did not think it was necessary, but I did not have any objection to it. I still do not see the necessity of putting the enforcement off until November. I think his argument about having the Supreme Court meet and decide the matter is falacious, but since he takes that position I will vote with him, I will not be in the position of having broken my word; I will vote for the amendment but I still do not think it is necessary.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, is the gentleman from Indiana considered as the sponsor of this bill?

Mr. WOLFENDEN. Mr. President, it is a House bill, and I have no interest in it except that people have asked me to be interested in it. I did not write the bill or introduce it.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I can understand, of course. the situation as it exists between Senator Wolfenden and Senator Shapiro, but if at any time two Senators on the floor are going to make personal agreements between themselves and involve the action of the whole Senate, then of course we are coming into a new departure in Senatorial action. I am willing to do exactly what I said a while ago. If the Senator from Indiana is satisfied with the amendment I will withdraw my objection, but I still think it is foolish.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I heard the gentleman from York objecting.

The PRESIDENT. Does the gentleman from York, Mr. Lanius, withdraw his objection?

Mr. LANIUS. Mr. President, I decline to withdraw my objection.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I move that the vote by which this bill passed third reading be reconsidered.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. OWLETT. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The Senator from Tioga will state his point of order.

Mr. OWLETT. Mr. President, the bill has not yet passed third reading.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I did not say it had passed third reading—if I did I meant second reading. This will not delay the bill and I ask that the vote by which it passed second reading be reconsidered. I want to say this was not a private agreement between the Senator from Indiana and myself, but a public agreement made on the floor of this Senate; I asked specifically whether the question would be raised and I was told it would not be raised, and I accepted the gentleman's word in the presence of all the members of the Senate.

The PRESIDENT. How did the gentleman vote?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I voted "aye."

Mr. WOLFENDEN. Mr. President, I do not like the statement of the gentleman from Philadelphia. He places me in a very embarrassing position, it places me in a position where I have nothing else to do except to be coerced into voting for his amendment.

Mr. MUNDY. Mr. President, I think some of the rest of the Senators are concerned in this particular bill. I have sat mutely here. I am concerned in the bill and have stood by and seen action delayed on the bill. I would like to see some kind of action taken on this particular bill and taken tonight. I cannot see why some of these amendments were not put in when the bill was on second reading.

The PRESIDENT. Is there a seconder to the motion of the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro? The Chair hears none.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading as amended?

It was agreed to.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, may I inquire whether this bill is properly before the Senate on third reading and whether the amendment offered by the Senator from Indiana is merely a strike out amendment?

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I understood it is to strike out "six" and insert "four."

Mr. OWLETT. Mr. President, the bill is not being voted on; it is going over for printing, and will appear on the Calendar on final passage tomorrow.

The PRESIDENT. The bill has been amended and now goes over for final passage, and will appear on the final passage Calendar tomorrow.

Ordered, To be laid aside and printed for the use of the Senate.

BILL ON THIRD READING

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now resume consideration of Senate Bill No. 305, (House Bill No. 374), on Page 2 of the Calendar.

Mr. OWLETT. Mr. President, I second the motion.

It was agreed to.

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, House Bill No. 374, on page 2, has been held over from time to time and I should like to see it gotten out of the road. It was sort of tenatively agreed, on the floor of the Senate, that on page 4 of this bill the words "of such register or" should be stricken out. I ask unaimous consent to offer an amendment for that purpose.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I object.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair hears objection.

MOTION TO RECONSIDER

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, I move that the vote by which this bill passed second reading be reconsidered.

The PRESIDENT. How did the Senator from Somerset vote?

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, I voted "Aye."

Mr. OWLETT. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The PRESIDENT. How did the Senator from Tioga vote?

Mr. OWLETT. Mr. President, I voted "Aye."

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. MUNDY. Mr. President, I shall vote against these amendments on the same basis as I acted in opposing the preceeding amendments. I say they should have been presented earlier.

The PRESIDENT. The motion now before the Senate is on the reconsideration of the vote on second reading.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Section 8 In case of annexation all salaried public officials of territory annexed who have therefore been elected for a definite term shall continue to receive during the term for which they were elected the same salaries as they would have received except for such annexation and it shall be the duty of the mayor of such city to assign to such public officials the performance of such suitable services and duties as will be in the public interest of the city and particularly of the annexed portion thereof In cases of non-elective employes of such annexed borough or township they shall so far as possible be employed at corresponding duties by the city in accordance with rules and regulations to be established by city ordinance Tax collectors holding office at the date of annexation shall continue to perform the duties and receive the emoluments of office for the full term for which they were elected but upon the expiration of such term the office shall be abolished within such territory and the duties thereof shall be merged with that of the collector of taxes of such city of the second class A

Section 9 It shall be the duty of the city council of such city to plan for the gradual extension to the annexed territory as financial conditions will warrant of any improved or increased public services theretofore enjoyed by the residents of the said city, and in the meantime to maintain public services in the annexed territory to an extent at least equal to those enjoyed therein prior to annexation

The Chaplain, Rev. Thomas George Baxter, offered the following prayer:

Almighty God, hear and consider our prayer. Keep us very near to Thee as we meet the duties and responsibilities of another day. May we find an inner response to all that is good and true, and an abhorrence for all that is evil and false. Save us from those frivolities that block the wheels of civic progress and stem the tide-flow of a personal service for true usefulness. Lift us above the petty bickerings of partisanship, that we may gaze through the crystal of vibrant patriotism, and hang upon the walls of our hearts the visions of Washington and Lincoln. May the justice, the honor, and the truth of the Galilean Teacher be ours to bless us with that eternal love which he brought to the light of men. Amen.

NAYS—1

Tronzo,

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 333, entitled:

A Joint Resolution proposing an amendment to section eight article five of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. McVAY. Mr. Speaker and ladies and gentlemen of the House, House Bill 333 is a Joint Resolution proposing an amendment to Section eight of Article V of the Constitution. I crave the indulgence of the membership of the House to state a fact that is well known to you all, that in order to amend the Constitution, a joint resolution must pass two consecutive sessions of the Legislature, and then be voted on by the people.

By reason of what is deemed to be confusing language in the resolution, particularly the first part thereof, which reads: "The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania respectively, shall from time to time in turn, detail one or more of their judges," and so forth.

I have in my hand House Bill 946 as introduced in the 1937 session of the Legislature. As originally drafted, it is in the language of the Constitution which reads: "The said courts in the counties of Philadelphia and Allegheny, respectively."

Unfortunately this act was amended so as to read: "The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, respectively, shall from time to time," and so forth.

No doubt the purpose of the amendment was to enable each and every county of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to provide for separate criminal courts. That is all right, that is well and good, if the individual counties should happen to need separate criminal courts, but right now only the counties of Philadelphia and Allegheny have any necessity for separate criminal courts. I should like further to call to the attention of the membership of the House that if this joint resolution should pass for the second time it would then be submitted to a vote of the people, and if approved the resoultion requires that separate criminal courts shall only be established by an act of the Legislature. Notwithstanding the fact that the language in the first part of the joint resolution is confusing. I am of the opinion that the gist of the amendment, the meat of the amendment, is in the latter part which read, "The General Assembly may by law provide for the establishment of separate courts of criminal jurisdiction in counties having courts of oyer and terminer and courts of quarter sessions of the peace."

There has been a demand by several worth while organizations for any number of years favoring the establishment of separate criminal courts, particularly in Allegheny county and as I understand in Philadelphia county. The reason for it is that in Allegheny county for instance we dispose of in our criminal courts, from eight to nine thousand cases a year. The idea of having a separate criminal court is so that judges constantly coming in contact with criminal cases, constantly coming in contact with persons accused of crime become familiar with all types of criminals, and are consequently better able to dispose of the cases before them.

I have before me a communication from one of the justices of the Superior Court of Pennsylvania to the effect that the Superior Court is unanimously in favor of the establishment of separate criminal courts provided, however, that no additional judges are created.

For the benefit of the gentleman from Cambria, Mr. Andrews, no additional judges are provided for and if this amendment should pass and is favorably voted upon by the people I feel that under no circumstances should an act of the Legislature at some future session provide or require or necessitate the creation of any additional judges.

I ask the membership of the House, notwithstanding the confusing clause in the first part of the amendment, since there is a necessity for the creation of a separate criminal court, to vote favorably on this Joint Resolution.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows, viz:

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 99, entitled:

An Act to amend section one, of the act, approved the nineteenth day of June, one thousand nine hundred and eleven (P. L. 1055), entitled "An act authorizing the release on probation of certain convicts, instead of imposing sentences; the appointment of probation and parole officers, and the payment of their salaries and expenses; regulating the manner of sentencing convicts in certain cases, and providing for their release on parole; their conviction of crime during parole, and their rearrest and reconviction for breach of parole; and extending the powers and duties of boards of prison inspectors of penitentiaries", as amended, by permitting the court to suspend sentence and place defendants on probation in cases of conviction of any crime, under certain conditions.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to offer amendments at this time.

The SPEAKER. The amendments will be read by the Clerk for information.

The Clerk read the amendments as follows:

Amend Title, page 1, last line of title, by inserting after the word "crime" the following: "except murder"

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1), page 2, line 19, by removing the light-face bracket before the word "except"

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1), page 2, line 19, by inserting a light-face bracket before the part-word "administer-" as follows "["

The SPEAKER. Will the House give unanimous consent to the insertion of the amendments at this time? Is there objection? The Chair hears none and the amendments will be inserted in accordance with the instructions of the House?

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading as amended?

It was agreed to.

Ordered, That the bill as amended lie over for printing.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 1371, entitled:

An Act to amend the title and further amend and reenact the act, approved the twenty-second day of March, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-two (P. L. 164), entitled "An act to provide for the destruction, and to prevent the spread of Canada Thistles," by extending the provisions of the act to include other weeds.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. THISTLE. Mr. Speaker and ladies and gentlemen of the House, in response to many inquiries from the members of the House as to just what this marihuana is, I wish to explain that marihuana is a weed, the dried leaves and flowers of which when crushed and smoked in cigarette form deadens the nerve centers of the brain causing the baser instincts of the users to become predominant. This drug is habit forming and deadly, causing untold tragedy and leaving human wreckage in its wake. Therefore I feel that all the members of the House will support this bill.

In a lighter and less serious vein you will note that the original bill which is a very old one, and to which this marihuana is an amendment calls for the elimination and destruction of Canada thistles. At this time I trust that none of our members are inspired to legislate to provide for the destrcution of Pennsylvania "thistles" because you will have quite a tough time putting through that legislation.

Mr. ELY. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, just one word in connection with this bill. I think perhaps some of the legislators might be interested in knowing, those who have not had an opportunity to study it, that the word "Chicory", another weed, appears in the title of the bill. That is already in the law and was put in the title simply to clear the title and make it read as it should.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows, viz:

An Act to amend the act approved the twenty-fourth day of June one thousand nine hundred and thirty-seven (Pamphlet Laws two thousand fifty-one) entitled "An act relating to public assistance providing for and regulating assistance to certain classes of persons designated and defined as dependent children aged persons blind persons and other persons requiring relief providing for the administration of this act by the Department of Public Assistance and county boards of assistance hereby created for this purpose authorizing the Department of Public Assistance to cooperate with and to accept and disburse moneys received from the United States Government for assistance to such persons providing for the liquidation of the State Emergency Relief Board Boards of Trustees of the Mothers' Assistance Fund and Boards of Trustees of Pension Fund for the Blind and repealing laws relating to mothers' assistance pensions for the blind old age assistance and the State Emergency Relief Board" defining responsibilty for burial providing for separate administration by county boards of assistance of certain types of public assistance designated "general assistance and pensions" regulating the employment and dismissal of employes therefor authorizing the employment and dismissal of an executive director of general assistance and pensions changing the system of allocation of funds by the Department of Public Assistance changing the powers and duties of county boards authorizing appointment of subcommittees for certain purposes providing for immediate return to assistance rolls of persons accepting temporary employment authorizing appointment of labor review boards to pass on eligibility for assistance of persons refusing offered employment regulating the granting of assistance to aliens and the use of credit agencies changing the definition of dependent children the maximum property allowances for pensions to blind persons and the qualifications for general assistance and changing and adding to penal provisions

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to offer amendments at this time.

The SPEAKER. The amendments will be read by the Clerk for information.

The Clerk read the amendments as follows:

Amend Bill, page 19, by inserting between lines 9 and 10 the following new section: "Section 5. If federal social security funds shall not be provided under the conditions of this act, then all blind persons shall receive pensions of thirty dollars ($30) per month."

Amend Sec. 5, page 19, line 10 by striking out the figure: "5" and inserting in lieu thereof "6"

The SPEAKER. Will the House give unanimous consent to the insertion of the amendments at this time? Is there objection?

Mr. WOODSIDE. Mr. Speaker, inasmuch as there were over forty amendments considered by the House, which were offered by the other side on second reading, I object to the offering of any amendments on third reading.

The SPEAKER. The Chair hears objection and consent is not granted.

MOTION TO RECONSIDER VOTE

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I move that the vote by which this bill was ordered to be transcribed for third reading be reconsidered.

Mr. EDWIN F. THOMPSON. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

The SPEAKER. How did the gentleman from Philadelphia Mr. Levy vote on the question?

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I voted in the majority.

The SPEAKER. How did the gentleman from Philadelphia Mr. Thompson vote on the question?

Mr. EDWIN F. THOMPSON. Mr. Speaker, I voted in the majority.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

It was not agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. VAN ALLSBURG. Mr. Speaker, and members of the House, I do not wish to take up much of your time on House Bill No. 867. The bill was quite thoroughly discussed by the members on the other side of the House when the bill was on second reading, but I would like to take the opportunity this morning to state the main purposes of the bill, and particularly to call your attention later on to the charge that we are about to play politics and that they say this a ripper bill.

This bill is the result of many weeks, yea months of study, intensive study, by at least thirty of the leading minds of the House of Representatives and the Senate, and it also has had the cooperation of some of the leaders on the other side of the House. We are confronted with a proposition that we have got to face. We no longer can spend a hundred million dollars, approximately, per year for relief. It is a drag, yes, it threatens the very life blood of industry and business because of this huge relief load.

Friends, we are financially distressed in many ways and our school districts, for example, are suffering as the result of it. It is a problem that we must face. It is so great, so destructive to business and to enterprise, that unless we do something, at least to see to it that those who are on relief and are not entitled to it should be stricken from the rolls, and we also should enact legislation to encourage employment, because it is after all a matter of employment. That there is unmployment on a large scale there is no question, I am sure. I want to quote to you in that connection a statement that appeared recently in one of our local papers. I quote to you from the Poll of the American Institute of Public Opinion—the well known Gallop Poll which in 1936 displayed the accuracy of its observations by predicting the overwhelming victory of President Roosevelt for reelection. This report by the way is dated April 26, and the question put was this:

> "Do you think there are any persons on relief in your community who could get jobs in private industry if they tried?"

The answer is that sixty-nine per cent believe that they were able to get jobs if they tried.

The second question put to them was this:

> "In your opinion, what proportion of persons on relief in your community could obtain jobs if they tried."

The answer was that the average figure was twenty five per cent, or one reliefer in every four, they believed in every community could get jobs.

Friends, you know as well as I do, we have all been talking about this problem, and we are conscious of the fact that there are people on relief who are not worthy because of the fact that they have not accepted employment when they could get it. We also know that there are a great many on relief who are not eligible for it. In other words, they are "Chiselers." That cannot be proven, but we all know it is so. In the light, as I say, of these studies that have been made we would be derelict in our duty if we didn't see to it as a Legislature if we don't cut off from relief all persons except those who are really in need.

That was the problem before us. There is no man here, no representative who is not in favor of granting relief to people who through no fault of their own need it, and grant it adequately. Our problem is to purge the rolls of those who are not in need, those who are chiseling, and those who could get work if they wanted it. That is our problem.

I want to say, although we are accused of playing politics in the writing of this bill, with all candor, members of the Legislature, that none of us thought a thing about politics, we were trying to find the solution to this important problem. It is above politics absolutely. It is a serious matter. I believe and I know that you believe that unless we get this matter under control and confined to only those who are deserving, it will break down under its own weight, it will bring ruin not only to those who pay the bill, but there will not be relief for anybody. It is just as important to anyone who is on relief as it is to us who are paying the bill; just as important that we cooperate in confining this matter at least to those who are in need. It is a serious problem.

We have proposed, in order to cope with this situation, to endeavor to make the people in the local communities conscious of the fact that they can help in this matter. I am very happy to quote a few lines from a Democratic sheet—I thought I had it with me, but apparently I have not—this article appeared in the Johnstown Democrat and was written by our good friend on the opposite side of the House in which he heartily cooperated in the thought that this is a local proposition and we are never going to solve it until we get the local people interested in it. We would like to have the counties bear a part of the expense, and have local offices elected to the county boards on whom may be placed the blame for any maladministration of relief, and not until we do that are we really going to fully conquer this problem, but some of the counties just at the present time seem not to be in position to bear one penny of expense. We have gone as far in the direction of home rule, decentralization of relief, as possible under the circumstances. Now then how are we going to cope with this problem? We are giving the local board as now set up additional authority and power, the duties of these boards are outlined very specifically in the bill with which I think you are familiar, and friends we are doing this, we believe. I don't know what every man in this House thinks about this problem. We believe that the crux of this whole problem lies in the relative ability to get the facts by investigation of individuals as to their actual needs, as to whether they are eligible for assistance. We put that question before every group that appeared before us. Even the Department of Assistance acknowledged that undoubtedly that was the crux of the problem. As long as we have the young, immature type of high school boys and girls fresh from college, who lack experience in life, immature of mind and background, as long as we have hundreds of those in the employ of the Department of Assistance, we are not going to get results. As long as trained social workers throughout the state can maintain relief rolls, as long, friends, as these social workers have the privilege of the merit system, civil service, how can we expect results? They naturally depend for the continuity of their jobs upon keeping the rolls up. In other words, they feed and profit on the misery of people. There is the proposition. It is perfectly natural, it is only human and I imagine I would probably be doing the same they are, if my very life's job depended upon it. I am not opposed to civil service, friends, neither are you. We are all in favor of the merit system but the trouble in this case is that it is misapplied, as I say, because they are more interested naturally, a great many of them, not all of them, they are more interested in keeping up the rolls than they are in reducing those relief rolls, therefore, friends, to apply civil service to that particular work in the counties is a misapplication of a noble principal and it will not work. It wll not work, I repeat. We have given the local boards power to employ or dismiss their employees whenever they see fit on the basis of the number of employees they need, and when those employees are not doing the job, well, they can be dismissed without any great difficulty. You know, members, it is the same as Teachers' Tenure. In government jobs it is not an easy thing to get those people out once they get in. May I say this to you in all sincerity, I believe this, if we do not look out, friends, by unionizing the different departments of government, it won't be long before we will not be able to say and think as Lincoln did when he said, "This is a government of the people, by the people, and for the people," because when these groups become the prey of selfish groups, which organize and control them to accomplish their particular ends, then they are going to gang up on us and we will have a government not of the people, by the people and for the people, but a government by and for the employees.

We have received literally thousands of protests, a lot of them coming largely from two groups, first, the Workers Alliance. Who is the Workers' Alliance? I quote from the Erie Dispatch Herald of March 27, 1939, which reads:

> "The Workers' Alliance was born of the depression. According to Earl Browder, Secretary of the Communist Party of America, the Alliance represents one of the 'popular fronts' which has the backing of the Communist Party, many of whose members are its active leaders."

Likewise, friends, the other large group, who are they? They are the C.I.O. affiliates of the state of Pennsylvania. Our own workers here in the Department of Public Assistance, they are unionized and they are affiliated with the C.I.O. So I say, we have come to a dangerous position, when we permit them to tell us what we should do in this Legislature for the people of Pennsylvania. This is a serious problem and we must face it as a serious matter. I believe we must now take the bit in our teeth and do what we should do.

The idea of establishing public assistance on a permanent basis is entirely wrong as I have tried to show you, but we were criticized. By the way, that is one of the chief features of the Goodrich plan as we have it incorporated in the present law, and as long as we have it, and as long as relief is administered on that basis as a permanent function of government, as long as we have that system, we are not going to get this matter under control.

I quote from an editorial in the Harrisburg Patriot, a paper published by Vance McCormick, a former Democratic National Chairman, which is one of the outstanding Democratic papers in Pennsylvania. The Patriot said on April 18, 1939:

> "It is quite possible that some persons are sincere in their view that permanent relief is unavoidable. There are self-centered persons who hope and pray that present conditions will never change. In this group are some who have jobs under relief and on the other side those who get relief without jobs."

This is certainly quite well put.

Speaking about politics and relief, I resent that charge. You may call it a "ripper" measure if you choose for political reasons, but that was the fartherest thought in the minds of the men who framed this bill, and this bill represents not only the work of the leading men on the Hill, as I say, but very high outstanding people all over the state.

Just one other thing that I want to say, and then I will be through. Relief seems to be exceedingly attractive; we must make it less attractive. I stepped into half a dozen stores two weeks ago.

I said to a gentleman in the shoe business: "Mr. Retailer, you find it very difficult to sell your merchandise, do you not, because styles in shoes change so often. I should think you would have a great many headaches over that."

He said, "Yes, and the biggest headache is the fact that we used to be able to sell, at the close of the season, at half price, or at a reduced price, our stock readily to poor people, but now those who are on relief want the latest word in the goods they buy."

The same way with clothing. Friends, I am pleading with you. I will first suggest to you, and then I will close, that if you were to call at the average home today of people who are not on relief, I daresay you will find all sorts of clothing that is going to waste because there is no longer a call for it. The people back home are indifferent because we are paying the bill here at Harrisburg and those goods are just going to waste. We must get back to local control in this matter.

I spoke longer than I had expected, and I thank you for your kind attention.

Mr. ACHTERMAN. Mr. Speaker, on Monday the Democratic party made a conscientious and real effort to amend House Bill 67 to the end that at least it would be an operative piece of legislation, one that would not only alleviate suffering in the Commonwealth but would be sufficiently understandable that it would be able to be operated. I realize that the ordinary procedure would be to make a motion to recommit this bill for the purpose of seeing that it really received some study, and certainly to receive such amendments that we could subsequently feel proud of the type of legislation we passed. However, since the Republican party seems to be so intent on passing this measure, regardless of its many defects, I shall not make the motion that I mentioned.

I do, Mr. Speaker, however, desire to just recount briefly what the majority party is trying to do under this bill. First of all, Mr. Speaker, they divide relief into two types, designating one as special and the other as general assistance. The reasons for making those distinctions are apparent. There is an effort to secure from the federal government contributions toward blind pensions. Perhaps the desire is commendable, but I am very fearful, as I said on Monday evening, that we are going to place the blind in such a position that we will destroy all of the past legislation that this state feels so proud of in relation to the blind. In other words, the only excuse that I heard on Monday evening why you should do that was the fact that the Republican party, in the first instance granted blind pensions, and I presume they advance on the theory that the Republican party gave, and the Republican party will take away.

The second reason for the division is even more apparent and less commendable. The object, of course, is in order to establish two types of employees and by so doing destroy the civil service bill that was enacted in 1937, not as the gentleman has stated, because that they are opposed to civil service but for the reason that they cannot give out jobs if civil service or merit is a part of this system.

Let us see what actually happens in the districts and how you are going to work your county officers if you carry out the intent of this bill. First of all, you are going to have two executive directors in your county. In other words, each office will have two heads, and unless I miss my guess, Mr. Speaker, we will find the two heads moving in opposite directions, which will result in confusion that each man in this House can visualize. Added to that, you are going to have two types of employees in your office, you are going to have those who are under civil service, those who are secure in their positions, and you are going to have those who are going to be politically appointed, and no one for one second has any doubt that that is your intent. You must, of course, have those four thousand jobs. You are perfectly willing to wreck the system of relief in Pennsylvania as long as you have the jobs.

Let us see your excuse for doing that. You state that there are chiselers. As I recall, the gentleman from Erie stated that he knew there were chiselers but he couldn't prove it. I don't feel, Mr. Speaker, that a man should come into this House, any responsible individual, and say, "I know but I can't prove it, therefore let us have a law". I feel if such a condition does exist in Pennsylvania, it is susceptible of proof, and once it is proven, then and only then should we move. Certainly the bills that were passed in 1937 contained sufficient remedies, sufficient methods and sufficient penalties to destroy and effectually punish chiselers.

The gentleman from Erie, Mr. Van Allsburg stated, I believe in the theory that this is a local problem. I can agree in part with that theory, but not in its entirety. Unemployment and the consequent relief problem is not solely a local problem, it is not the result essentially of local conditions, but rather nation wide and world wide conditions. As a consequence the problem becomes state wide and nationally wide and should consequently be treated and acted upon by the state, the nation, and the local communities. I can agree with the gentleman to the end that local officials should be given power so that they can work toward the effective operation of legislation pertaining to relief, but I connot agree with the gentleman in the position that we should make it one of politics. I cannot help but recall the campaign pledges and the campaign statements of Arthur James when he went before the people of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and said that when he became Governor there would be instituted the greatest divorce case in Pennsylvania, the divorce of relief from politics.

I realize, Mr. Speaker, that the Secretary of the Department of Public Assistance has maintained that the Governor of the state of Pennsylvania does not want relief tampered with in Pennsylvania, but that, Mr. Speaker, is quite obviously only a smoke screen.

Here is what the Governor of Pennsylvania wants: He wants to go back on that promise of his, just another broken promise. How can you conceive, Mr. Speaker, of politics not being involved in a measure such as this, when he says, "Yes, we will name the local board and we will take four thousand employes and hand them to the local boards." If there had been a bit of sincerity in the thought of the majority party, then one of the amendments that I offered on Monday evening would have been adopted, the amendment that would have seen to it that the members of the board would be elected by the local citizens. Then the individuals back home would at least have control and to a measure you would eliminate politics.

I made, Mr. Speaker, another proposition to the majority members of the House. I said to them, "If you are serious about taking politics out of relief, then let us elect back home for the local board either two individuals or four individuals and see that no majority of individuals come from any party. In other words, if two there would be one from the majority party and one from the minority party. That is bi-partisan control and is as near as you or I could get to a non-partisan administration of relief. Mr. Speaker, it is obvious and certain that there is no desire on the part of the majority party of this House or their Governor to take politics out of relief. They are going even further, they are insisting on putting more politics in relief. They are not satisfied to conduct examinations for their employes, they wish to appoint them for the purpose of being assured that politics will be in relief.

Let us take another step in the things they propose to do in this bill. They propose to see that the recipients of relief shall work. I don't believe any member of this House is opposed to permitting individuals to work for the money they receive, but why in the world didn't you put into the bill that that work should be on the basis in relation to the prevailing wage scale in the county. Do you propose to make slave labor out of the recipients of relief? Are you going to leave your county boards make slaves of the relief recipients? Are you going to leave your appointive boards make slaves of the relief recipients? What other conclusion, Mr. Speaker, can we draw from this bill?

So on down. Mr. Speaker, I can comment on one hundred different phases of this bill but may I instead, Mr. Speaker, read into the records some of the comments of the press in relation to this bill? Here is one comment:

> "The Republican majority in the Legislature evidently has made up its mind to ignore all protests and rip out the civil service system that now protects the employes of the Public Assistance Department.
> "The Van Allsburg bill, which will take 4000 jobs out of the civil service class, has come out of committee and is in a position for final passage. All indications are that the Republican bloc in the House will be solidly behind it.
> "Thus, another major plank in the Republican state platform of 1938 is about to be tossed out of the window. And from his statements, the platform-scrapping evidently is being done with the tacit approval of Governor Arthur H. James."

I go, Mr. Speaker, a step further and I say, not only with the tacit approval, but with the blessing of the Governor. The article then goes on and states as follows:

"Although Mr. James raised his hands in horror last fall over the patronage-grabbing activities of the Democats, he now apparently sees nothing wrong in a Republican grab that in size surpasses anything the Democrats ever attempted. Moreover, he seems to have conveniently forgotten his pre-election statement of last fall when he announced that upon inauguration he intended to file the 'largest divorce suit ever filed in Pennsylvania, a divorce between politics and relief.' This is a divorce suit all right, but between civil service and relief.

"There are no valid arguments that can be offered in defense of the Van Allsburg bill. It is simply a gigantic ripper. And its only purpose is to give 4000 relief administrative jobs, jobs that by their very nature calls for skilled and trained personnel, to 'deserving' Republicans. The politicians simply are endeavoring to build up a formidable political machine at the public's expense.

"The politicans responsible for the Van Allsburg bill probably are congratulating themselves for having thought of this wholesale patronage grab. Actually, they have only demonstrated their own lack of political foresight by trying to ram such measures as this down the public's throat.

"For political victories in Pennsylvania are no longer made possible by powerful machines build upon payrollers. If they were, the Democrats, whose patronage last fall far exceeded that of the present Republican regime, should have won in a walk.

"That they didn't is a warning to the Republicans that Pennsylvania voters base their decisions upon performance in office, not upon how much patronage is handed out and that all the patronage in the world can't save a bad administration. Unfortunately, Governor James and the Republican legislators do not seem inclined to heed that warning."

May I read into the record the comment of the Press from the opposite side of the State from that I last read. It says: "The Worst Relief Bill Ever."

I am in hearty accord with that statement, Mr. Speaker, I feel that we were infinitey bad when we passed the Goodrich bill in 1937. No one has any doubt as to my position on that bill in 1937. I felt that we could not do worse than that then. Very frankly, Mr. Speaker, this out-does the Goodrich bill. Now, quoting further from the Press:

"Before election, the Republican party promised to "humanize relief" and "take relief out of politics."

The Republic organization is ramming through the Legislature the Van Allsburg bill which—

1. Requires applicants for blind pensions to take a "means test."

2. Throws administration of relief into the hands of county boards in spite of (or perhaps because of) the fact that every survey ever made has shown that the more emphasis is placed on local control the more deeply politics enters into relief.

3. Rips out the jobs of 4000 employes now protected from political pressure by Civil Service and replaces them with 4000 employes who will not be protected by Civil Service.

If the authors of this bill had set out frankly to put relief into politics as far as possible—they would have emerged with just about the present bill.

The Van Allsburg bill is supposed to have the quiet approval of Governor James. If that is true, how can the Governor square his stand with his campaign promise—

"Under me as Governor the people of Pennsylvania will never see the day when if they need relief or bread and butter (W. P. A. jobs) they will have to turn to political slavery."

Under the Van Allsburg bill, much of the administrative power will be concentrated in the county boards subject to the pressure of county politics. We shudder to think what that will mean here in Philadelphia.

Every Republican division committeeman will assume the power to give or withhold the necessities of life from the needy. These county assistance boards will have no practical check upon them, except the staff of 400 State employes, who—unprotected by civil service—will be open to exactly the same sort of pressure as will operate upon the county boards.

The bill contains other provisions designed to bring out to the fullest the worst features of the political setup outlined above.

It contains a provision that relief recipients must work if required to do so by the State.

That looks like a provision to "kick the loafers off relief." But is it?

What are these work projects the State intends to establish?

We have heard of none. There has been no recognition in the budget estimates or elsewhere that work relief will necessarily cost more than home relief and extra appropriation must be made for it.

The only real purpose of the no-work-no-dole provision would be to allow political boards an excuse for refusing relief. They could tell unemployed clerks or unemployed women to go to work on the highways or get off the relief rolls.

The Van Allsburg bill is the worst relief measure ever seriously proposed in the United States.

Does the rank-and-file of the Republican party stand behind this barefaced attempt to play politics with human misery?"

I can give my whole-hearted approval, Mr. Speaker, to that editorial. I can say honestly, sincerely and truthfully that this bill is far worse than the Goodrich bill which we passed in 1937. Mr. Speaker, I appeal to the members of the House not to take this step, and vote against this bill.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, I recall very distinctly about two weeks ago we had before the House a bill called the fireworks bill. At that time, if my memory serves me correctly, a member on the Republican side of the House on third reading of that bill attempted to place before the House an amendment. Apparently the Republican party, unlike the Speaker of this House, felt that the fireworks bill was far more important than the Van Allsburg bill on relief, because at that time Mr. Trout of Lancaster was permitted to introduce an amendment, and today on third reading of this bill I was denied that right. So Mr. Speaker, I want to take the time of this House to explain to them exactly the purpose I had in mind.

If the gentlemen of the House will recall, on Monday evening when this bill was up for second reading, I read into the record a telegram that the Governor of Pennsylvania had sent to the blind of Pennsylvania concerning his attitude on blind pensions. I think, for emphasis, it would be proper for me to read it into the record once again for the purpose of following it up with a letter sent to a gentleman in Philadelphia from the Governor's office only five days ago. That telegram, ladies and gentlemen of the House, sent in October, 1938, by Arthur H. James, reads as follows:

"When I announced my candidacy for Governor last January, I stated that 'we must have adequate pensions for the blind.' That I mean. The pensions must be adequate; they must be certain. Further, there must be a complete divorce of this form of assistance from any kind of political influence, racketeering or control. The blind of this state have my earnest pledge that as Governor I will safeguard their interest to the full extent of my ability. There is a chapter in my life which makes my interest in the problems and assistance of the blind very deep indeed. About ten years ago my own eyes failed me. In my case, as the result of the fortunate outcome of a delicate and uncertain operation, my sight was saved. But no one who passed through the valley of darkness as I did will ever forget his fellowship with those who must spend their lives in that valley."

Members of the House, on April 26, 1939, the Governor's secretary, in a communication to a gentleman in Philadelphia, had this to say concerning his promise regarding the blind:

"Thank you for your letter of April 24th and for the helpful comments and suggestions contained in it.

"Governor James' position on the blind question has been misunderstood in some quarters, and many of the letters which came to him do not meet the actual issues of the question. The Governor has not favored any change i nthe blind pension setup which would mean a reduction to any blind person now qualified for a pension. Whether on relief or pension, they would receive at least thirty dollars a month. Neither is there any thought of changing the conditions under which this Thirty Dollars is to be received.

"On the other hand, since the Federal Government has set aside a large sum of money to help support blind persons who could qualify for relief on a needs basis, and further, since the fiscal needs of this state are most urgent, the Governor has suggested that an attempt be made to amend the Pennsylvania blind pension laws to qualify for obtaining the Commonwealth's share of this money. This in no way affects the right of every blind person to receive thirty dollars a month. In some cases, of course, it means that certain blind individuals would receive more—those entitled to more on a relief basis than they now receive on a pension basis."

Ladies and gentlemen of the House we have on the one hand a telegram of October 1938, and on the other hand we have a communication from the Governor relating to his stand on taxes as of April 26, 1939. I charge today that the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the Republican leadership of this House have not kept their promise to the blind. We have in support of that a written record.

Ladies and gentlemen of the House, most likely many of us will be surprised at the introduction of this Van Allsbur_ bill to the House. I for one am not, because as far back as April 1st, 1939 the Department of Public Assistance under the direction of the Governor of the Commonwealth announced that beginning on that day a relief applicant will have to sign a bond which permits the state to levy on any property he has now or may acquire until enough has been sold to pay back to the state every penny advanced on relief. Ladies and gentlemen of the House we have nothing on this side of the House, but contempt for relief chiselers. If the purpose of the proposed bond were merely to keep chiselers in Pennsylvania off the relef rolls I for one would not object to this policy, but this bond scheme, ladies and gentlemen of the House, is something else. It is in reality a pauper's oath. It is as one of the newspapers has described it, one of the most degrading propositions ever made to the unfortunate people of Pennsylvania. Worse, it is a proposal which makes the dole about twice as humiliating as ti is now, at the same time it destroys, not encourages, as Mr. Van Allsburg pointed out, every incentive, which the members of the legislature have tried to install by this bill, of the people on relief to improve their lot and secure employment. What benefit under this policy of signing your future heritage away have the unemployed of Pennsylvania; what incentive to go out and find a job for fifteen or sixteen dollars a week, when the state Department of Public Assistance now demands that immediately after they earn one week's salary they must turn back as much as they can to the Department of Public Assistance in repayment of the relief benefits which they obtained some three or four years ago. It is pointed out that the relief clients who receive money from any source at a later date would certainly be compelled to repay the state every penny of relief they have received under the confession of judgment clause in this bond. Now, ladies and gentlemen of the House, in other words this great idea of humanized relief as promised by Governor James, did not crumble at the introduction of the Van Allsburg bill, it began to crumble as far back as the beginning of last month when Governor James and his Republican Secretary of the Department of Public Assistance compelled each and every applicant for relief to sign a bond, compelling them to repay every penny that they received on relief, if they earn any money in the future.

My friends, the people of Philadelphia especially are concerned with the problem of relief because on the one hand we have a City Council which has tied up one million dollars as an allotment for WPA jobs, and on the other hand we have a state department that denies today the right to every unemployed man and woman to come into the relief offices of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and out of respect and pride for their families attempt to make out an application for relief. I have the greatest respect for Mr. Van Allsburg. I was a member of the legislature with him in the 1937 session, and I for one feel when he makes a statement, he has the courage of his conviction to so do, he believes in what he says, but I regret to say that the statements made by the gentleman from Erie are far from the truth. Maybe these thirty genuises on relief that drafted this Van Allsburg's bill did not know the relief problem in Pennsylvania. Mr. Van Allsburg says that the reason the Republican party is ripping out four thousand social service workers is because they feel the social service workers in attempting to maintain their jobs are raising the relief rolls. I wonder after the Republican party rips out the Department of Public assistance, as it is constituted today, and according to the Van Allsburg's bill permits the Governor to fire at random executive director of the Commonwealth, which he has already done, and then place on the executive Board in the counties men who are politically active in Pennsylvania and then goes down the line and rips out the socially trained workers and replaces them with Republican workers and Republican Committeemen, I wonder how many Republican Committeemen working as social service workers will attend to their jobs and not permit the relife rolls to go up when they know that their jobs solely depend upon the maintenance of high relief rolls in Pennsylvania.

In other words, the gentleman from Erie, and I want to be frank, says this: "We are going to rip out social service workers and replace them with Republican loyal committeemen. They are going to see that the relief job in Pennsylvania is properly administered." I say to Mr. Van Allsburg, in the same breath, when he mentions the name of Abraham Lincoln, he should study the life of Abraham Lincoln. I wonder if Abraham Lincoln would agree to a proposition so disgraceful as that proposed by the Republican members. Then again Mr. Van Allsburg, as was the wont of the Republican party in the past, pulls across the trail the red herring of Communism. He has stated that the only people that are against the Van Allsburg bill are the Worker's Alliance in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, who, as he said, Earle Browder, the Secretary of the Communist party, claims was born out of the depression. I say to Mr. Van Allsburg, if he insists on this type of argument, if the Republican organization insists upon passing legislation of this kind, we are not going to have 200,000 Communists in America, we are going to have them by the million, because the first thing that changes any American from his principles of government is starvation. That is the groundwork on which Communism, Fascisism, Nazism or any other "isms" on which European dictatorship thrives, and I charge the Republican organization by this bill with attempting to starve out millions of people in Pennsylvania.

Mr. Speaker and members of the House, my colleague from Monroe has said before, we can speak for hours on this bill, but the bill is so entirely defective and dangerouse that it would be useless to attempt to change the minds of the people on the other side of the House, when the orders have gone down that the Van Allsburg bill must pass. I only trust to God, for the welfare of the citizens of Pennsylvania, that the other chamber of this Assembly will see to it that this bill will be torn and burned.

Mr. Speaker and members of the House, in the Governor's deceptive attitude concerning the blind of Pennsylvania he also, in his acquiescence to the Van Allsburg bill, deceived thousands of people now receiving old age assistance. I wonder if there is any member in this House who knows that this bill also restricts certain people that would have received old age assistance this year. I wonder if the Republican leadership realized that when they inserted in this bill the provisions that a person applying for old age assistance must be a resident in Pennsylvania, must live in Pennsylvania at one address for two years, instead of the actual one year under the 1937 act, they are going to deprive hundreds of old age applicants who might have received old age assistance in the year 1939. I wonder what impels the Republican organization in Pennsylvania to pass a piece of legislation of this type. I have often wondered, since reading the bill, since its introduction, whether the only purpose was to secure four thousand jobs and rip out four thousand civil service jobs, and I have come to the conclusion that that cannot be the only reason, because the heaps of criticism that will be levelled at the Republican organization, I feel is such that the Republican organization would not attempt to pass this bill for that one reason. I believe that the reason is two-fold. Governor James promised a reduction in taxes. He could not reduce taxes, and he knew it at the time of his campaign. On the other hand, is he attempting to take bread and butter from the unemployed of Pennsylvania so that he might say to his banker and industrialist friends that he is cutting down the expenses of the government. Where naturally would he come to to cut down these expenses than to a Department that will spend during the next biennium, according to statistics, over two hundred million dollars. Certainly he is going to take it from the unemployed and the unfortunate reliefer in Pennsylvania.

Mr. Speaker and members of the House, I only want to say in closing that I realize that many pieces of legislation have been passed in this House, and on both sides of the Legislature from time to time they have been guilty of certain acts that caused their own downfall. I say to the Republican membership of this House, and I say to Governor James, that if the Van Allsburg bill passes Governor James and the Republican organization stands condemned before the people of Pennsylvania.

Mr. TRONZO. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, for purposes of clarifying the record, when the Van Allsburg Bill, to make jobs for faithful Republican district workers, was conceived, the Democratic members of the Committee on Welfare were not present—the select Republican members of the Committee met in secret, (a usual procedure under this Republican administration) and when the Democrats were finally notified to attend a meeting of the Committee, the "Job-Grab" Van Allsburg Bill was ready for presentation. Some of us Committee members feel that maybe we were kept out because you wanted to dish out some of the spoils—so. this very day, as we discuss the demerits of this ugly and brutal job-grab, many of you Republican House members may be "licking your chops" in anticipation of some juicy morsel that the enactment of this measure will place within your reach. Or is Governor James trying to ride into the White House on the backs of people who are physically and financially handicapped.

I know something about the promises you on the Republican side of the House made. You promised jobs to every Tom, Mary and Moe—and you did it because you didn't anticipate winning—yes, I surmise that you decided, that if you weren't going to win, 1000 promises would be as good as one. Since you are now so hardpressed to keep those promises you have made, you are going to junk the merit system in the Department of Public Assistance—you're going to rip out the best civil service setup this State has ever had the good fortune to establish. The merit system in the D. P. A. is not perfect, but it certainly is a step forward.

The creation of this department has worked some injustices, true enough, but sizing it up, not from the point of view of an elected public official, but strictly as a citizen, it has been a godsend to the citizens of Pennsylvania—and the greatest tribute that can be paid the merit system section in the Department of Public Assistance, is, that the politicians of both major parties, the stupid ones of course, are opposed to it. Of course, the smart or intelligent Republican politicians should be for the system. as it now exists, because there are only 4000 jobs involved for political distribution, to the Republican District heelers throughout the State—and all of these 4000 can not get the political ax. You will have to keep many of them in order to do the work of the political drones that you're going to place on the D. P. A. payroll; but even if you were to dismiss all of them, you made so many promises, that even if the number were 40,000, you would still need another 140,000 to satisfy the rest of the patronage seekers who were promised (plums).

Did it ever occur to those of you who are so intent on this plunder as to what will happen to the recipients of relief, under a Ward Chairman setup? Aren't they miserable enough now with the small pittance that is dished out to them by a reluctant State Administration? Why should these poor unfortunates, who have been shelved, temporarily, I hope, by industry, and who have undergone all of the insults and miseries that any people could possibly undergo, be forced to sink to an even lower level, and bow to the whims of some Joe Bloak, the Assistant to the Assistant of the Republican District Chairman? Need I, my Republican House members, go further in dissuading you from breaking those promises you shouldn't have made?

If my memory serves me well, on one other occasion I informed you that neither jobs nor broken promises were going to maintain your party in power; for you now have an intelligent electorate to contend with, and it vehemently objects to broken pledges, and is on record in its opposition to the spoil system. The electorate demands, and has a right to expect a decent and intelligent personnel—and though you might be successful in ripping out the civil service provisions in the Department of Public Assistance, this base action will haunt you in your slumbers, and will return to torment you at the next election; as a matter of fact, you will find, much to your chagrin that a political party whose only function is to exploit the spoils system, for existance, won't remain in power for long—and I'll venture a prophesy right here and now—to those of you who are going to vote for this brazen "Van Allsburg job-grab" ripper bill, you are only going to serve two terms—your first and your last—

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Levy.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. LEVY. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, may I ask the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Levy, what he knows about the administration of relief.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, in answer to the gentleman, I would say that is a very broad question and a very important one. I do not know what to say to the gentleman beside the fact that during my term as a member of the House in 1937, in the special session of 1938 and at the present time I have taken a very active interest in relief problems, especially because I come from a district that is frightfully affected by any bill relating to relief.

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, may I ask the gentleman from Philadelphia how many persons there are on relief in Philadelphia at the present time.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, we have in Philadelphia approximately—

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, I would ask the gentleman to make a guess if he cannot tell us exactly.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman mean how many people in my district are on relief?

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, no, how many people in Philadelphia do they have on relief?

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I would not be in a position to say regarding the entire city, but I could make an intelligent answer in regard to my district. I have been informed by the last bulletin of the Department that we have approximately over half a million on relief.

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, how much money is spent in Philadelphia on relief annually?

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, the money spent in Philadelphia at the present time is approximately six hundred thousand dollars per week.

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman know how much the case costs are, what is the average case cost in Philadelphia?

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman would know the problem of relief in Pennsylvania he would not ask me a question of that kind.

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Philadelphia has been talking about the administration of relief and I wanted to know whether he knew anything about the situation in Philadelphia.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman on the other side would know the relief situation in Pennsylvania he would know that the basic cost is not considered in individual cases but is set by the Legislature, and we get a percentage of the gross appropriations per biennium.

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, it seems to me if he does not know the situation in his own home town, he should not talk on the administration of relief.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman said what?

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, I think that the gentleman from Philadelphia should not talk on the administration of relief and accuse the Republicans of putting up a terrible relief bill if he is not acquainted with the relief situation in his own home city.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I might say to the gentleman, as far as his questions are concerned, I think I have answered them fairly. Does the gentleman wish to ask any more questions?

Mr. DIX. Yes, Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask another question. Who passed the law that provided for liens against property in order to get relief?

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I think the question of the gentleman was answered in full, in the Goodrich Bill of 1937, but to my recollection, in my remarks on the subject of the Van Allsburg bill, I did not refer to that phase of the bill, but referred to the policy pursued by the Department of Public Assistance in Harrisburg on April 1, 1939 under the direction of Governor Arthur H. James, compelling each relief applicant to sign a bond, containing a confession of judgment. That policy was not instituted in any year of the Earle administration.

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, was that law not on the books during the Earle administration?

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, yes.

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, why did they not enforce it?

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, because that particular Governor in his wisdom on relief matters felt that the inclusion of this feature of the Goodrich Bill was a burden on the relief recipients in Pennsylvania, and had inferred to the secretary of the Department of Public Assistance from time to time that the enforcement of this feature of the bill would prove entirely too burdensome upon the tax payers and upon the relief recipients.

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, in other words, Governor Earle did not enforce his own law.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I did not say that. I only say what I said before, that Governor Earle, in his wisdom and humaneness, felt that that portion of the bill should not be enforced to the letter of the law, because of the fact that it would bring entirely too much of a hardship upon relief recipients.

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, I understood the gentleman to say that there was politics in the setting up of the present board. Does the gentleman mean to say that there was not politics in the setting up of the old board?

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I reiterate, in the entire Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, under the Goodrich law, and the Republican members may snear and snicker and laugh, but I charge each Republican member with bringing before this House one instance where the control of relief was based on politics in any of the sixty-seven counties of the Commonwealth.

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman did not answer my question, was there any politics in the political set up of the relief board under the Earle Administration?

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, there were positively no politics, to my knowledge, and if the gentleman is referring to WPA work, he is not adherring to the original bill.

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Philadelphia, of course knows that the majority of the boards were Democratic boards and they were selected very largely for their political activities, at least they were in my county, and I think you will find it true in other counties.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, in answer to the gentleman, you men and women know that I come from Philadelphia, and speaking on the relief measures should know something about the Philadelphia branch of the relief system. I say to him in conformity with his request that I am not familiar with other boards within the Commonwealth, but I know that the board in Philadelphia appointed by Governor Earle was one of the finest non-partisan relief boards in the United States, and I might further tell the gentleman that the chairman of that board was one Mr. Staples, the president of the Bell Telephone Company, who I must admit is not a Democrat. In Allegheny County, Mr. Speaker, the majority of the members of the board, I understand from the Republican delegation from Allegheny County, were in the majority Republicans and not Democratic.

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, I think it is very evident from the remarks of the gentleman from Philadelphia that he knows little about the relief situation in Philadelphia?

Mr. Speaker and members of the House, I have in my hand a statement made by Robert L. Johnson Relief Administrator under Governor Earle. This statement was made on April 26, 1935. I understand one of the previous speakers on the Democratic side of the House said there were no chislers, at least if there were, they were very few.

I would like to read this statement:

"As to chiselers—in every group of one thousand families, some folks will lie and defraud."

"We want to know who the chiselers are. We want to land every head of a family, who is deliberately defrauding the State, in jail. That is where he belongs. I have no patience with anyone who would take any money under false pretenses under any circumstances, and our county staffs know that every deliberate case of chiseling is to be prosecuted at the earliset possible moment. There is only one sure way of eliminating the cheaters, and that is—sound, intelligent investigation, backed up by the support and help of interested citizens in each locality."

Now, Mr. Speaker, that statement was made in 1935. As I said that there was no effort made to find these chiselers until the Republican party was elected in November of 1938. I would like to read another statement from a very prominent Democrat which I think will be interesting. This was sent to me back in November. At that time I did not know the gentleman. This statement goes on to say:

> "No party can maintain a relief system by administering the Goodrich Act in its present form and survive very many state elections.
> "When the Goodrich Act was pending in the Legislature the Democrats said the measure, if enacted, plus the social workers, would lick the party. Our prediction came true. Moreover, the social workers, if given their head, will lick the Republican Party. They will lick any party upon whose shoulders they ride."

Mr. Speaker and members of the House, I will read another extract from this editorial:

> "Taken by and large, the Goodrich Act licked the Democratic Party. It will lick the Republicans if they stick to it tight enough. Common sense—political common sense at least—calls for the decentralization of relief activities. No Administration is ever strong enough to shoulder all of the mistakes a statewide relief organization is certain to make. Responsibility for the supervision of relief activities should once again be vested in county organizations. Centralized relief under state auspices licked Gifford Pinchot, it licked George Earle and it will lick Arthur James. Mark the prediction."

Mr. Speaker, this statement was made by none other than my good friend from Cambria County, Mr. Andrews. It appeared in the Johnstown Democrat.

I would like to give a little picture of the situation in the rural counties and what happened to relief. Back in 1933 the cost of administering relief was one hundred fifty dollars per month. Today it is three hundred dollars per month. In the first year of the administration of the Talbot Act the cost of administration of relief in Wayne county was approximately five thousand dollars. Today it is forty thousand dollars for the county and probably ten thousand dollars for the administration of the Wayne County end of relief from Harrisburg. I do believe that the Van Allsburg bill is a start in the right direction, and the relief situation will never be completely cured until the cost of administration are paid by the county and at least a portion of the actual cost of relief and municipalities. It is my firm opinion that the relief situation will never grow very much better until the burden is brought back so that those in the counties where relief is received will feel it in their pockets and will know that it is being paid out of their pockets instead of out of Harrisburg or Washington.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Wayne, Mr. Dix.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Wayne permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. DIX. I will, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman from Wayne whether or not the gentleman comes from a smaller county than Philadelphia?

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, yes I come from a smaller county but a better one.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman and I in part agree with him. Will the gentleman from Wayne inform me as to the population of his county at the present time?

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, approximately twenty-eight thousand.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman from Wayne know what the Department of Public Assistance is spending for relief in his county?

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman mean the total amount?

Mr. LEVY. Yes, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. DIX Mr. Speaker, it will run around twelve to fifteen thousand dollars. It depends on the month, but it will run anywhere from five to twelve thousand dollars a month.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, would the gentleman not say that they are spending more than that amount?

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, they might be on the basis of January and February but over a period of two or three year it will run from five to twelve thousand dollars.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker. the gentleman from Wayne quoted from a statement of a certain gentleman, a former director of relief in Pennsylvania. Does the gentleman from Wayne know the party affiliation of that gentleman?

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, I do not. The gentleman said there were no politics in relief.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I repeat, the gentleman quoted from the statement of a gentleman who was formerly secretary of relief in Pennsylvania.

Mr. DIX. Yes, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I ask the gentleman from Wayne since he is familiar with that article, what is the gentleman's party affiliation?

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, I am not sure, but I understand he was appointed by Governor Earle. Does the gentleman from Philadelphia know the politics of the present secretary of Assistance?

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I might say to the membership of the House, Mr. Johnson, was a registered Republican. I might ask Mr. Dix the following question: Does he known whether or not the Department of Public Assistance was formerly under the leadership of Mr. Johnson as head of Assistance at that time?

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, I could not say whether it was formerly under the leadership of Mr. Johnson or not. Relief started back in the early thirties under the Talbot Act. It has been growing and growing until at the present time it has gotten up so high that the taxpayers cannot stand it any longer, and we are here as Republicans to see if we cannot do something about it.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman from Wayne this question, does he know the first director of Public Assistance that was created under the Department appointed by Governor Earle?

Mr. DIX. No. I do not, Mr. Speaker. Who was he?

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman from Wayne know the second secretary of Public Assistance?

Mr. DIX. No, I do not. I cannot recall.

Mr. LEVY. The gentleman does not know the first secretary of Public Assistance?

Mr. DIX. No, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LEVY. Does the gentleman know the second secretary of Public Assistance?

Mr. DIX. No, I do not. I cannot recall.

The SPEAKER. The Chair feels that this is getting to be sort of a "Professor Quiz." The Chair feels that we are going rather far afield and that the gentlemen should concern themselves to questions of matters pertaining to the bill.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Wayne. I desire to make a very brief statement.

Mr. DIX. I would like to make one statement before the gentleman from Philadelphia makes a statement.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is unable to determine.

Mr. DIX. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia yield?

Mr. LEVY. I yield to the gentleman from Wayne, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, the gentleman from Philadelphia evidently did not know much about the administration of relief, but while I was talking he went out and consulted some of the so-called authorities and brought back a lot of questions that he did not even know himself. Then he asked me those questions which naturally I could not answer.

Mr. LEVY Mr. Speaker and members of the House in view of the fact that I have been accused of not knowing much about the subject of relief and perhaps the gentleman from Wayne is correct I want to submit to the House that the gentlemen knows very much about relief, but he does not know some of the problems that confronted the Commonwealth prior to the institution of the Department of Public Assistance. In fact, on interrogation he leads us to believe that he did not know the secretary at the time the Department was instituted. I only want to bring to the attention of the House that in Philadelphia we are very vitally concerned with the problem, because as per the report of the Department for the week of April 22, 1939, we had a reported net expenditure for assistance grants amounting to $591,594.08. I might say in my stand on this subject the only reason I differ with the gentleman from Wayne is because his county spends not fifty thousand dollars. but approximately twenty-two thousand dollars. Therefore, Mr. Speaker and members of the House, of course the gentleman from Wayne and I would disagree on certain policies regarding this service.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, for ten years or thereabouts, the people interested in good government have been conducting a running fight with trained social workers, and the trained social workers have mostly won. There is a possibility, a fortunate possibility that today, with the passage of the Van Allsburg bill, those interested in good government may be able to take those trained social workers and pin their ears back, and that will be a glorious achievement, Mr. Speaker.

Mrs. FAUSET. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, I find myself in such fundamental opposition to one statement that the gentleman from Erie, Mr. Van Allsburg, made that I feel absolutely under compulsion to say a word or two about that statement.

Mr. Van Allsburg said that we should make relief less attractive. It happens, Mr. Speaker, that here in our Commonwealth, as in other parts of our country, because of the economic situation with which we are faced, there are thousands of people who can never hope in their lifetime to think of being employed for a wage. They, therefore, are compelled to look to relief as means for their subsistence for the rest of their lives. It seems to me, Mr. Speaker, under those circumstances the condition of those persons should be safeguarded by having very well trained workers, not necessarily workers who have just been described by Mr. Andrews, but workers who understand human nature, to such an extent that they can throw around the condition of those people who must in their lifetime look to relief as the only means of subsistence; throw around those persons the impersonal, dignified setup, which will permit them to live with a certain dignity, which I believe is the right of all human beings. Unless we can do that, through whatever means we are setting up in this state of ours, I feel we are depriving those people of a fundamental privilege.

Mr. Speaker and members of the House, I am speaking out of my own experience with large numbers of these people who must have relief. Proof of what I am saying can be seen in the situation in Philadelphia, where there is a group of people who comprise perhaps one-eighth or one-tenth of our population, and approximately fifty per cent of the relief population. Certainly these people should be granted all the safeguards of which we are capable with regard to their personal lives, and it is for that reason that I feel we should have the best qualified people only to take care of their condition.

I believe also, in connection with the workers of whom Mr. Van Allsburg spoke, that it is only fair and right in these days for us to think in terms of organization on the part of the workers of this Commonwealth, on whatever level they find themselves. I am heartily in accord with the statement that we should not suffer from undue pressure from any organized group. I think on the other hand we are beginning to realize that the only way in which workers can maintain a liberal and progressive outlook on life is to be organized, and to study those facts in their lives, not only in Philadelphia but throughout this country and throughout the world, which will make them most efficient in connection with their jobs and as human beings.

I feel, Mr. Speaker, if the Van Allsburg bill as a whole, is based upon the same philosophy which makes the gentleman from Erie state that we should make relief less attractive, which would condemn certain people here in our Commonwealth to a very much lower existence of life than they could have otherwise, that there are some of us, if this is the philosophy upon which the whole bill is based, who will be compelled to vote against the bill.

Mr. HARKINS. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, it seems to me that as we sit here and discuss and listen to this question of politics in relief, we are all agreed that politics should not in any way enter into the distribution of direct relief, which is the subject for discussion this afternoon, and which is the subject to be dealt with in the Van Allsburg bill.

Mr. Speaker and members of the House, those of us who were here in 1935 will well remember that the House, then controlled by the Democratic party, had a number of investigations of relief boards, which I think were sponsored with the hope perhaps of ascertaining that the relief boards of that time were politically controlled. It seems to me, as we recall the results of those various investigations, that those investigations, while they did turn up various defects in the system of administration of relief, as it then existed, did not turn up the fact that there were many incidents where politics entered into the distribution of relief at that time.

I say to you, Mr. Speaker, and members of the House, that the results of those investigations were beneficial in so far as we found out defects in our procedure, and were able to pass remedial laws which I believe by their enforcement have decreased considerably the amount of chiseling in the matter of relief.

Mr. Speaker, and members of the House, as I see this problem, it is probably true that politics does enter into relief, and enters into relief in three possible ways, and from three possible sources. The first is in the particular political philosophy of the particular governmental administration here at Harrisburg in control. In other words, political philosophy on relief will be tainted to a certain extent, with the politics, with the political thinking, with the political philosophy of the particular party in control. That will govern to some extent the selection of the director of the Department of Public Assistance.

Then again politics may enter into the question in the action of the political organization of workers which I think we spoke about when we spoke about the social workers problem, although I do not believe that the social workers problem is as serious as we have heard it described, but nevertheless it is possible that politics would enter the system there.

Mr. Speaker and members of the House, those two ways in which politics may enter into this question of relief are not the dangerous ways that the Van Allsburg bill will make, in my opinion, it possible for politics to enter this question.

As I read over this bill I call your attention to the wording on page ten of the bill and I quote from the bill as proposed. I read from Section 8.1 on page ten as follows:

> "Each county board of assistance for the purpose of administering general assistance and pensions shall have the power and its duty shall be
> "(a) To appoint and remove at will and without regard to the laws regulating employment in the Department of Public Assistance such employees as may be necessary under the direction of the executive director appointed under the provisions of Section eight of this act."

Mr. Speaker, I do not care whether the employees of this department are under civil service or whether they are not under civil service. What we desire is an efficient, non-partisan administration and distribution of relief to those people who properly qualify under the general rules and regulations prescribed by the responsible head of the Relief Department or by the responsible board heading relief distribution. I say to you in the few lines I have quoted, we can easily see when these people are appointed, there being no necessity for any tests in their appointments, that we are immediately getting into the question of political patronage.

I call your attention, Mr. Speaker and members of the House, to page eleven, where the qualifications of such appointees are set up. I see there that the qualifications, and I take it from the bill, apply to the supervisory positions, and I note with a great deal of amazement that these qualifications are so general that I am quite sure they could qualify anyone for any type of supervisory position in any type of endeavor whatsoever. I see here that the persons selected must be first practical, fair minded persons of good character; second, above twenty-five years of age; third, citizens of the United States.

Indeed I notice a particular qualification which I feel might be misconstrued, or might be misunderstood to be a qualification for political activity; "qualified to vote in the county in which they are to be employed; registered in Pennsylvania and have been such for a period of not less than three years." The only qualification pertaining to relief whatsoever: "(6) persons whose qualifications are such as best to promote the most effecient and economical administration of general assistance and pensions."

Mr. Speaker, and members of the House, with the hope that the bill has not gone too far in requiring some qualifications relating to the problem, the sponsors of the bill have seen fit to include and very definitely to include a provision that the selection of such employees shall not be subject to any control or approval by the Department of Public Assistance. Now, not with the thought that the Department of Public Assistance is the only authority which necessarily could select good and competent people for filling these positions, but it is rather with the thought that those words specifically mean that the sole authority for hiring these people will be with the county boards, and that the state will have to bear the burden of those people politically appointed without any real qualifications set up for their appointment, nevertheless the state will have to foot the bill and the county boards may select as many people as they deem necessary, as I read through the bill, while I know there is a clause requiring that these people who are poiltically appointed shall not receive and must not receive less pay than the people performing similar duties under the Department of Public Assistance, I say that there are no limitations prescribed upon the maximum salaries and compensations which they may receive.

On page 12 of this bill I note that there is an attempt made to give local communities something to say about the people who are on relief. It may be that properly worked out the present attempt would be worth while, and it might be that that would be conducive to less chiseling. Mr. Speaker, I say to you that the laws prohibiting the obtaining of money under false pretenses with respect to people on relief rolls, accepting stipends from the state, have been enforced in many of our counties with gratifying results and I say that is a better way of curing the situation than to have a group of people who are selected by the county boards without any qualifications, who will serve without pay and who in my opinion can hardly escape being selected from the politically active majority party in the state. It seems to me that such a local sub-committee selected without any qualifications as to bi-partisanship can hardly escape being anything more than an inquisitorial body of busy bodies, who will go out and poke their nose into the business of those unfortunate persons forced to find themselves applicants for relief.

Mr. Speaker and members of the House, I know in this bill there is an express provision which I consider one of the good provisions of the bill, which prohibits any person employed in the relief set-up from soliciting the vote of any person on the relief rolls. That is a worth while clause. However, I do not know, and it is not clear to me whether these sub-committees which I take from the bill would not be paid sub-committees, whether they would be permitted to solicit votes from people who might be on the relief rolls. I also call to the attention of the membership that since we are going to have a list of the relief recipients published or at least on file for inspection, the relief roll certainly can be used by anyone who is not connected with the distribution of relief and it seems to me, Mr. Speaker and members of the House, that if the local ward chairman or the county chairman of the majority party happens to be related closely enough to some of the people who are county board members or county sub-committee board members, I do not know how far removed that is from political coercion.

Mr. Speaker and members of the House, I seldom rise on this floor to speak in condemnation of a piece of legislation because I believe it is partisan in nature, and I am not rising to condemn this bill because it is partisan in nature. It may be that some of the aims which the author of this bill desires to achieve, and which he feels he is able to achieve by this bill, are worthwhile, but it seems to me upon analysis of this bill, that the only thing that will be accomplished will be, instead of having two types of political influence in relief, henceforth we will have three types of political influence in relief, and it will be the types that will mean that henceforth the recipient of relief will visit his ward chairman, his representative or his politically active friends and will demand that he be given an increase in the amount that he receives, because in his opinion he is entitled to as much as some other neighbor that he may know is on relief. It seems to me, Mr. Speaker, that we can hardly escape by the passage of this bill finding ourselves where relief is directly and squarely in politics, and that we who are here now will regret having voted for and having adopted this measure.

So Mr. Speaker and members of the House, I urge the membership to consider this bill seriously and I urge the member to vote "no" on this bill.

Mr. WOODSIDE. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, during the first two years of the new Department of Public Assistance there has been spent for relief in Pennsylvania by the state government over two hundred and eight million dollars. In 1931, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania made an appropriation of ten million dollars for direct relief and that amount was sent back to the local and county districts for distribution and expenditure. Since that time the expenditures for relief have continuously grown. Two years ago relief was centralized in the state government, by a plan known as the Goodrich Plan. That plan, Mr. Speaker, was not the plan of this House of Representatives, nor was it the plan of the House of Representatives of 1937 and we all know had it not been for the tremendous pressure that was placed upon the members on the other side of the House, that they would not have accepted it as their idea.

This expenditure of two hundred and eight million dollars, in comparison to the expenditure of general fund appropriations for all other purposes, raised a very interesting comparison. The general fund expenditures for all other purposes outside of relief, as recommended in the Governor's budget for the biennium just approaching is two hundred million dollars. That includes all the money being spent for schools, hospitals, homes as well as all the money to operate the various departments of the state government.

Mr. Speaker, as long as it is necessary for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to appropriate the vast sums of money which are being appropriated for direct relief, it will be impossible to make the appropriations to schools, hospitals and to the various other agencies and functions of government which we all know are badly in need of

This two hundred and eight million dollars spent during this past biennium for direct relief and for general relief in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is more money than is being spent by the state government of any other state in the Union It is more money than is being spent by any other comparable government in the whole world. It may be right that this great Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, should expend all of this money and more, but as long as this money is being spent, as I have already said, it is not only impossible to give the schools, the homes and the hospitals and the various other functions of our government the money which they need, but it is also a burden upon industry in this Commonwealth. It is creating a vicious circle and driving out of the Commonwealth the business which is putting more people on relief, which in turn is driving more industry out of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. Our taxes are based upon taxes on industry and taxes on personal property, both of which can pick up and flee this state, making it impossible for us to continue the relief system which will continue to increase in amount month after month and year after year.

I say, Mr. Speaker, that this relief is eating us up and there must be something done about it. Now, what is it that should be done? What do all of the agencies who have studied this problem, what do all of the leaders who are thinking about this problem, say? They say this: That there must be some local responsibility; there must be less centralization, they also say that it must be broken up. For what purpose? It must be put back into the local districts so that they will have more influence, more control, consequently more concern about the administration of relief.

This does not mean, that the people who are on relief will suffer. This system is set up and established by general rules meant to apply to the whole state; it is administered from a central office, which is taking control away from local districts. That means an impersonal administration of relief, it is true whereby the individual who is receiving it is getting funds but is not being helped in his general problem. The main thing we have got to do is to get those people on relief back to work, and there is only one way in which that can be successfully done, and that is through the interest of the local community in the people who are on relief in that particular community. I say, Mr. Speaker, we must turn around from the direction in which we have been going for the last two years towards centralization, toward increased state expenditure for relief; we must turn around and we must meet this problem from a different angle. This bill, is the first step. It does not go as far as we must eventually go to properly meet this problem.

The lady from Philadelphia has made a very passionate plea for those on relief, but I say that her plea is applicable only if we assume that the people who are on relief have no hope for the future. It is applicable only to those people on relief who have given up and said "The rest of our lives we are going to spend on relief." That is not what the people on relief really want except a few chiselers. The people on relief want an opportunity to get jobs and I want to give you a specific example from one of the counties in this state. A group of women were organized and that group of women after considerable persuasion and a great deal of effort were able to secure the names of the people on relief in their particular district. Mr. Speaker, this is the first example that I know of where a group that was really and truly interested in this problem was able to obtain a list of the people on relief, and it took considerable effort for them to obtain that list. This group finally obtained a list of people on relief in their particular community, and they went to work on it. They have practically wiped out the relief roll in the district in which they were doing experimental work. What does that mean, Mr. Speaker? It means that we must break this relief down so that it will be met by the local districts, so that it will be dealt with by the people who will take an interest in those persons who are out of work, so that it will be met by the people of the community who are going to try to help those people get jobs, who are going to find work for them, who know the people in the community and who know the people who are taking the money and spending it for improper purposes.

I think we will all agree that this relief problem is serious and must not be dealt with as we have to some extent in this debate today dealt with it, as a political issue. It is too big for political issue, and any party, whether it be Republican or Democrat, who in the administration of relief puts politics before honest administration, will go down to defeat and I don't care whether it is Republican, Democrat, Socialist or what it is. If the Republican Party in its administration of relief does not put honest and efficient administration of it before any political consideration, it will suffer, and we will suffer the consequences of any such action. I have faith in the gentleman who is in the position of Governor of this Commonwealth, that he will do everything in his power to keep politics out of relief.

Further, concerning the efforts of this group that is working to take those people off relief. I heard that they have in their small experimental way dealt with the problem in the way that it eventually must be dealt with. I know that at the present time it is absolutely impossible to pass back to the local districts or communities the burden of carrying relief, and I feel that we cannot now advocate that. The problem of when they will be able to take up some of the relief burden is wrapped up with the general tax program, both in the state and in the local districts; it is also wrapped up with the program of financing our schools. That problem must receive very careful, enlightened and intelligent study, and I hope and believe that that study will be made by the Joint State Government Commission, which I hope will be established during this session of the Legislature and will function during the next two years.

Eventually part of the burden of taxation will have to be borne by the local districts, maybe only five per cent at first, maybe only ten per cent at first. It will of necessity have to be a very small part on account of conditions which exist in many of these districts. Unfortunately today

I do not believe it is possible to put into operation the plan of having the local district carry any of the burden but I tell you, and it may not be politically expedient for me to say this, I am expressing my own opinion, it is the only honest approach to this problem, but we want to deal with this problem above politics, and I mean that "sincerely". The local districts have got to take enough of this responsibility, financial responsibility, that they know is their problem to meet, at the place and the only place that it will ever be able to be met. The state government has continued to carry the biggest part of the burden. I call your attention again to the fact, Mr. Speaker and members of the House, that the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is carrying a bigger portion of the relief burden than any other state in the entire Union. That is because of two reasons. In the first place because we have centralized our entire system in the state government, and the local governments have no responsibility. Secondly although half of the states carry over ninety per cent of their relief through WPA, in Pennsylvania the portion carried by WPA is a very much smaller percentage, sixty-nine per cent.

I do not want to bring politics into this debate and I do not propose to. The gentlemen on the other side may do so but I say that is a matter that is actually above politics.

I might tell about many letters I have received concerning the methods of the so-called civil service examinations and appointments. All kind of letters, affidavits and statements regarding this matter, which have come to me unsolicited, concerning the manner in which the appointments were made under civil service. I do not want to bring that in but I do want to say that on Monday night I regretted very much the approach that was made by the minority to this bill. When this bill was first reported out of Committee the minority objected that they did not have sufficient time to study it, and Mr. Speaker, they were right. In accordance with their suggestion we sent that bill back to Committee. That bill was then worked upon carefully and intelligently by a group of Republicans and Democrats, who sat around the table and who, I say, Mr. Speaker, approached the problem, not as Democrats, not as Republicans, but as Legislators and as Pennsylvanians. I think they made some constructive and helpful amendments to the bill. I thought when the bill was reported out that the minority on the other side would pick out two or three or four or possibly a half a dozen main issues which are involved in this bill and that they would submit amendments on these three or four or half a dozen main issues of this bill, and that then we could intelligently consider and discuss these main issues with the hope that out of that discussion there would be developed a better bill than that which we now have. On this relief question we can always, day after day, week after week, month after month, year after year, continue to improve legislation relating to the subject. Unfortunately, instead of that, there were submitted from the other side approximately forty amendments, many of which were absolutely senseless and meaningless in their effect upon the bill. As a result of that a few outstanding issues, which might have been righted were lost in a maze of senseless and foolish amendments, many of which must have been put in merely for the purpose of filibustering and hampering normal discussion and progress in the adoption of this legislation. I regret very much the approach that the gentlemen on the other side made to the matter on Monday night. I feel that the debate today was pretty generally on the question of relief, although there was a great deal of discussion on politics and a great deal of discussion about the Governor and his promises, his ideas on relief.

Mr. Speaker, having served in the 1935 session of the Legislature and the 1937 session, I can understand how the gentlemen on the other side cannot appreciate, cannot comprehend the situation which exists in the Republican party today because I know, although the Democratic party have charged us with having secret meetings of the Welfare Committee, which only Republicans attended, I do not know that the Welfare Committee of the House of Representatives on more than one occasion met with Governor Earle and the Democratic members without Republicans being invited, met with Governor Earle to discuss relief problems in the Governor's office. I do not think this is important, except I want to call the attention of the Republicans and the attention of the members on the other side to a fact that all the members on this side know.

This bill is not the bill of Governor James. Governor James does not call the Republican members in and say, "Here is legislation". We are trying this year to operate as a legislative body. Maybe it will work and maybe it will not, I don't know, but certainly it is under the old principles of American government. It is a plan that is well worth trying, and the Governor is giving his fullest cooperation in carrying it out. So, Mr. Speaker, when the members on the other side talk about Governor James and his promises and what effect they have on the bill before us, they are not on the point at issue at all because this bill is not Governor James' bill. This bill is a bill that was worked out by the Committee of the House of Representatives, and I say it is a bill to a large extent, or at least to a degree, that was worked out by both the Democratic and Republican members of that committee. Any criticism or any statement concerning the Governor's attitude in connection with this bill, so far as I know as Republican floor leader, is entirely unfounded. This bill, if there is any blame to be placed, should be placed upon the Committee on Welfare, to a degree upon the Republican membership, and to a degree upon the Democratic membership of the House of Representatives, and if there is any credit that credit should be given here.

I think the attention, in connection with relief, should be called to the last provision in the bill. On page nineteen we inserted a paragraph which we feel will help to keep politics out of relief, and I want to call your attention to the fact that many of the complaints that have been made to this bill are merely complaints that have been made relative to the administration of the problem of relief.

There are many other things that might be said on this relief problem. It is much too big to discuss in a few minutes, in a few hours, or a few days, and as I have suggested before it is a problem that will have to be dealt with day after day and week after week.

This bill, as I said, is not the Governor's bill, and it is not my bill. It does not include all the ideas that I have as to what requirements should be set up. It is not John Van Allsburg's bill. It is not the bill of any individual nor is it any individual's idea. What the eventual solution of this relief problem will be we do not know, but I will say this one thing, Mr. Speaker, and with this I will close: We must send relief back into the districts where it will be dealt with more intelligently it can be dealt with from a central office; where it will be dealt with more personally, if you please, than it can be dealt with in a central office. We must reconstruct our entire system in order that that can be carried out. This bill does not do that, but it turns around and is a step in the direction which will be helpful and which will to some degree at least carry out that intent a little more fully than it has been carried out.

I hope, Mr. Speaker, when this problem is dealt with here another step will be taken which will mean in the end that the schools will have more money, that there will be more money for the hospitals and the homes of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and that the people who are on relief can and will be put back to work.

Mr. ACHTERMAN. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, I shall reply to the gentleman from Dauphin, Mr. Woodside, just briefly.

I am rather interested in the figures that he gave as to the sums of money that are spent for relief in Pennsylvania, and the comparison of figures, with the Republican administration. I am glad, incidentally, to state that when the Democratic party went into control four years ago, they found on their hands a deficit of over forty-five million dollars that was incurred because of relief in Pennsylvania. In other words, he would have you believe that the preceeding administration had handled the problem of relief with an expenditure of about ten million dollars. He neglected, of course, to tell you the deficit that was left for us to pay. May I ask whether the expenditure of two hundred and eight million dollars for relief of the unfortunate in Pennsylvania is the criterion by which to judge whether legislation is good or bad, or would you say, Mr. Speaker, that the criterion by which to judge is the amount of need that exists in Pennsylvania. That, Mr. Speaker, in my opinion is the true criterion by which we should judge. Was it needed; was the money properly spent? I don't think that anyone in this House will say that the amount of money that we gave to the relief recipients was unreasonable. As a matter of fact I personally cannot understand how those who are on relief are able to get along on the amount that is allowed them.

Of course, the gentleman from Dauphin stated there were several reasons why the amount of money was so great here in Pennsylvania, and of course, he endeavored to place the burden mainly on the federal government—a lack of sufficient WPA work in Pennsylvania. May I ask the gentleman from Dauphin what Senator Davis, the Republican Senator from Pennsylvania, has done to relieve that problem? May I ask the gentleman from Dauphin what the city of Philadelphia has done to cooperate with WPA? Everybody in Pennsylvania knows that the relief load is occasioned by the fact that Council of the City of Philadelphia has failed to make any appropriation for the purpose of securing WPA jobs. Perhaps I had better correct my statement. When I say recently, I mean six or eight months ago City Council in Philadelphia made an appropriation of one million dollars for WPA purposes and have not to the present time expended one cent of that money. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I reply to the gentleman from Dauphin if you have not received the money you anticipated from the federal government, you can go back to your own party and there lay your blame.

The thing that shocks and frightens me is some of the other remarks the gentleman from Dauphin made. He indicates that this entire program is intended to cut the relief load. Just how, Mr. Speaker, will it do that? I can see one subtle suggestion and that is the one that makes me shudder for the poor of Pennsylvania cut down the amount of relief so that you can give it to the schools. Perhaps we are going to change that old phrase, about tightening your belt and then when times get harder tighten it again. I will not quote the last phrase which I understand is not disputed. I will paraphrase it in Pennsylvania and say, "tighten your belt and go to school, see if you can live on that." Is that what we are to expect in Pennsylvania? That is what was rather indicated here on the floor of the House today.

I may say, Mr. Speaker, that I can agree with the gentleman from Dauphin that this issue is too big to be put into politics. I can agree with him in that one hundred per cent, but I am going to follow it with an inquiry as to why they, the members of his party, are not broad-minded enough, why they are not big enough to follow my suggestion that we have by-partisan control of relief, remove politics from relief.

That suggestion, Mr. Speaker, they hesitated on and refused to follow. I can understand, of course, the great concern of the members on the opposite side of the House as to who wrote this bill. Governor Earle didn't do it, so they say. Mr. Van Allsburg didn't do it; the Republicans didn't do it, and in a week voice, of course, the Democrats didn't do it.

Mr. Speaker, I don't blame them for not wanting to be the father of this bill. Who would want to be the daddy of this bill. There was criticism, of course, as to the number of amendments that were presented to this bill on Monday evening. I frankly would have preferred having just a few salient features of the bill adopted, but, Mr. Speaker, may I assure you that the consideration that we had hoped to receive in discussion of this bill did not measure up to my anticipations. I have reason to believe that originally the members on the other side of this House were not only paying lip service to home rule, but that they were honest and sincere in their statements. Mr. Speaker, it was not long until that delusion of mine was dispelled. This is the answer I received relative to home rule and local government, "The time is not ripe." When, pray tell me, is the time ripe for home rule? It was ripe in 1937, they could agree with me then, and if it was ripe in 1937, Mr. Speaker, I say it is ripe now. It was ripe when we took this bill away from the House for the purpose of discussion between the members of the two parties. It would make a very curious story were I permitted to tell what occurred in the meeting, but suffice it is to say that I learned that the theory of home rule as propounded by the majority members of this House was indeed only a lip service to home rule. That, Mr. Speaker, is one of the reasons and the main reason why an honest and sincere effort was made last Monday to amend this bill, so that the Republicans could really feel proud of claiming ownership.

Mr. Speaker, that sums up in my mind what can be said about the bill. The party on the other side of the House, if they want this bill, are going to claim authorship of the bill, not only authorship of the bill, they are going to vote for it and all the condemnation that is going to attach to this bill will be theirs. Not only that, Mr. Speaker, but their Governor, when he signs the bill will likewise accept responsibility for it.

In conclusion, Mr. Speaker, I cannot voice the same thought that the gentleman from Dauphin voiced, as to his confidence in the Governor in the administration of our relief laws. I haven't forgotten the broken promises, and the members on the other side of this House, those who campaigned on reduced taxes, should not forget it, and remembering those broken promises it is certainly amazing that any member of the House should get up and say to us, "Let us have confidence in the man over there, the Governor," in the face of a record of broken promises such as that.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken.

On the question,

Will the House concur in the amendments made by the Senate?

Mr. HERBERT B. COHEN. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, I understand this bill is commonly known as the four mill personal property tax bill. When this bill was enacted in the 1935 and 1937 sessions, the Commonwealth then was not confronted with the decision that has been recently handed down by the Supreme Court of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in re the personal property tax assessed against the Dorrance estate, No. 444, January, 1938, in which the Supreme Court of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania took original jurisdiction. It seems that of the trustees established under the will in the Dorrance estate, three in number, two resided in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and the third, who was a corporate trustee, resided outside the borders of the Commonwealth. The trustees met in order to conduct their business outside of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the majority opinion of the Supreme Court held that since the trustees were meeting outside of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and since the personal property tax act did not provide a specific method of allocating the tax where some of the trustees lived outside the Commonwealth, therefore, there would be no tax whatever assessed against the personal property of the estate.

Justice Maxey wrote a very illuminating minority opinion in the matter and needless to say relative to the majority opinion:

> "The majority opinion as I interpret it, then comes down to this: Since the statutes of Pennsylvania do not expressly provide for proportional assessment of trust property held by trustees respectively domiciled in different jurisdictions, that trust property can be taxed only in the jurisdiction where the trustees meet to administer the trust. I can find no warrant whatever under our Pennsylvania law for such a judicial holding. Our taxing laws say nothing about the administration of a trust. Our taxing laws are not concerned as to where trustees meet to administer the trust committed to their keeping. They might meet in Florida or on a vessel at sea or elsewhere. The law says:"

Then it goes on to quote the act. Nevertheless, the House Committee, being concerned with the law as the majority of the Supreme Court has interpreted it, inserted into the personal property tax act, and very properly, a clause defining the proportionate amount of the tax that should be assessed in a situation such as this. That suggested amendment came from the majority side of the House.

This amendment inserted by the majority corrected the existing law so that the exigencies that were created by the majority opinion of the Supreme Court would be overcome and in that form the four mill personal property tax passed this House. While it was in the Senate, and the bill we now have was passed by the Senate they deleted from the bill that particular paragraph that would guide the taxing officials of the Commonwealth in the assessment of the proportional tax, and in that amendment we are asked to concur.

I am concerned, as all members of the House are concerned, with the stability of the budget of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. The personal property tax act has been enacted in the past two sessions and will probably be re-enacted in this session to meet the particular problem of providing sufficient moneys for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to assume its obligation to the people of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Concurring in an act that has in it a possible loophole through which evasions of the tax collector are possible, is passing a taxation measure that will not give the administration any security or any knowledge of the moneys that the act will provide. I know that with the passage of this amendment to overcome the supreme court's decision, every tax lawyer in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and every personal property estate in which there is a sizeable amount of taxes due, will create trustees, one of which only need live outside the confines of the Commonwealth, and will set up in the trust the meeting place where the meetings are to be held and deprive the people of the Commonwealth of justifiable taxation. The peculiar and most obnoxious feature about this particular act that we are asked to concur in, is the fact that this will be done by the large payers of taxes and the smaller individuals upon whom the personal property tax is a particular burden, will not be able either to set up a trust or pay for advice from high salaried, high priced tax lawyers in order to advise them how to evade this tax. The widow with small holdings, the small tax payer with a few mortgages will not be in a position to evade this tax, but the large taxpayers who are contributing large sums of money in personal property tax will by this device, and its legality has been upheld by the highest court in this Commowealth, immediately, resort to that opinion and avoid the payment of large sums of taxes.

If I had the figures to quote to this House, I would show the membership that the personal property tax, while it is collected from hundreds of thousands of taxpayers in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, the largest proportion in amount of tax comes from taxpayers who now have an opportunity to evade the personal property tax by resorting to the majority opinion of the Supreme Court.

I say to the membership of this House that while those of the majority have been concerned with the flight of industry from the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, under the majority opinion of the Supreme Court and the passage of this act in its present form, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is going to suffer a flight of capital. Every large holder of securities will evade the payment of the four mills personal property tax and the attending four mills tax due the counties by resorting to this opinion, and they will save on the value of their investment approximately eight mills, one per cent, and every such individual will use the mechanics that have been established by the Supreme Court for that evasion.

I am pleading with the membership of this House to maintain at least the expected income that has been established by four years of this act. I am pleading with the membership of this House not to necessitate the return of this House to make up the very apparent deficiencies in the income of the Commonwealth that will result by the evasion that this act makes possible. I cannot, as a member of this House, recommend to those who are sincerely interested in maintaining some honesty in our budgetary income, that they concur in this particular bill. I would plead with the membership of this House not to concur in the bill. Put the bill in conference and impress upon the Senate the necessity of stopping the great leak of revenue and income from the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Mr. WOODSIDE. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, there are just two points I desire to make concerning this amendment. In the first place, Mr. Speaker, the insertion of that which was put in by the House and taken out by the Senate would in fact result in a tax in addition to that which would be brought about by the reenactment of the four mill tax, and the Governor has desired, as I understand it, to avoid any increase in taxes.

In the second place, there is one point to be made in connection with the apportionment of the tax among trustees who are residents and non-residents of the State, and that is that it might well have a tendency by those who desire to avoid the tax to not make any person in Pennsylvania a trustee and to drive the entire trusteeship out of the State which would in effect be worse upon the business of the State and those who serve as trustees or fiduciaries in any capacity, than if the amendment inserted by the Senate is agreed to. For that reason, I ask the members of the House to concur in the amendment.

Mr. HERBERT B. COHEN. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, I realize the reluctance of the present administration to impose any additional taxes, but this amendment that has been deleted by the Senate is not the imposition of any additional taxes. The amendment deleted by the Senate makes the evasion of this tax possible. Hundreds of thousands of taxpayers, as I have stated before, have paid the four mill personal property tax. Any number of taxpayers up to the present time, where there has been a diversity of citizenship as to the trustees, have paid the taxes. If you do not put in the House amendments, then those trustees, those individuals who heretofore had to pay the tax will resort to the majority opinion and discontinue the payment of taxes.

In the second place, there will be established in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania means whereby large taxpayers will resort to the establishment of trustees with a domicile outside the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, with the result that the anticipated revenue and income, based upon the experiences of four years of this act, will not be forthcoming to the Commonwealth. I would not consider closing up a loop hole and a leak in the tax act, which loop hole and leak have been created by the majority opinion of the Supreme Court, an imposition of any new tax. It is merely solidifying and placing the tax on a basis whereby there can be no extensive evasion. I therefore ask the membership of this House not to concur in the amendment inserted by the Senate.

Mr. SWEENEY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Dauphin, Mr. Woodside.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Dauphin permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. WOODSIDE. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. SWEENEY. Mr. Woodside, if we pass this act, as the Senate requests, will we in the future lose any tax that we might collect from the Dorrance estate?

Mr. WOODSIDE. Mr. Speaker, I understand from the Department of Revenue that the estimate has not been changed as a result of this amendment, so that the tax will be approximately the same. I am not particularly acquainted with the matter and am not able to state what the exact situation is.

Mr. SWEENEY. Mr. Woodside, has the Department of Revenue included in their budget estimate tax revenue from the Dorrance estate?

Mr. WOODSIDE. I cannot say, Mr. Speaker, what they have included in their estimate.

Mr. SWEENEY. Mr. Speaker, isn't it a fact that if we pass the act as originally passed by the House we will collect the tax on the Dorrance estate.

Mr. WOODSIDE. Mr. Speaker, that is problematical. As I understand the situation, that would leave the case open for appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States, and there is considerable doubt as to what the outcome will be.

Mr. SWEENEY. Mr. Speaker, isn't it a fact that if we pass it with the amendment inserted by the Senate, there is no doubt that we will not collect that tax?

Mr. WOODSIDE. Mr. Speaker, I am not acquainted with the details of this particular estate, but from a superficial knowledge of the situation, I think that that may be true.

Mr. SWEENEY. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman from Dauphin know whether or not that is a fifty million dollar estate?

Mr. WOODSIDE. Mr. Speaker, I do not know that.

Mr. HERBERT B. COHEN. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, I just wish to read into the record a personal letter which I have received from two individuals, whom I consider to be expert tax consultants. I will not mention the names, because of the rule of the House which prevents advertising and "hawking" on the floor of the House. However, I feel that the membership should have the benefit of this letter which is addressed to me, and which reads as follows:

"Dear Herb:

House Bill No. 318 is the reenactment of the State Personal Property Tax. As it went through the House it contained an amendment, which I believe was suggested by the Department of Justice, which would make taxable personal property held by trustees for the benefit of some person, co-partnership, etc., and used as the basis of its taxable, where one or more of the trustees are non-residents, the number of the Pennsylvania trustees as that number bears to the whole. This amendment was an effort on the part of the Department of Justice to overcome the decision rendered by the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania in the Dorrance case. If you will look up that decision, you will find in part Chief Justice Kephart, who wrote the opinion, based the non-taxability of the Dorrance Estate on the absence of any provision in the statute, which would set up a method of apportionment."

I might state that the amendment inserted by the majority did set up a method of apportionment.

"This amendment, which appears on page 9, line 21, Printer's No. 407 of House Bill No. 318, was stricken out by a Senate Committee amendment.

By its failure to attempt to make such personal property taxable an invitation is extended to all Pennsylvania Trusts to remove their securities in trust from Pennsylvania and place them in trust in another state.

It might be brought to your attention that by the exclusion of such an amendment not only does the State lose the four mills tax upon such trusts, but the way is blocked for the counties to attempt to collect their four mills under the County Personal Property Tax Act of 1913."

By not attempting to correct this particular apportionment feature, not only is the budget of the Commonwealth placed in a hazardous position, but each and every county relying for its income on this the tax act will also be jeopardized. I might state that for some period of time the Dorrance Estate did pay taxes and then on appeal to the Supreme Court this particular decision was rendered. I feel sure, with proper taxing methods, safeguarding the recipients of taxes, this leakage should be stopped.

On the question recurring,

Will the House concur in the amendments made by the Senate?

RESOLUTION REQUESTING USE OF SENATE CHAMBER

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I have a privilege resolution to offer but before I offer it I wish to state that at the last special session of the legislature a commission was appointed to study compensation in Pennsylvania. Knowing full well that the matter of passing legislation on compensation was going to be made an important issue, the commission never met pending the introduction of legislation and the reaction of the various elements interested in compensation legislation. There is on the calendar in the House a very curious bill, and representatives of labor have told me that they have been refused a public hearing in the matter of compensation on the legislation before the House of Representatives.

I only want to say as chairman of the Labor and Industry Committee of the Senate I gave to industry last year and the year before last twenty-two public hearings and private conferences on compensation. I think that the laboring people of this State ought to be entitled to at least one hearing to have their views heard on the matter of compensation, so therefore I am calling my commission together and this resolution will ask that I be given permission to hold a public hearing and discussion of compensation, in the Senate Chamber, Monday afternoon, May 8, 1939.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to offer a resolution at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. DENT, offered the following resolution which was twice read, considered and agreed to:

In the Senate, May 4, 1939.

Resolved, That the use of the Senate Chambers be granted to the Commission named to study Compensation for purposes of a public meeting, Monday afternoon, May 8, at 2 o'clock, Eastern Standard Time.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, in connection with this bill, I should like to call to the attention of the Senators the fact that this bill is called the Baldi Unfair Sales Act, and we have been told that this bill will protect the small industry from the devastation of price-cutting. Now, I agree that the aims of this bill are to prevent price cutting, and I also agree it would be a very fine thing if we could accomplish it.

I also suggest that if this bill is passed and becomes law there will be no necessity for the bill we discussed last week, the eight by ten sign bill, because everything that is sold at retail comes under the provisions of this Act, and I would like the Senators to bear with me for a minute now.

I have no feeling about this bill at all but I would like, calmly, to point out the trap into which you fall when you attempt by law to regulate business. When I say this to you that I may be in effect, arguing against N. R. A.—and I am arguing against N. R. A., because I found it did not work, and I think it will not work under this Act. The gist of the bill is that goods must not be sold at retail for less than four per cent over the invoice cost and at wholesale at not less than two per cent over the invoice cost; and then invoice cost is defined as cost of merchandise to the retailer or the replacement cost of the merchandise to the retailer within thirty days prior to the date of the sale.

Now, how are you going to determine that and how are you going to prevent price cutting if a wholesaler can take his basic cost at any time within thirty days from the time he wants to sell it?

The second proposition I should like to call your attention is Clause D "The terms 'cost to the retailer' and 'cost to the wholesaler' as defined in paragraphs (a) and (b) shall mean bona fide costs and sales to consumers, retailers and wholesalers at prices which cannot be justified by existing market conditions within this State and shall not be used as a basis for computing cost with respect to sales by retailers and wholesalers," and the price to the retailer shall not include discounts, or the price to the wholesaler shall not include discounts which he is allowed by the seller to him, and how are you going to protect the small dealer in that respect?

Then if you want a more confused situation, let me refer you to Sections G and H. In Section G you deal with the man who sells both at wholesale and retail, and it is divided into two sections.

The first section deals with the man who sells both at retail and wholesale and the second section also deals with the man who sells both at wholesale and retail, but it makes different provisions in both cases and I think everybody will agree they are the same type of people—but if he sells both at retail and wholesale the term retailer shall apply, and if he sells both wholesale and retail the term wholesaler shall apply. Let me read thoses sections to you:

"(g) The term 'retailer' shall mean and include every person, copartnership, corporation or association engaged in the business of making sales at retail or performing the retail function within this State, provided that in the case of a person, partnership, corporation or association engaged in the business of making sales both at retail and at wholesale such terms shall be applied only to the retail portion of such business."

"(h) The term 'wholesaler' (the word wholesaler comes first here) shall mean and include every person, partnership, corporation or association engaged in the business of making sales at wholesale or performing the wholesale function within this State: Provided, That in the case of a person, partnership, corporation or association engaged in the business of making sales both at wholesale and retail such terms shall be applied only to the wholesale portion of such business."

Now, if a man puts a sign out, I am a wholesaler and retailer—one proposition applies; but if he puts out a sign, I am a retailer and wholesaler, a different situation applies, and yet they are both in the same situation. It simply indicates how, in an effort to control a situation, you find yourself in a position from which you cannot extricate yourself; and you are in a worse position than you were before you attempted to pass the law.

Now, take the situation of the cooperatives. Under this bill, in the following section, cooperatives would have to charge—the retailers would have to mark up goods six per cent, because, as I was informed yesterday, this section was intended to take care of that—page 5, section (i) reads as follows:

"(i) Every person, partnership, corporation or association engaged in the business of making sales at retail as defined in this act within this State, which, in addition to such business, shall purchase merchandise and commodities for sale at retail from manufacturers, packers, processors, growers or producers thereof without resort to a wholesaler as such, shall be taken deemed and construed for the purpose of this act to be engaged in business both as a wholesaler and retailer as defined in this act, and as such shall be subject to both the retail and wholesale mark-up provisions of this act."

In other words, a man who is engaged in the retail and wholesale business—that is, though he comes first under sections G, and then H, and the confusion which exists there is bad enough—if that question is passed, you come to the next section, and if he is the type of man who buys from a manufacturer or grower, without the intervention of the wholesaler, then he must mark his goods up six per cent.

Now, we know that in some instances the cooperatives buy direct; and we know they buy without the intervention of the wholesaler; and in those instances the retailer will get a notice from the cooperatives—we have bought this merchandise without the intervention of a wholesaler; you must not sell it at less than six per cent above your cost.

I think those three things I have pointed out are enough to show what happens when you pass legislation that is not properly digested and the last thing about this bill is this: I suggested this be so that it should not be in effect until its legality can be determined and that was not adopted.

Here is my position: I will tell the large dealer, wholesaler or retailer, to ignore this Act, and he will proceed to sell and you will proceed, under the terms of this bill, to go into court and get an injunction against him; and he will say to the Court that this Act is unconstitutional and the injunction does not prevail—he will be greatly damaged and therefore insists upon a sufficient bond and the Court will, of course, grant it. Suppose he loses? In the meantime he continues to sell and undercut the little fellow—undersell the little felow who is following out the provisions of the Act, and when the Supreme Court decides that question in six or eight months the little fellow is out of business and the big fellow is still undercutting, and when the Supreme Court is through the little fellow is out.

If the Supreme Court decides that I was wrong, and that the injunction was properly granted, and he is restrained from selling, or violating the Act, then the bond which is required to be filed will of necessity go to the benefit of the person he was enjoined from underselling and you will see, under those circumstances, it will be necessary to provide a proper bond—and it will be an excessive bond—it should be a bond to take care of all the damages this man will have.

I think any lawyer in this room will agree—if they do not agree that this Act is unconstitutional, they will agree that its constitutionality certainly is questionable.

That is clearly illustrated in the case of Schechter Brothers, where it was declared there was a violation of the Constitutional rights of those gentlemen. The Supreme Court held as unconstitutional the Act which prohibited them from selling merchandise except in a certain way prescribed by the N.R.A. Law, and when the fight was over they had won the battle but had lost the business; and that is what we are doing here now—we are going to give somebody the right to win a battle but lose his business.

I do not want to impose my legal views on this subject upon my colleagues in the Senate, but I venture the suggestion that if Senate Bills Nos. 12 and 13 were vetoed by the Governor because they failed to provide for justices of the peace and magistrates—and that was an important piece of legislation—what do you think the Attorney-General of this Commonwealth, who seems to be a very careful lawyer, will say about this bill, and assuming he, like I, am wrong about the proposition, assume that—rather, assume he disagrees with me and says it is O.K. and it is Constitutional, and the Supreme Court differs with him, as it has been known to do with lawyers, and declares it unconstitutional—consider the damage we have done to industry in Pennsyvania.

I suggest, first, that this bill ought to be voted down; or, secondly, if not voted down, it ought to be amended to cure that condition. Third, for the first time since I have been a member of the Senate, I am in a position where I cannot vote for this bill, and I doubt very much whether any lawyer in this room can, under the present constitutional provisions, vote for this bill, because this bill covers every kind of industry in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania where the business is selling, wholesale or retail; and I am quite sure there is not a lawyer in this room who does not represent somebody that has been affected by this legislation if it becomes law.

This morning I had a telephone call from an important client who asked me to vote against this bill. I cannot vote against this bill because in the same telephone message from my office there were at least thirty people with small interests who asked me to vote for this bill; and I think, under those circumstances, particularly in view of the constitutional provisions, that I have no right to vote for or against the bill—but there is nothing in the Constitution to prevent me from giving my views. I have given them and I have declared my interest here as required by the Constitution and I will not vote on the bill.

Mr. WOODWARD. Mr. President, I was converted, to vote against this bill, in the first fifteen minutes of the argument of my distinguished colleague from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro; but if he had continued fifteen minutes more I would have voted for the bill. As a dyed-in-the-wool Republican I believe in free enterprise. I was assured that this bill did not interfere in any way with consumer-cooperatives, and now I have learned from my colleague that it does.

We have a very prosperous consumer-cooperative in Germantown, and we expect to buy apples from Senator Rice without the intervention of any middle-man; but one of our mottoes is, to sell at the market price, and I am somewhat confused, I believe this bill upsets that market price, and, listening to the arguments of my colleague, and being against price fixing, I certainly will vote with the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, against the bill.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, of course I do not know whether I can be as successful as my colleague from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, and perhaps I cannot again change the mind of the distinguished gentleman from Germantown, but I want to say I do not see anything in this bill which interferes with cooperatives; I do not think there is a cooperative in existence, counting its drayage costs and overhead expenses and all the other items of expense that go into operation, that can properly function with less than six per cent markup. It is six per cent—your cooperative acts as both retailer and wholesaler—as when he acts only as a wholesaler it is two per cent and when he acts as retailer it is four per cent—and I do not think any business man can come into this Senate and ask the vote of the members of this Senate on a proposition where we say to them we do not think it is fair for you to buy goods for a dollar and sell them for ninety-eight cents, because it happens that the particular type of goods you are selling for ninety-eight cents—two cents less than the cost price—is a main item of merchandise which your competitor across the street has to do business with—and then you turn around and sell items that cost seven or eight cents for a dollar or a dollar and a half because your competitor does not have those items.

I am speaking particularly about the cut rate drug stores which sell everything from shoe blacking to an automobile —it is not their main item of business—their main item is drugs if they can give you a razor they will sell you all the blades you want.

The queston of constitutionality is certainly fallacious at this time. Those of us who are Democrats, if we had listened to the cry about constitutionality why, we would not have voted for ten per cent of the bills we voted for in 1937 and 1935. The very men that now plead it ought to be set aside because of constitutionality are the men who said to us that is the proper function of the Supreme Court and let us wait until it gets there. If we are going to act as a Supreme Court—and not being an attorney how am I supposed to know whether or not it is constitutional—certainly I cannot take one attorney's word for it, because the attorney who tells me it is constitutional tells me the laws of 1937 were consitutional and the Supreme Court did not agree with him.

The bill is a good bill, gentlemen. There is not anything in it that hurts anybody. It only says you must sell something at least at its cost—at least its cost—it gives the small grocer, your neighborhood grocer and the small business man some opportunity to compete with the large chain stores that buy at a reduced cost and sell at less than reduced cost. I would ask that my colleagues all support this bill.

Mr. WOLFENDEN. Mr. President, just to win back my good friend, Dr. Woodward, this bill that the Senator from Philadelphia Mr. Shapiro has told you is so full of terms and phrases which make it unconstitutional is what is known as a model bill. It is already in force in many states in the union.

Now, it has not yet been declared unconstitutional by any state in the union and possibly our attorney general when he rules on it will consider that fact. It is identical with a bill now in effect in Illinois and direct proof of that is that the bill was literally printed and where it says District Attorney it uses the term of State Attorney, which is what they are called in Illinois. I am not concerned with the constitutionality of the bill, and will appreciate your support of the bill.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I desire the record to show me as being present.

The PRESIDENT. The record will so note.

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, I desire to be recorded as voting "no."

The PRESIDENT. It will be so recorded.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

REPORT FROM COMMITTEE

Mr. McCREESH. Mr. President I ask unanimous consent to make report from committee at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. McCREESH, from the Committee on Judiciary Special, reported as amended, Senate Bill No. 619, (House Bill No. 305), entitled:

An Act relating to fireworks defining fireworks prohibiting the sale offering or exposing for sale and use of fireworks except in certain cases authorizing cities boroughs towns and townships to issue permits for fireworks displays and to regulate the same imposing duties on the Pennsylvania Motor Police sheriffs police officers and constables and providing penalties

Mr. President, I might say to you that this bill is known as the fireworks bill, this is a second fireworks bill, and I might say to you that the Senators who are bitterly criticized on account of those fireworks bills—and I think it is a pity that the Senators who worked hard night and day should be criticized by the papers or by the public—we go into committee meetings and hear the public and then the Senators lock the doors and stay in there from morning to night, and then we bring out a bill and we are criticized after trying to do our best.

So, Mr. President, I now present the bill to the Chair as amended.

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. WOODWARD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 456, on final passage entitled:

BILL ON THIRD READING

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 22, entitled:

An Act to prohibit the sale offering or exposing for sale of fireworks defining fireworks and authorizing cities boroughs towns and townships to regulate the manner of using fireworks therein and providing penalties

And said bill having been read at length the third time,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

Mr. JAMES. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to amend bill, last page of bill, by inserting at the end thereof, the following:

S Section 8. This act shall become effective immediately upon its final enactment.

Mr. JAMES. Mr. President, This amendment I proposed makes the bill effective immediately upon its final enactment.

The PRESIDENT. Will the Senate agree to the amendment as read?

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I object.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, may I ask consent to offer the following amendment?

Mr. JAMES. Mr. President, I understand, sir, unanimous consent was given.

The PRESIDENT. There was an objection.

MOTION TO RECONSIDER SENATE BILL No. 22

Mr. JAMES. Mr. President, I move that the vote by which this bill passed second reading be reconsidered.

Mr. OWLETT. Mr. President, I second the motion.

It was agreed to.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. He presented a motion, Mr. President, and there was an objection to it.

Mr. OWLETT. Mr. President, I seconded the motion of the Senator from Bucks, Mr. James.

The PRESIDENT. It has been moved by the Senator from Bucks and seconded by the Senator from Tioga that the vote by which Senate Bill No. 22 passed second reading be reconsidered.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, on the motion I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Cambria, Mr. Haluska.

The PRESIDENT. Will the Senator from Cambria permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I will.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, will the gentleman state whether it is not true the bill in its present form, unless amended as suggested by the Senator from Bucks, will not become effective until September?

Mr. HALUSKA. That is right, Mr. President.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, will the gentleman from Cambria state whether it is not true under the amendment it will become effective before the Fourth of July?

Mr. HALUSKA. That is correct, Mr. President.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, will the gentleman state his reasons for objecting to the amendment to the bill which, if the objection is not withdrawn, delays passage another day?

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I do not think we should try to confiscate anybody's business. This is not an emergency, fireworks have been used for generations. We should serve a warning upon those folks that we are going to put in some type of legislation prohibiting fireworks for the manufacturer and for the sale of fireworks, but if this bill should pass and become effective immediately I think it is the most UnAmerican and UnDemocratic piece of legislation we ever passed. Think of it. Manufacturers, dealers, wholesalers, throughout the entire Commonwealth, with their investments in fireworks, today they are told that we shall pass a bill and tomorrow they will be driven out of business. I think it is unfair.

I have not had one request from any person in my county requesting me to vote for this measure. The record shows for the year of 1938 we had three cases directly attributed to fireworks; and the record shows we had 148 cases of football, baseball, fishing, swimming—in other words, less than one per cent of all injuries caused in this Commonwealth in 1938 were caused by the display of fireworks.

I think it is unfair and I believe that if we pass this piece of legislation and make it effective as of September first it will give our dealers, our manufacturers, our wholesalers, an opportunity to dispose of their goods; and thereby we serve a warning that if, after that date, they manufacture fireworks they cannot dispose of their stock; and that is my reason, for objecting to this amendment.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, the fact that only ten people or five people or eight people were killed or maimed or injured does not make the crime any the less. I am reminded of a story—I would like to quote from a statement made by my distinguished colleague, Senator Woodward, when he was discussing a similar situation: he said "Minimizing the crime that way does not impress me. It is like the girl who gave birth to an illegitimate child and who said it was not much of a crime because it was only a little baby."

It seems to me, speaking about fireworks, that because the percentage of deaths or injuries by fireworks is less than the number of deaths or injuries in another form of life or another activity of life is just to behave as if this is not an important piece of legislation.

I would like to say I have been in the Senate since 1933 and I think the gentleman who are engaged in the fireworks business ought to know they are engaged in a business where they are taking a voluntary assumption of risks in a dangerous situation, and from 1933 to this date they have been told that sooner or later there would be a fireworks bill and the only reason it did not come sooner was that they had a strong lobby that prevented it from coming sooner.

In 1933 and 1935 they raised the issue I hear today, why not make this effective next Fourth of July so that we can sell our stock, and if incidentally a dozen more people are injured, that is incidental, but give us a chance to sell this stuff and do a little more harm, and then we will get out of business.

In 1935 by their lobby they were able to stop this fireworks bill and then in the Special Session of 1938 we gave notice to them in the call of the Governor in which he said this is so important I am including it in the call for the Special Session they began the same lobbying and used the same excuse and said, give us until the Fourth of July next year and we will not do it any more, and we had this bill up to the moment of almost final passage and then that lobby prevailed, and I want to say here and now that any fooling with this proposition and any argument about giving us the chance to get rid of our goods must carry with it the implication that they are entitled to maim my children and I do not want that, I do not want a single delay in getting this legislation through.

I want to say frankly last night I suspected there was some motive behind the procedure involved here.

I am glad to see that the committee and the gentleman from Bucks have cleared themselves and has brought out a bill that will pass and can pass, and then the responsibility will be upon the House and not upon the Senate. I want to say now whatever thought I had about the matter is cleared up. I am glad to see this action taken. It is time this Senate realized its responsibility The criticism that appeared in newspapers seems to me a good feature. If this bill was brought out as a result of the criticism of the newspapers, more power to the newspapers. We must not complain about criticism in the newspapers. My hat is off to the gentleman from Bucks and I hope we pass this bill, and I am sorry if it is delayed another day by this objection.

Mr. GELDER. Mr. President, just to keep the records straight I want to say the chairman of the committee last night said it was coming out again today and that the purpose was not to delay, but to get that date in there, and if there was any misapprehension it was in the mind of the Senator from Philadelphia and not in the committee.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, that is true and that is why I am making this statement, because I feel I owe it to the gentleman from Bucks to do so.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, the passage of this bill will not prevent the sale of fireworks. This bill will just regulate the use of fireworks. Fireworks can still be used under proper control and I agree with the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, this same argument has been used back through the years and I join with him in stating that I sincerely hope that this bill now will be properly passed and sent to the Governor for final enactment and I also want to congratulate the gentleman from Bucks for putttng in an amendment that will more than likely, if we do our duty, bring about this control before Fourth of July of this year.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, in the 1938 Special Session I probably was the big firecracker that stopped the bill. I said then they would have time before the next Fourth of July to pass a fireworks bill.

I want to state clearly that though I was co-sponsor of this act, which is not a regularatory—act but a prohibitory act—get that provision clear—and I also co-sponsored a regulatory act.

I have always believed you could obtain and achieve a thing better by moderation and regulation than by prohibition and strangulation but I promised to the members of this Senate—and amongst them was Senator Woodward, whom I believe at that time voted because of the plea I made that I would introduce legislation along those lines before the Fourth of July of this year—and so I am in favor of getting through any bill that the committee in its wisdom thinks is right, but I do not hold any brief for any newspaper editors, newspaper publishers, or newspaper correspondents, who deliberately lie in their columns relative to any subject before the Senate of Pennsylvania.

I am going to say frankly that the threat has been made—last year—it would mean my political oblivion. What matters is whether I am in politics or not? It does not matter to anybody. I only do my duty as I see it and I am still man enough, with my thirty-one years of life that God gave me, to stand up here and express an honest opinion without the pressure of lobbyists, Mr. Shapiro.

I have the strength of my convictions when I say to this Senate that this prohibitory bill will not in any way stop the deaths or the injuries in Pennsylvania, and who will be responsible for those deaths and injuries this Fourth of July—the men in this Senate and Legislature who do not allow innocent firecrackers to be sold to people, who because of their desire to celebrate, will make up their own home-made firecrackers. Records show without any doubt or dispute that the eight deaths charged in Pennsylvania on the Fourth of July to firecrackers were all from home made firecrackers, all of them home made; that of the eyes lost in Pennsylvania this bill or no bill will stop it; of the two blind men who appeared before the committee, one lost his eyes in a shotgun accident and the other lost his eyes because he took gun powder and put it in a toy cannon—which has been outlawed for twenty years.

I do not care what you do with this bill but I want to tell what I think is my honest opinion of the Philadelphia Inquirer—today and for the last two weeks—one of its writers has pictured me as wrapped up in the coils of a rattlesnake and talking to a child and telling that child that I would see that the rattlesnake was regulated. I happen to have two children of my own and I do not think any act I have ever committed in my life would put me in the same class of the rattlesnake, Moe Annenberg.

I have the highest respect for the man who expresses an opinion that is honest to the best of his knowledge, a fair opinion.

The idea behind all this fireworks agitation in Philadelphia, where fireworks, by the way, have been prohibited for eighteen years—eighteen years they have stopped the sale of fireworks in Philadelphia—and now Philadelphia tells the rest of the State you ought to stop fireworks in the State, everywhere else in the State, there should not be any amendment, there should not be any regulation at all, it should be all prohibited.

The idea behind all this agitation, Mr. President, is this, in my humble opinion: we are faced here in the State of Pennsylvania with a situation whereby much social and humane legislation that was written on the books, after fifty years of struggle by the labor and liberal groups of this district, are to be stricken off in the next two weeks, and so if we can get the people of Philadelphia all agitated to the point, they think there is nothing happening down here except men being paid to keep fireworks legislation from becoming effective, perchance the people of Pennsylvania, of Philadelphia, will not realize what is really happening down here.

The fireworks bill is nothing. It is the bonfire that is something. I will go along with this Senate and prohibit not only the use of small commercial fireworks but I will prohibit the most dangerous type of fireworks, the public display, because the records show, gentlemen of this Senate, if you want to know the records—the records show that more people have been injured, maimed, killed, blinded, by public display of fireworks than by the commercial type, but no, we do not pass any legislation prohibiting public display because then the public reaction would be no good.

If you want to, and are serious in wanting to legislate out all injuries and accidents, then let us vote for a prohibitory bill, and the reason I do not offer the amendment is because the unfair Philadelphia Inquirer would say that I was adopting obstructionist maneuvers to keep the bill from passing. I don't care whether the bill passes or not, but I do want all of you here to believe me when I say I was one of the youngsters that grew up during your prohibition era in these United States. I know some of the evils of prohibition in anything, whether it is fireworks or liquor or anything else. The oldest known industry is the manufacture of fireworks. There is some good in everything in life—some good even in a rattlesnake—this I call to the attention of my good friend John Cummings, who is a very nice boy but runs off his mouth once in a while.

A rattlesnake is something that in the old days everyone thought was a blemish upon the earth and a blight, but today they are raising them for food, they take serum from them—oh, there are all kinds of uses—and just like that, in the same illustration of the rattlesnake to the fireworks, the United States Army finally derived some good from the pyrotechnics manufacturers because they are the only people in these United States qualified to make and produce tracer bullets, aerial flares and bombs.

Now, those things, of course, are trivial when you think of the poor child that may be hurt. I am still the father of my children. I do not want my child to be hurt any more than Mr. Shapiro wants to have his child hurt. I do not want any blindness in my family, because we have blindness in my family, because a full grown brother of mine lost his eye sight in an accident in a wheat field. I know what it is and I am not talking because the Inquirer told me to talk or scares me because from some of the things I have heard about the editor of that paper he was not so nervous about guns in his youth—well, the owner—I don't know the editor, he may be a very nice fellow.

Gentlemen, let us not kid ourselves, here is a committee of the Senate that put out a bill, and after the Philadelphia Inquirer put their pictures in the paper and called them murderers they put out another one. I don't know, but I have my doubts. If it were not for delaying this bill I would like to ask the members of this Senate to prohibit all the manufacturers of fireworks, prohibit all of them. Why did you leave cap pistols in the bill? I suggest that you take cap pistols out because statistics on cap pistols are just as false as statistics on the other fireworks, but no, you are going to leave them in. I do not want to suggest it is because they are from Lancaster county, which happens to be a Republican county it would not be fair to suggest that, but I tell you that if you want to prohibit fireworks you not only have my vote but you have my bill. Senator Reed and I colloborated, we have a prohibitory bill and Senator Reed will introduce a bill that is regulatory—but the committee has made its decision and it has made the decision of the Philadelphia Inquirer, so now we have two bills on the calendar that are both prohibitory and perhaps you can get your pictures in tomorrow's paper. So you are all right now because you put out a bill that was sponsored by the Inquirer—they do not know themselves what is in that bill. They do not know themselves what is in the bill—the Tahl bill. And so, gentlemen, let us proceed with the vote and let us put the Fourth of July back into the same category as Columbus Day and the rest of them, and let the children make their own fire crackers, let them, I say—force them to shoot dynamite caps and all the rest of the dangerous implements that are used on the Fourth of July, rather than let them shoot firecrackers one-half an inch long. So, I am in favor of the admendment; I am against all delay, and I want to posthaste send my message to the Inquirer, the people are emancipated.

Mr. SIPE. Mr. President, I do not wish to unduly prolong this debate but I want to give expression to my belief that the propaganda the fireworks manufacturers have put out that they will likely have to go out of business, if this bill is passed, is misleading propaganda.

I believe that they are just as likely to do more business. Public displays under proper auspices and management are not prohibited. The children still want to see fireworks displayed and sensible parents, I take it, will prefer to take their children to see public displays rather than permit them to manufacture bootleg fireworks of their own; so that the result is just as likely to be that the manufacturers will have a greater market for their product after the bill is passed than they have at present.

One more thought: our good friend, the Senator from Bucks, has already been congratulated by at least two Senators. I add my congratulations, but I do not think it is fair to show special favor to the Senator from Bucks and leave out the other members of the Committee on Judiciary Special. Therefore, I want to congratulate all the members of the Committee on Judiciary Special on the exceptionally fine pictures of themselves that appeared in this morning's Philadelphia Inquirer; and especially on the more handsome pictures of them that appeared this morning in the Philadelphia Record; and I want to give them a suggestion. Looking at those pictures, especially, the ones that are in the Record, I could not help but feel that those members of the Judiciary Special Committee ought not to be fooling around here in the Senate if they are looking for a fortune, because I believe that a fortune awaits them at Hollywood, which is looking for such fine photographic types as these gentlemen are shown to be, especially in the Record.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I do not wish to delay action on this bill but in a few words, and in conclusion, I wish to remind my colleagues that they are confiscating the business of merchants in our State, that you men, by voting for this amendment, are putting out of work between eight and twelve thousand people at once, that you are actually stealing the wage and depriving the livelihood of many thousands of merchants, wholesalers, and retailers.

You do not care, possibly, because it does not affect you directly; but if tomorrow someone should enact a bill and say to you that you shall not receive your last pay check you would act differently, each and every one of you, because that would affect you directly, but keep in mind the many, many persons that will be affected immediately. The sponsor of this Act had that in mind when he put in that bill the date of September First, giving to these people an opportunity to unload their stock.

I think it is a fair bill, if passed with the effective date being made the first day of September; but I do think it is very unfair if you pass these amendments and actually deprive these people of their livelihood.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I have no interest in this bill, although in my county we do have the Continental Fireworks Company, that has a considerable investment. We are very close to fireworks, our children in that county have plenty of fireworks on the Fourth of July, for many years they have had those fireworks, and I know of not a single case in my county of where any child was blinded, maimed, or injured as a result of firecrackers.

I am stating that in order to impress upon my colleagues that despite the fact that we have one of the largest fireworks concerns in my county I have not received a single communication from any of my constituents telling me to vote in favor of this fireworks bill.

That is unusual—you must admit it is unusual. I have not heard and—I have received no communications from my county—not even the newspapers of my county have mentioned anything about this fireworks bill.

I intend to vote against this bill because I am not ready to make the public believe that a harlot of a newspaper like the Philadelphia Inquirer or the Record can blackjack me into voting the way they want me to vote, and especially do I take that attitude when I know from the records of this Senate that the owner of that Philadelphia Inquirer, when there was a profit to be made by violating the law during prohibition days, by engaging in bootlegging, with all its murders and corruption, I am told that his hands were not clean of that, and when that field of lucrative profit went out of his reach he reached his filthy hands in another racket, the horse-racing racket, and I understand he made untold thousands of dollars in that illegal practice, and I am wondering today if a gentleman so minded is not looking forward to the lucrative profits that will be made by bootlegging fireworks from the outside into the State of Pennsylvania.

You cannot change human nature. People who lived before us and before firecrackers were made, in their celebration of the Fourth of July, they used more potent explosives—and we still sell dynamite—people still know how to cut a stick of dynamite in two and get a fuse and a cap and make a loud noise. This bill does not prohibit the use of dynamite for making noise during the Fourth of July at all.

I am not being stampeded by a newspaper that is today the cess-pool of the State of Pennsylvania, that knows no journalistic propriety of any character, just like the harlot that sells its body to the highest bidder, so is the Philadelphia Inquirer, and I am indeed sorry that a few of the writers who write for that paper appear on the surface and socially to be honorable men, who no doubt must be interested to sustain themselves and their families in the salary that is attached.

I have not viewed with little apprehension the statements of the dictator of Germany concerning the newspapers, and I have no doubt in my mind whatsoever why in dictator countries the dictators finally come to the point where they enforce decency in the press by bringing them under control. I can understand their actions—if the free press of Germany or any other country, whether it is Russia or Italy, the press sinks down to a cess-pool such as this Philadelphia Inquirer and a few other newspapers have sunk in this country.

Freedom of the press! Freedom of the press to do what? To amass filthy lucre for Moe Annenberg, to preserve their own personal fortunes, or is the freedom of the press to be exercised for the welfare of the people for the protection of the nation, and not to mass their own selfish fortunes and to protect their own views?

You may laugh, you may sneer, but men are men, no matter where they are born, God creates man the same whether he blows the breath of life in him in Russia, in Germany, in Spain, Italy or in England, and men are born with certain attributes and they will manifest themselves in America as well as they manifest themselves in other places in this world, and I warn you I am not a seer, I am not a prophet, but if you permit this filthy press to carry on with the license that they are carrying on today, unbridled, unscrupulously and without any propriety—and I tell you that probably men in sufficient numbers will rise up here on the shores of America to bring an end to such unbridled license.

I am voting against this bill because I am not going to let anybody in this Commonwealth think that I am going to be stampeded by a press owned and controlled by a citizen like Moe Annenberg.

Mr. Di SILVESTRO. Mr. President, I did not want to enter into this discussion, because I know the difficulty that the writers of the different newspapers have in communicating with their offices and giving the results of the election we are now going to have; but, if the newspapers of Philadelphia, or any other section, have the courage and the strength to come out and expose whatever jockeying was being done in the committee where the bill was, I say congratulations to the newspapers that had the strength of mind and courage to come out and say, men, bring that bill out on the floor and see that it is voted upon by individuals who have the conscience of their duties.

I say congratulations to the press—and I would not say congratulations at certain other time because there are moments when I feel, as my predecessor said, the newspapers are wrong, but at this particular moment I say, thank God, tonight I can go home and sleep peacefully, because I have had opportunity to cast my vote for a piece of humane legislation; and when I vote yes on this bill I vote for the good of my country and of our children, who have a right to be protected from such things as fireworks. I say congratulations to the press and any time that committees think it is their duty or think it is wise, to keep legislation off the floor, let the press expose the individuals who endeavor to do it and bring them out into the open, where we can see them in the broad daylight.

Mr. WOODWARD. Mr. President, I rise to suggest to the Secretary of the Senate that he send a marked copy of the Legislative Journal to the Philadelpha Inquirer, and the Philadelphia Record, for fear they will not have read or it will not come to their ears. I have been very much informed by the discussion.

Mr. OWLETT. I suggest the question, Mr. President.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I ask that the roll be called.

The PRESIDENT. The vote is on the motion to reconsider.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, will you inform me on what the roll is to be called?

The PRESIDENT. For the information of the Senator from Montgomery, this is a vote on the motion of the Senator from Bucks, seconded by the Senator from Tioga, to reconsider the vote taken on the second reading of this bill.

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 140, on third reading, entitled:

An Act affecting cities of the second class A authorizing the annexation of boroughs and townships thereto under certain conditions and in connection therewith placing duties upon or affecting courts of quarter sessions county boards of elections and officers of boroughs townships and cities of the second class A and providing for the payment of the indebtedness of the various territorial units involved

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

BILLS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 158, entitled:

An Act to amend section one thousand two hundred six of and to add section one thousand two hundred six and one-tenth to the act approved the third day of June one thousand nine hundred and thirty-seven (Pamphlet Laws one thousand three hundred thirty-three) entitled "An act concerning elections including general municipal special and primary elections the nomination of candidates primary and election expenses and election contests creating and defining membership of county boards of elections imposing duties upon the Secretary of the Commonwealth courts county boards of elections county commissioners imposing penalties for violation of the act and codifying revising and consolidating the laws relating thereto and repealing certain acts and parts of acts relating to elections" by changing the provisions relating to the judges of the courts of common pleas being in continuous session at the court house on the day of each primary and election and imposing additional duties upon the counsels for the county boards of elections

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I have no interest in this bill, but I think some of the gentlemen in other counties do. This bill provides that judges in second and third class counties shall sit on election day in only one county and that all cases will have to be heard there. That is a matter that perhaps may interest other counties but I have no interest in it.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, there is nothing wrong with this bill. A judge that has three counties on election day can not sit in three counties at the same time. He cannot sit eight hours in one county, eight hours in another, and eight hours in another.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I think there is another provision in this bill, I think this is the bill which provides that counsel for the board must sit during the day during certain hours of the day.

BILL POSTPONED

Mr. OWLETT. Mr. President, I move that further consideration of Senate Bill No. 294, (House Bill No. 443), on third reading entitled:

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. TALLMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 772, (House Bill No. 1064), on second reading, entitled:

An Act to repeal section eight of the act approved the twelfth day of July one thousand nine hundred and nineteen (P. L. 941) entitled "An act providing for the preparation contents style printing and binding of the Legislative Journal and its delivery and distribution providing for the preparation printing and binding of the Journals of the Senate and House of Representatives authorizing the appointment of official reporters expert typewriters clerks and other employes and providing for their compensation and mileage providing for the making of an appendix and index the printing of wrappers or envelopes for mailing the Legislative Journal and repealing all acts or parts of acts inconsistent herewith" in so far as it relates to the preparation printing binding and distribution of the Separate Journal of the House of Representatives.

go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 773, (House Bill No. 1167), on second reading, entitled:

An Act relating to the superannuated members of the State Employes' Retirement System and preserving retirement rights in case of sudden and unexpected death be recommitted to the Committee on Appropriations for the purpose of further study.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objections?

Mr. KUNKEL. Mr. President, I object.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I should like to interrogate the Senator from Somerset, Mr. Ealy.

The PRESIDENT. Will the Senator from Somerset, Mr. Ealy, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, I will.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I should like to ask the Senator from Somerset why he desires that this bill go back to committee?

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, I am advised that this bill will cost the State of Pennsylvania a great deal of money and it opens up an entirely new class of pensioners. This bill has not been considered by the Appropriations Committee and, as it entails a very large expense on the part State of Pennsylvania, I am asking that it go back to committee for further study.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I understand the purpose of this bill, originally was, where a judge has served a certain number of years or dies while he is on the bench, that he is not retired under the present system, he can not collect. This corrects that by giving him the right to notify the Retirement Board in advance that he expects to retire at a specific age.

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, this bill goes very much further than that. I do not wish to take the time to read a letter from the actuary regarding these funds, and I think that the bill ought to go back to committee for further study.

Mr. WOODWARD. Mr. President, I second the motion.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, why cannot the bill be allowed to go over in its order?

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, if the Senator from Philadelphia insists, I will read this letter, which will show the difficulties which will be brought about and what will be entailed by the passage of this bill.

Mr. KUNKEL. Mr. President, I would like to speak on that motion.

The PRESIDENT. Proceed.

Mr. KUNKEL. Mr. President, this bill takes care of cases where judges, who are members of the retirement system and who have contributed to that system for a number of years, meet with sudden death, having not elected to retire or notified the Board of intention to retire, and having made no election as to the provisions for receiving the benefits of the money they are entitled to, out of the retirement system.

Now, this bill was introduced into the House at the request of President Judge William M. Hargest, of the Dauphin County Court. It was drawn up by Mr. Fertig, who had been the Director of the Legislative Reference Bureau for a number of years.

As far as I know, the retirement system can carry cases of this kind. I do not see how any activities can set themselves up as prophets and say that the passage of this bill, which will do justice in cases of this sort, will actually ruin the fund.

That seems to me to be ridiculous and absurd on its face and, therefore, I question the sincerity of the reasons advanced for delaying the passage of this bill. I would like this bill to pass second reading now.

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, since the Senator from Dauphin insists that this matter be debated, I wish to read for his information, and the information of the Senate a letter from the actuary:

"In accordance with your request of the 25th, we have reviewed the bill known as House Bill No. 1167.

"If this bill were enacted into law it would materially increase the amount paid out in benefits and since there is no provision for increasing the rates of salary deductions of the members of the retirement system, the entire load of the added cost would fall on the State. This would mean increasing the biennial appropriations required to support the system.

"It would take some extensive and costly calculations to determine the exact additional cost of these benefits but I estimate that it might add as much as one fifth (1/5) to the cost, which would mean increasing the appropriations in that proportion. In view of the fact that the Retirement Board has asked for appropriation of $1,000,000 for the ensuing biennium for State Annuity Reserve Account No. 2, and $1,470,000 for the Contingent Reserve, the corresponding increase on the basis of one fifth (1/5) would be $200,000 for the State Annuity Reserve Account No. 2 and $294,000 for the Contingent Reserve, a total of $494,000.

"It would be very difficult to interpret the act for the reason that it creates a status, but does not outline the benefits payable under such status. It merely calls for the filing of an emergency application while the employе remains in active service and makes no reference to the benefits that would be provided should such emergency application be filed and the member die while still classified as in active service. I presume the thought was that the member would in connection with the filing of an emergency application indicate what might be called the option or mode of settlement that would be available, but the act makes no such provision. In estimating the increased cost of benefits I have had to take into consideration what would be the most natural choice of the member or the beneficiary and that would be the one of greatest benefit to them, and, therefore, of greatest cost to the State, which would probably be the 100% survivor annuity to the widow or other designated beneficiary.

"We should keep in mind that the Retirement System is designed for the specific purposes of providing incomes for retired employes of the State where retirement takes place on account of age after attaining age 60, or in the event of prior disability, or involuntary withdrawal from service after ten (10) years of service. It is not the purpose of the Retirement System to provide estates or life incomes for beneficiaries, unless at the time of retirement the member elects an option to make such provision. However, except for the result of adverse selections such options do not increase the obligations of the State and the cost to the State.

"The granting of the retirement status after twenty-five (25) years of service without the requirement of attaining age 60 is a feature of the bill which would in many cases greatly increase the outgo of benefit payments and accordingly the cost to the State, all of which has been taken into account in the above estimates."

Mr. WOODWARD. Mr. President, I had the honor of sponsoring this legislation in 1923. Now, one of the keystones of this whole thing is that if it is mutual—I discovered that the Judges had a pension and other employees had a pension and one hundred per cent came out of the treasury of the State. I take some credit for having set up this mutual system of retirement. This bill violates that keystone and the entire cost, additional cost, is placed on the State, and, therefore, it upsets the system and ought to be voted down.

Mr. KUNKEL. Mr. President, the objections of the Senators who are seeking to have this bill recommitted, clearly show that there underlying philosophy is to protect the dollar, magnifying the value of money as against doing justice and fairness to the individual.

I am in favor of being fair and just to judges who have contributed to the fund, even though they be judges, I am in favor of giving them a fair break and permitting them, and their heirs or their families, to receive some benefit out this retirement fund. This act enables that to be done and, therefore, I oppose the motion to recommit this bill to committee and ask for a roll call.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I should like to interrogate the gentleman from Dauphin?

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Dauphin, Mr. Kunkel, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. KUNKEL. Mr. President, I will.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, is this act retroactive?

Mr. KUNKEL. No, Mr. President.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, what benefit will come to the family of a judge who has already died.

Mr. KUNKEL. Mr. President, this Act amends the Retirement Act and it becomes effective upon its enactment.

Mr. DENT. I can undrestand that, Mr. President, if we put an enabling act covering specific cases, for instance, the case of a judge in my county who died and left a widow and daughter, he died suddenly and did not have opportunity to resign, and his family receives no benefit from the amount he paid into the fund. I can understand that. But this Act does not do that. This Act just happens to be for a future time and this will only be a pension system, because a person will not have to retire until he dies, and then this takes care of it. I believe it should go back to committee.

Mr. KUNKEL. Mr. President, the substance of the argument of my colleague from Westmoreland is simply because we have failed in the past to be fair to judges who have died and have not been able to get back the benfit of the retirement system—because we have been unfair to dead judges is no reason we should not be fair now, to living judges. So, there is no merit to his argument at all.

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, this bill does not say anything about judges. It covers the whole class of State employees. I am merely asking that this bill go back to committee for further study so that the budget officers and those who are administering this fund, and others, may determine how much it is going to cost the State and whether we want to open up this new class of pension.

Mr. WOODWARD. Mr. President, I take exception to the argument of the Senator from Dauphin in comparing humanity and money in this instance. I want to say this, that the two worst sinners against this retirement fund were Judge von Moschzisker and Judge Gawthrop. They nearly broke the fund by their retirement, and so it is no use holding up the judges as if they were a shining mark—they are a shining mark the other way in my opinion.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to recommit the bill?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. KUNKEL and Mr. DENT, and were as follows, viz:

BILLS INTRODUCED

Mr. TALLMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to introduce a bill at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. TALLMAN, by request, read in place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 928, entitled:

An Act regulating the business of theatrical agencies to obtain employes and persons to secure employment, providing for a license, registration, bonding and regulation of certain individuals and entities in such business, conferring certain powers and duties upon the Secretary of Labor and Industry of this Commonwealth and of said department; and prescribing penalties.

Which was committed to the Committee on Labor and Industry.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I rise in my place and present two bills, and I would like to say two or three sentences by way of explanation. The first is a bill relating to teachers' tenure and it is sponsored by Senators Mundy, Shapiro, Homsher and myself. The second bill is an amendment to the school code, relating to powers of school directors, which is sponsored by the same four Senators.

These bills are the result of a suggestion that was made last week by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, as a result of which there have been frequent conferences both this week and last. We have agreed that this is the proper way of bringing the subject up, because in place of making a partisan matter out of it, this is really the result of bi-partisan study of the problem.

It is my own strong hope that these two bills may appeal to our colleagues in the Senate and if they do appeal to my colleagues there will be no need for further action on Senate Bill No. 45, which is now resting in the Committee on Education.

I want to take this opportunity to express my own strong personal appreciation of the opportunity to have associated with these men and I want to jointly thank the teachers, the school directors, Doctor Ade, and so many others who have contributed their suggestions and their ideas; and now I ask permission to present these bills to the Chair.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to introduce bills at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Messrs. EDMONDS, MUNDY, SHAPIRO and HOMSHER, read in place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 929, entitled:

An Act to further amend sections one thousand two hundred one, one thousand two hundred five of the act, approved the eighteenth day of May, one thousand nine hundred eleven (P. L. 309), entitled "An act to establish a public school system in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania together with the provisions by which it shall be administered and prescribing penalties or the violation thereof; providing revenue to establish and maintain the same, and the method of collecting such revenue; and repealing all laws, general, special or local, or any parts thereof, that are or may be inconsistent therewith" by defining professional employes, substitutes and temporary employes and further regulating the employment, dismissal, suspension, demotion and retirement of such employes.

Which was committed to the Committee on Education.

They also read in their places and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 930, entitled:

An Act to further amend section four hundred four of the act, approved the eighteenth day of May, one thousand nine hundred eleven (P. L. 309), entitled "An act to establish a public school system in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania together with the provisions by which it shall be administered and prescribing penalties for the violation thereof; providing revenue to establish and maintain the same, and the method of collecting such revenue; and repealing all laws, general, special or local, or any parts thereof, that are or may be inconsistent therewith," by further extending the authority of the board of school directors in the making and enforcement of rules and regulations for the management of school affairs.

Which was committed to the Committee on Education.

REPORT FROM COMMITTEE

Mr. McGINNIS. Mr. President I ask unanimous consent to make report from committee at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

RESOLUTIONS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Mr. TARR. RESOLUTION No. 75.

In the House of Representatives, May 3, 1939.

The President of the United States has recently designated Brigadier General George S. Marshall, born in Uniontown, Pennsylvania and at present deputy chief of the War Plans Division, as the new Chief of Staff of the United States Army to succeed General Malin Craig whose term of command expires in August of this year.

General Marshall began his long and distinguished military career at Virginia Military Institute from which he was graduated with honors in 1901. He enlisted in the 30th Infantry in 1902, served a year in the ranks in the Philippine Insurrection, and was commissioned a second lieutenant from which rank he has been promoted through the various grades to that of Brigadier General in 1936. He attended the Infantry-Cavalry School at Fort Leavenworth and from 1908-1910 he served as instructor at the Army Staff College. During the World War he was assistant chief of staff of the First Division and after the Armistice, he was selected by General Pershing as aide-de-camp and remained with him until 1924, when he was assigned to the command of the 15th Infantry in China.

After three year's service in the Far East, General Marshall was made instructor at the Army War College. Since that time he has served as assistant commander of the Infantry School, commander of the 8th Infantry, senior instructor to the Illinois National Guard and since 1936, as commanding general of the 5th Brigade.

As a native son of the Keystone State who has added to the standing and prestige of Pennsylvania among the states of the Union and as a man who rose from the ranks to the position of great responsibility to be occupied by him in the Army, he deserves to be congratulated, therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby extends its congratulations to the General on his new appointment, and be it further Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of the House transmit a copy of this resolution to General Marshall through the War Department, Washington, D. C.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

By Mr. TROUT. RESOLUTION No. 76.

In the House of Representatives, May 2, 1939.

Whereas, The Pennsylvania Department of Highways in cooperation with the United States Bureau of Public Roads, has been making a State-wide Highway Planning Survey since January, 1936; and

Whereas, The purpose of this Survey, costing more than one million dollars in State and Federal funds, has been to determine accurately the present and future needs of Pennsylvania's highway system; and

Whereas, A resolution, introduced in the House of Representatives on March 10, 1937, failed to produce any information regarding the progress or results of this Survey; and

Whereas, Only information of the detailed type gathered in the course of this Survey can show the manner in which the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania must improve its vast highway network in order to keep pace with the world-wide problem of modernizing roads to meet changing traffic conditions; and

Whereas, The Legislature is now confronted with requests for Motor License Fund appropriations far in excess of the total available in that Fund—requests coming from the Deparment of Highways and from the various municipalities of the Commonwealth; and

Whereas, The so-called "Million Dollar Highways Planning Survey" represents the logical source of authentic information upon which the Legislature can base its current action in allocating Motor License Fund appropriations; and

Whereas, Governor James, in his Budget Message, has emphasized the delicate and critical situation confronting the Motor License Fund because of greatly increased costs of primary, secondary and rural road system maintenance; Therefore Be It Resolved, That the House of Representatives call upon the Department of Highways for a report and summary of the Survey findings to date, so that the Legislature can proceed intelligently in acting upon the various proposals now pending for the appropriation of Motor License Fund revenues for the 1939-41 biennium;

And Be It Further Resolved, That the Department of Highways be urged to make this data available at the earliest possible moment, preferably within the next week, so that the data will be of maximum value to the Legislature.

Referred to the Committee on Highways.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. HERBERT B. COHEN. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, the history of this bill is very amusing. I understand when this bill was introduced, in an effort to clarify the law relative to depositories for state funds, during the time the bill was in Committee incubation it gave sprout to what the Republicans would call "wings," but we Democrats feel that they are nothing but horns, namely, it was transformed into a ripper. They expect to place the duty of writing checks that are issued by the Department of Public Assistance in the hands of the Department of Public Assistance rather in the hands of the official check writing department of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, namely, the State Treasurer. There is no other function of the Commonwealth wherein the checks that are issued by the State Treasurer are written by the department that has the warrant for the issuance of those checks. This bill would do otherwise. I cannot but feel that this is a deviation from a long period of policy and expediency. We are going to be confronted with the situation where the Treasurer who has the established personnel, the established machinery, the established equipment, the established check writing paraphernalia, we will forego the efficiency that he has instituted in his department, the efficiency that has been instituted in the department after long years of service in writing a great number of checks, and transpose that into the Department of Public Assistance where new paraphernalia, new check writing material, new machines and new efficiency must be developed in order to meet the exigencies. Further it is going to result in delay because it will be necessary for checks to be sent to the treasurer, go back again and then come back again to the treasury with the result that relief recipients will be delayed in the receipt of their checks.

I feel that this is a very foolish enactment and would ask e membership of the House not to vote for its passage.

Mr. WOODSIDE. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, this bill provides among other things that the checks that are paid to recipients of relief shall be written by the Department of Public Assitance instead of the Treasury Department, and this is the reason: The Department of Public Assistance has plates made up with the names and addresses of the people who receive relief. They must run those off and send the names and addresses over to the Treasury Department and they in turn must run them off and send out the checks which is a duplication of work. It is estimated that this will result in a saving to the Commonwealth of between eighty thousand and one hundred thousand dollars a year at least. Therefore, this bill should be adopted.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. O'KEEFE. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, House Bill No. 1234 is a repealing act that was passed in 1937, setting up a trial board in the city of Pittsburgh. May I briefly say that this trial board that we have at the present time was set up after an independent survey was made by the Institute of Public Administration, a research branch of Columbia University, and may I say that they arrived at the decision to set up this present trial board after an investigation of many weeks. I quote from part of their report:

"During the early months of the survey, each Wednesday morning found a group of 30 to 40 police officers in the hallway on the second floor of the City-County Building. From 25 of these a trial board was selected; others came to stand trial for various infractions of the rules and regulations, and still others to prefer the charges and give testimony. Succeeding Wednesdays sometimes found some of the same officers present to answer charges, because infractions were numerous and penalties light. It was entirely possible for an officer to be the accused one week and to sit in judgment of a fellow officer the next. It was a perfect cycle of futility.

"Under this procedure, the director of the department of public safety selected seven names, by lot, from the list of 25 supplied him. The director and the accused were each entitled to challenge two, leaving three officers to comprise the court of trial or inquiry. The officer of highest rank was given authority to issue and enforce process to secure the attendance of and to administer oaths to witnesses. He was invested with the same power enjoyed by any justice of the peace in the Commonwealth.

"It is not difficult to imagine the results of such a trial board procedure. The constant change of personnel on the board defeated any sustained memory of the sitting judges. Selection by lot made it possible for one partner to be on the court trying his working companion. Officers with grudges or grievances tried one another. Sentences were biased, inequitable, and unfair. Mayors followed a precedent of reducing or remitting sentences, usually for political reasons. It was a thoroughly bad system, one that had a seriously demoralizing effect on the members of the department, and one which many of them deplored.

"Investigation of the disciplinary records of the present members of the force produced some striking results. Of those now working for the bureau, over 50 per cent have had from one to sixteen charges of misconduct in varying degrees of severity lodged against them. From September 1935 to December 1936, there were 93 trials involving 102 defendants. Ninety-seven per cent resulted in convictions. It may safely be concluded from this fact that charges were not lightly or frivolously brought and pressed for trial. During this period of 15 months about 15 per cent of the entire force was found guilty of various major and minor derelictions.

"Fifty-nine per cent of all defendants were charged with intoxication either alone or in conjunction with some other offense, yet 75 per cent of all cases received a sentence of only 30 days suspension or less.

"Following are two sample disciplinary records. These were picked at random from a score of the more aggravated cases.

Record of Police Officer "A"

10-11-15	Neglect of duty	$ 5.00 fine
3- 2-17	Disobedience	$ 5.00 fine
6-18-17	Neglect of duty	$10.00 fine
8-27-17	Conduct unbecoming officer	$ 5.00 fine
10-20-19	AWOL	Dismissed (reinstated)
10-18-21	AWOL	$25.00 fine (8-11-21)
7- 9-24	Intoxication	$25.00 fine
2-18-25	AWOL	$25.00 fine
2- 8-28	Neglect of duty	Dismissed (reinstated 3-29-36)
11-26-30	Intoxication	30 days
7-31-31	Intoxication	30 days
12- 7-32	Intoxication	20 days
7-29-36	Intoxication	15 days

"Officer "A" is still a member of the police department despite this record of insubordination and inefficiency. Note that during recent years sentences were less severe as time went on."

After appearing before the trial board on thirteen different occasions on the 13th occasion the penalty was lighter than for his first offense.

"Record of Police Officer "B"

6-17-25	Conduct unbecoming officer	Exonerated
7- 1-25	AWOL	$15.00 fine
8-12-25	Intoxication	$25.00 fine and 30 days
10-17-26	Conduct unbecoming officer	$25.00 fine
11- 2-27	Ignorance of rules	30 days
3-16-32	Intoxication	10 days
5- 2-32	Disregard of rules and orders	30 days
10-26-32	Not properly patrolling post	15 days
1-31-34	Intoxication and conduct unbecoming officer	Dismissed 2-19-34 (the record shows no date of reinstatement)
12- 4-35	Intoxication	15 days
1-22-36	Sleeping on duty	10 days
4- 8-36	Conduct unbecoming officer	$10.00 fine and 30 days

"Officer "B" is still a member of the police department although his record clearly shows him to be a persistent offender."

This is another case where on his twelfth offense the officer received a lighter sentence than for the other eleven offenses.

This same bureau made a survey of the present trial board and has this to say:

"In considering a new trial board procedure, it was apparent that nothing short of statutory revision would accomplish its end. Consequently the advice of the law department was sought and readily received. After considerable study, it was concluded that by reverting back to the old act of 7 March, 1901, with certain amendments the desired results could be obtained. A bill was accordingly introduced in the state legislature, was enacted and became effective in June of this year. "The new procedure provides for a court of not less than three nor more than five persons belonging to the police force who are equal or superior in rank to the accused. Such a court is appointed and sworn by the Director of Public Safety, and at the present writing is composed of three inspectors of police. An inspector of a police district in which the accused works may not sit in at his trial but another is appointed to the court temporarily. "The new court has a desirable permanence and the benefits of an official memory carrying over from previous cases and testimonies. It is functioning smoothly and is achieving a much higher degree of discipline. The decrease in the number of disciplinary cases which has been so apparent in recent months is evidence of its success. Since June 1937 when the amended act became effective, there have been but thirty cases before the court, twenty of which have resulted in the dismissal of the defendant from the police force, and the balance in appropriate sentences. A general bolstering of the morale is noticeable throughout the whole department and a sound disciplinary system is actually an accomplished fact."

Mr. Speaker ladies and gentlemen of the House, I believe the members of this House owe it to the people of the city of Pittsburgh to give them the best police service they can have. The majority of officers under the police force in the city of Pittsburgh are good men and no man who attends to his duty need fear the present act.

I ask the members of the House to allow Pittsburgh to have the same trial board it has which has given such efficient service and has bolstered the morale of the police of the city of Pittsburgh.

Mr. FLEMING. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, I do not wish to infringe on the time of the House any longer than to say that we have made a very careful study of this bill, and we did find some very bad defects in the present set up in the city of Pittsburgh. The bill I am introducing will remedy those mistakes. I believe this is a very fine piece of legislation. For that reason I would ask the members of this House to support the bill and vote for it.

Mr. O'KEEFE. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Fleming.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Allegheny permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. FLEMING. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. O'KEEFE. Mr. Speaker, may I inquire of the gentleman from Allegheny whether under this bill an inspector of police is allowed to sit on the trial board?

Mr. FLEMING. Yes, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. O'KEEFE. Mr. Speaker, is it not a fact that under this bill only those in the competitive class can sit on the trial board?

Mr. FLEMING. Mr. Speaker, I will have to refer to that section. In answer to Mr. O'Keefe I would say that the inspector would be put in the competitive class.

Mr. O'KEEFE. Mr. Speaker, is it not a matter of record at a public hearing held on a bill similar to this that those testifying in support of this bill stated that there had been a marked decrease in drunkenness since the induction of the present trial board?

Mr. FLEMING. Mr. Speaker, I do not have the record of that public hearing, and I cannot answer.

Mr. O'KEEFE. Mr. Speaker, for the benefit of the members of the House, I may say that during the hearing on this bill the member who appeared in favor of this particular bill told the committee, and may I state for the record:

"Mr. Cooper asked if there was a marked increase or decrease in drunkenness in the last two years, and Mr. O'Toole answered, 'There is a marked decrease in drunkenness since this act has gone into effect.' Men on the force are teetotallers now who were drunkards two years ago."

Mr. FLEMING. Mr. Speaker, I would like to say in answer to Mr. O'Keefe's reading from the record, that Mr. O'Toole who gave that testimony immediately after receiving a copy of the mimeographed statement made of the hearing turned to me and said that the stenographer had evidently made a mistake, and that he had not so answered Mr. Cooper.

Mr. O'KEEFE. Mr. Speaker, I was not so informed.

Mr. FLEMING. Mr. Speaker, I apologize to Mr. O'Keefe for not informing him to that effect.

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 1093, entitled:

An Act to further amend section one of the act approved the tenth day of May one thousand nine hundred twenty-seven (P. L. 879) entitled "An act regulating the sale in bulk of fifty-one per centum or more of the stock of goods wares or merchandise of any kind fixtures machinery equipment or real estate by every corporation joint-stock association limited partnership or company providing certain requirements therefor and imposing certain duties upon the seller and buyer and fixing penalties" by requiring certain matters to be filed with, or obtained from the Department of Revenue instead of the Auditor General in order to conform said act to existing law.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. HERBERT B. COHEN. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, House Bill 1093 is the first proper change of function that the majority has recommended so far this session. While this possibly might also be construed to be a ripper, nevertheless I believe the provisions of the act and the functions that are transferred from the Auditor General to the Department of Revenue are proper and I would suggest to the membership of the House that they vote for this bill. I would not be surprised that in this instance the Republican majority will follow my suggestion.

Mr. HEWITT. Mr. Speaker, as sponsor of the bill I wish to thank the minority floor leader for his kind consideration of my idea of good legislation.

Moran,	Turner,

Speaker.

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 1388, entitled:

An Act to amend section three of the act approved the second day of May one thousand nine hundred five (P. L. 351) entitled "An act authorizing the Attorney General to retain and employ attorneys to represent the Commonwealth in criminal proceedings in the various courts of oyer and terminer general jail delivery and quarter sessions if requested to do so by the president judge of the district having jurisdiction thereof providing for the compensation of such attorneys and defining their duties and powers" by making counties liable for the payment of the compensation and expenses of attorneys appointed by the Attorney General

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. HERBERT B. COHEN. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, I do not want the majority record to grow to any tremendous proportions. It seems that having introduced a good bill, they come right back with a bad bill. This bill will provide for the payment of council fees to attorneys selected by the Attorney General when the Attorney General intervenes in a matter, but the bill provides that payment of such council fees shall be made out of the county treasury. It seems very innocuous. In a great many instances it doesn't make an awful lot of difference whether the expenses are paid by the county or whether the expenses are paid by the Commonwealth, but in instances such as the Kelayres murder trial, a situation such as the investigation in Philadelphia, a situation such as the Uniontown trial, will impose upon the treasuries of the local counties a burden that those particular communities are not able to meet. Schuylkill County, during the prosecution of the Kelayres murder trial had a tremendous obligation on its hands, which obligation, under this act, would fall on the shoulders of the taxpayers of Schuylkill County. I cannot see, where the Attorney General sees fit to intervene, that the expense of counsel should be borne by anyone except the Commonwealth, and where the Attorney General does not see fit to intervene, then the expense should be borne by the county. Under those circumstances I feel that the intervention should guide to the fullest extent the payment of the costs, and the Attorney General once having intervened, the cost of counsel fees should be on the Commonwealth or on the Department of Justice. Under those circumstances, I feel that this bill should be defeated.

Mr. WOODSIDE. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, there are two situations in which the Attorney General intervenes in criminal cases. One is when he does so on his own motion; when he feels that the chief law enforcement officer of the Commonwealth should go into a county or deputy attorney generals to conduct the trial of a case in order to make certain that it will be done fairly. In those situations the expenses and the salary of the deputy attorney general will be paid by the Commonwealth.

The gentleman from York, Mr. Cohen apparently did not read this bill in connection with the act that is amended. This bill is to take care of but one type of situation and that is where the judge of the Court of Quarter Sessions of Oyer and Terminer in a county say to the attorney general: "We want you to appoint a deputy attorney general to conduct a particlar trial in our county." In that case, where the request comes from the county, the deputy attorney general's salary or the salary of the special deputy appointed must be paid by the county. It seems to me that that is a fair proposition. If the state intervenes of its own accord, in that case the salary of a special deputy attorney general must be paid by the Commonwealth, but where the county requests the deputy attorney general or special deputy, in those cases it will be paid by the county. It seems to me that that is a fair proposition and that we should adopt it.

Mr. HERBERT B. COHEN. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, I feel sure that while the portion of the bill susceptible to reading, without reference to the act that it seeks to amend, does not indicate what the gentleman from Dauphin has stated, nevertheless, I feel sure he has read the original act and undoubtedly knows whereof he speaks. However, the law as it stands now is to the effect that where the attorney general or deputy attorney general goes in, either at the request of the judges or on his own motion, those costs are paid by the Commonwealth. It is very reasonable to believe that the local courts would not ask the Attorney General to come in and intervene in a criminal case, unless the case had some state-wide implication, unless the problem was such that the entire Commonwealth would receive the benefit of the services of the deputy attorney general in actually trying the case.

I feel that to transpose those costs on the county, or to make it possible to transpose those costs on the county where the attorney general intervenes, irrespective of what the reason may be for such intervention, to make the local county pay the expense of counsel fees, is imposing a hardship on the counties which in very many instances, in long trials and long litigations, those particular counties cannot pay. You men who come from the small rural couties, if you are confronted with a very serious situation that would require the intervention of the attorney general, the counsel fees and the costs occurred in that litigation possibly would exceed the entire income of the county from all taxable sources, and I would suggest if you are interested in maintaining a certain definite budget system and in knowing where your particular county is going, the county should not be exposed to the hazards of the payment of expensive counsel fees during litigation such as set forth by the gentleman from Dauphin. I would suggest that this bill be not passed.

Mr. WOODSIDE. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, one other point I might call to the attention of the members of the House, and that is the setting of the fees which would be paid by the county would be left up to the county so that the expense to it would not be any greater than the expense would be if it made its own appointment out of the county.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, I would like the gentleman, Mr. Peale, to explain this bill.

Mr. PEALE. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Dauphin, Mr. Woodside.

Mr. WOODSIDE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to inquire of the gentleman what particular provision he would like to have explained.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to have section 5, page 4, lines 16 and 17 explained.

Mr. WOODSIDE. Mr. Speaker, that section provides that nobody may interfere with or coerce a laboring man in his right to organize, form or join any labor union or labor organization.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, may I inquire of the gentleman from Dauphin whether that would prohibit one man from asking another man to join a labor organization.

Mr. WOODSIDE. No, certainly not, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, would it prohibit a labor organizer from going into any community or mill to organize the workers.

Mr. WOODSIDE. No. Mr. Speaker.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Well, Mr. Speaker, it is then just a question of defining the word "coercion" from any source, is that it.

Mr. WOODSIDE. Mr. Speaker, I would say that the gentleman will have to interpret the word "coercion" as he wishes to apply it.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, I would like the gentleman to interpret "coercion."

Mr. WOODSIDE. Mr. Speaker, I think the gentleman will find it at several places in the act. It is its common dictionary meaning. I think the gentleman is acquainted with what the word "coercion" means.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, in this particular case I really don't know just what the word "coercion" means, because it may mean a whole lot and it may mean very little.

Mr. WOODSIDE. Mr. Speaker, the word "coercion" means the same thing under this bill as it means any other place it is used.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, I would like the gentleman from Dauphin to explain section 5, page 4, lines 24, 25, 26 and 27.

Mr. WOODSIDE. Mr. Speaker, that amendment reads as follows:

> "But it shall not be an unfair labor practice for an employer to express opinions with respect to any matter of interest to employes or the public provided such expressions are not accompanied by acts of discrimination or threats."

In other words, it makes certain that there will be no discrimination or threat against employes by an employer, but at the same time if the employer would like to express an opinion on any matter he has the right to do so. I think that is a good, sound American principle.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, Section 5, page 4, lines 16 and 17 seem to me to to be very simple on the surface, but it is one of those amendments that was spoken about the other day, it looks simple but it might mean a great deal when put into practice. "Interference or coercion from any sources." We know in the past when labor organizations went into the field and tried to organize, they ran into plenty of obstacles that were set up by the corporation in order that they would be able to define the words and put them into force in such a manner that they would be able to take this particular line and not permit our going in there and organizing those men, by saying we were trying to coerce them. I think it is very vicious because it is depriving a man of his constitutional rights. I think a man has a right to go and organize persons who are in a mill or industry or anything else. I feel that this amendment has been inserted for the purpose of stifling the worker, and labor organizations in this particular Commonwealth.

On the same page,

> "Section 6. To interfere with, restrain or coerce employes in the exercise of the rights guaranteed in this act but it shall not be an unfair labor practice for an employer to express opinions with respect to any matter of interest to employes or the public provided such expressions are not accompanied by acts of discrimination or threats."

Mr. Speaker and members of this House, I know that these very lines are going to stifle the work of organized labor in this Commonwealth. I can state one particular case where the organizers did go and try to organize, and the employes were told in a nice way if they did not belong to a labor organization they would be treated a lot better, with the result that a number of them got a cut in their wages after voting down the labor organization. In this particular place, the Pittsburgh Mercantile Company, which has six company stores in the Monongahela valley.

I wish to say, Mr. Speaker and members of the House, that this amendment is just a smoke screen to protect employers who try to influence their employes not to join labor organizations, so that later on they may be able to take advantage of them. I therefore think that this amendment ought to be voted down.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker and members or the House, this bill if properly designated should be labeled, "A measure for the promotion of jurisdictional labor disputes." If you will turn to page 7 you will note an apparent innocent amendment which reads > "Provided that when any group of employes shall by majority vote signify its preference in favor of the craft unit the board shall designate such unit as the appropriate unit for such purposes."

Now, what actually does that mean? That means that in the case of an industry which as the result of a majority vote of all the employes, affiliated we will say with the CIO, and the CIO has actually signed a contract with the employer on the lines of the one big union idea, then under the terms of this amendment, particular craft groups in an industry organized on the one union basis can proceed to organize and obtain recognition. What that would mean in the promotion of jurisdictional disputes can be readily recognized. I think this bill should be amended to the effect that after a particular industry, by a majority vote of the employes, has affiliated either with the CIO or the A. F. of L., that thereafter during the life of the contract no other labor organization be recognized as a bargaining unit in that industry. If such limitation were placed in the measure you would not have an amendment designed to promote jurisdictional disputes, but as the amendment reads, you simply turn over every organized plant in the state of Pennsylvania to a series of unending controversies. I suggest to the sponsors of this bill, if they are serious about it, that they pay attention to that particular situation, and limit the period during which craft units can be organized in an industry that is already organized as a result of a majority vote of that industry.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Dauphin, Mr. Woodside.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Dauphin permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. WOODSIDE. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman from Dauphin kindly advise us whether or not the interference that is mentioned on page 4 would mean that no picketing would be permitted during a strike?

Mr. WOODSIDE. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman mean "interference" used in line 16?

Mr. HOLLAND. Just a minute, I lost my place. Line 16, page 4, where it says, "Free from interference or coercion from any source."

BILL PASSED OVER

There being no objection House Bill No. 1076, Printer's No. 463, was passed over at the request of Mr. WOODSIDE.

BILLS ON THIRD READING

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 1129, entitled:

An Act authorizing the Department of Property and Supplies to acquire by purchase, or gift, or lease on behalf of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania the real estate and personal property of the Seventh Day Baptists of Ephrata in whole or in part; to provide for the control, management and supervision of the property when acquired by the Pennsylvania Historical Commission; authorizing the Commission to make and enforce rules and regulations for its preservation and visitation and to charge a fee for admission thereto and exhibition thereof.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. HERBERT B. COHEN. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, I cannot see the necessity for this act. However, I wish to state that it is quite in line with the policy that we, when we were in the majority, followed relative to the preservation of historical buildings throughout the Commonwealth. Both in the 1935 and 1937 sessions of the legislature considerable sums of money were appropriated to take over the Cloisters at Ephrata in order that they be preserved. It is a unique historical institutions, and a unique indication of the development of that society in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

I feel that this bill should be enacted lest someone misunderstand the attitude of the minority irrespective of the fact that I feel there is ample legislation on the books of the Commonwealth now which would enable the Commonwealth to acquire the Ephrata Cloisters.

Mr. ROYER. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, I want to thank the minority floor leader for his support of this bill.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows, viz:

REASONS FOR VOTE

Mr. GATES filed the following reasons for his vote.

I vote for Senate Bill 268, for the following reasons:

Under the Public Service Company Law of 1913 the Public Service Commission was empowered to allocate the expense of grade crossing eliminations in such proportions as it saw fit among the parties involved, i. e., the railroad, the municipality, and the Commonwealth. The same power has been vested in the new Commission by the Public Utility Law of 1937. In fact the railroads have been required to bear an average of approximately fifty per cent of the cost of eliminations approved by the Commission since the 1913 Act become effective.

The proposed grade crossing bill changes the allocation of the expense of a grade crossing elimination by limiting the railroad's share thereof to fifteen percent, [in addition to such portion thereof as may be for the sole benefit of the railroad].

This proposal is inspired by changed economic and transportation conditions which require the adoption of a new public policy in relation to the elimination of highway-railroad crossings at grade and the apportionment of the expense thereof. The significance of the recent vast changes in economic and transportation conditions and the necessity of a new public policy in connection with the apportionment of the expense of grade crossing eliminations was recognized by the United States Supreme Court in its 1935 decision in Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. v. Walters, 294 U. S. 405. There Mr. Justice Brandeis, speaking for the whole Court, said this:

"* * * The charge of arbitrations is based primarily upon the revolutionary changes incident to transportation wrought in recent years by the widespread introduction of motor vehicles; the assumption by the Federal Government of the functions of road builders; the resulting depletion of rail revenues; the change in the character, the construction and the use of highways; the change in the occasion for elimination of grade crossings, in the purpose of such elimination and in the chief beneficiaries thereof; and the change in the relative responsibility of the railroads and vehicles moving on the highways as elements of danger and causes of accidents* * * *" (p. 416).

"* * * The main purpose of grade separation therefore is now the furtherance of uninterrupted, rapid movement of motor vehicles. In this respect grade separation is a desirable engineering feature comparable to removal of grades and curves, to widening the highways to strengthening and draining it, to shortening distance, to setting up guard rails, and to bridging streams. The railroad has ceased to be prime instrument of danger and the main cause of accidents. It is the railroad which now requires protection from dangers incident to motor transportation. Prior to the establishment of the Federal-aid system, Tennessee highways were built under the direction of the county courts, and paid for out of funds raised locally by taxation or otherwise. They served, in the main, local traffic. The long distance traffic was served almost wholly by the railroads and the water lines. Under these conditions the occassion for separation of grades was mainly the danger incident to rail operations; and the promotion of safety was then the main purpose of grade separation. Then, it was reasonable to impose upon the railroad a large part of the cost of eliminating grade crossings; and the imposition was rarely a hardship. For the need for eliminating existing crossings, and the need of new highways free from grade crossings, arose usually from the growth of the community in which the grade separation was made; this growth was mainly the result of the transportation facilities offered through the railroad; the separation of grade crossings was a normal incident of the growth of rail operations; and as the highways were then feeders of rail traffic, the community's growth and every improvement of highways facilities benefitted the railroads. The effect upon the railroad of constructing Federal-aid highways like that here in question, is entirely different. They are not feeders of rail traffic. They deplete the existing rail traffic and the revenues of the railroads. Separation of grades serves to intensify the motor competition and to further deplete rail traffic. The avoidance thereby made possible of traffic interruptions incident to crossing at grade is now of far greater importance to the highway users than it is to the railroad crossed. For the rail operations are few; those of motor vehicles very numerous." (pp. 421-424).

1. The Railroads of the State Have in the Past Borne a Large Proportion of the Cost of Grade Crossing Eliminations.

In the earlier days, and even at the time of the passage of the Public Service Company Law in 1913, the railroads constituted the chief means of transportation, and highways were definitely of secondary and generally of only local importance. The highways served primarily local low speed traffic, and the railroad with its speed traffic was then considered the main cause of accidents at grade crossings. Accordingly, it was thought proper to permit the commission to place a large proportion of the expense of elimination on the railroads and the Commission did so to the extent of an average of 5 percent of such total expense.

With the advance and spread of and rapid mechanical improvement in the automobile and the construction of large numbers of new and improved highways in all parts of the state, the density of highways traffic increased by leaps and bounds, and the dangers at grade crossings which had long been recognized by the courts of the Commonwealth and by the public, became many times more menacing. The number of accidents at grade crossings in Pennsylvania (as shown by the records of the Public Service Commission) jumped from 334 in 1915 to 682 in 1922 and to 1183 in 1926, and the total number of persons killed and injured in such accidents increased from 468 in 1915 to 626 in 1922 and 927 in 1926. The demand for the elimination of grade crossings became more insistent, and their elimination became important as one of the major phases of the work of furnishing the people of Pennsylvania with safe and adequate highways.

That the legislature was becoming alive to the need for affirmative aid from the state in financing this all-important program for the enhancement of public safety is shown by the fact that the Act of July 18, 1919 (P. L. 1048) appropriated $200,000—at that time a substantial sum for the Commonwealth's share in grade crossing work. That act limited the amount which could be authorized from that appropriation to one-third of the total cost of any grade crossing project. In addition, other funds of the state available for highways purposes were used for this purpose. Figures compiled by the Bureau of Railway Economics of the Association of American Railroads show that in the period from 1919 to 1932 a total of 904 grade crossings were eliminated in Pennsylvania—more than in any other state during that period—and that the contribution of the railroads to the expense of eliminating those crossings in Pennsylvania was $46,923,976. The advent of the depression so weakened the financial condition of the railroads that it has not been possible for them since that time to finance the elimination of crossings on the large scale of the previous years, and the eliminations which have been accomplished since 1932 have been made possible chiefly through the assistance of Federal funds. The average annual contribution of the railroads to the elimination of grade crossings in Pennsylvania from 1923 to 1932, inclusive, was in excess of $3,500,000. Force of circumstances reduced this average annual share to $333,000 in the years from 1933 to 1938, inclusive.

2. Highways Mileage and Motor Vehicle Operations Have Increased Tremendously in the Last Fifteen Years, While Railroad Mileage Has Remained Stationary and Railroad Operations Have Declined Substantially.

The remarkable and far-reaching changes that have taken place in recent years are graphically illustrated by the statistics which show the amazing increase in highway mileage and motor vehicle operations, while railroad mileage has remained static and railroad operations have substantially decreased. For example, the total mileage of highways in the State has increased from 12,167 miles in 1927 to 38,095 miles at the end of 1936, an increase of over 200% whereas the total miles of road operated in Pennsylvania by the principal railroads of the state had increased from 10,954 in 1927 to 10,977 in 1937, representing an increase of approximately 2 thousandths of one percent. The number of motor vehicles on the highways of the state in 1937 had increased 140% over the number of 1922 and 50% over the number in 1927, while the total train miles of the railroads of Pennsylvania had declined 10% under 1922 and 17% under 1927. These facts are best illustrated by the following tables:

State Highway Mileage
Surfaced	8,827	29,494
Non-surfaced	3,340	8,601
Total
Total	12,167	38,095

Motor Vehicle Registrations in Pennsylvania	1922	1927	1937
Automobiles	763,916	1,354,548	1,738,797
Trucks	65,821	200,367	246,024

Total (System) Train Miles of Railroads Operating in Pennsylvania	1922	1927	1937
	282,899,839	303,933,212	252,203,583

Pennsylvania in 1937 had the third largest number of motor vehicle registration of the 48 states, having been fourth in 1927. There are today 86,749 miles of streets and highways in Pennsylvania, compared with 10,977 miles of railroad.

There are approximately 1,750,000 private automobiles from other States use Pennsylvania highways. These automobiles produce at least ten times the number of passenger miles as is produced by all railroads in the State of Pennsylvania. In other words, for every mile a railroad carries a passenger, automobiles and buses carry ten passengers one mile.

A greater use of grade crossings is made today by the motor vehicle than by the train. On some crossings there are several hundred motor vehicles passing over the crossing for each train that moves over the same crossing. Due to greater efficiency on the railroads making possible the operation of larger trains; and due to competition and depressions, the number of trains operated has been greatly reduced during the past ten years. On the other hand, the number of motor vehicles has increased, with one or two exceptions, every year over the previous year.

3. The Chief Source of Danger at Grade Crossings Today Is Not the Railroad but the Motor Vehicle.

In the earlier days the traffic on the highways was low-speed and primarily local in character, and the chief source of danger at grade crossings was considered to be the high speed of the trains. Today, with the tremendously increased speed and power of motor vehicles and the improvements in highway surface these motor vehicles have become a greater source of danger than the trains. The rapid improvement in the design and construction of motor vehicles and highways in the last decade now makes it possible for highway users to travel at speeds in excess of most passenger trains. In contrast with the narrow, winding dirt roads of twenty-five years ago, and the two-width macadam highway of twelve years ago with its sharp curves, steep grades and limited range of vision, is the comparatively straight four-trip concrete highway of today, with slight grades and excellent driving vision. As a result of these revolutionary changes in motor transportation hazards and safety problems, unknown during the early part of the century have been created.

In order to give the public the maximum of protection, the railroads subject their employees to exacting discipline and rigid training. No corresponding safety measures are imposed upon motor vehicle operators, many of whom are negligent and reckless. The increased hazards of today are not due to the railroads but are due entirely to expenditures made by the highway authorities for improved roads, to the production of automobiles capable of operating over improved highways at speeds in excess of seventy miles per hour, and to motorists who insist upon operating their cars at top speed, even when aware that they are approaching a railroad crossing. Even the protection of crossing gates and watchmen and flashing light signals does not stop the motorists, many of whom drive so fast and so carelessly that they crash through the lowered gates or into the flashing signals, and have no one but themselves to blame if an accident results. For example, in 1936 there were in Pennsylvania 741 cases of motor vehicles crashing into or through crossing gates or striking flashing signals or running into the side of trains. (528 cases of crashing into gates or signals without running into trains, 9 cases of crashing into gates and being struck by trains, and 204 cases of running into the side of trains)—more than all of the train-automobile collisions at grade crossings during the whole year, the total of which was 670.

Thus, railroads today are still being compelled to pay for damaged and injuries which are no longer due to them but to the speed and recklessness of automobile drivers. In 1937 approximately 30% of all the persons killed and injured in grade crossing accidents were killed or injured as the result of an automobile being driven onto the crossing when the train was already there and into the side of the train—in other words, in cases where the automobile driver was so grossly negligent and so completely lacking control of his car that he disregarded not only the warnings of protective devices at the crossing but also the fact that the train was already on the crossing, and ran into the side of the train. [The courts of the Commonwealth have time and time again held that the automobilist is grossly negligent in such a case. In Wink v. Western Md. Ry. Co., 116 Pa. Super. Ct. 374, the Superior Court said this: "The appelate courts have frequently ruled that, notwithstanding road and weather conditions, it is the duty of an automobile driver to have his car under such control that he may discover a grade crossing or any other obstacle in his immediate path in time to enable him to stop within the range of his lights, or turn the car to avoid danger" (p. 375)—Warning signs and signals are provided by railroad companies to warn of the approach of a train to a crossing and not that the crossing is already occupied. The cars themselves on the track are sufficient warning to a driver of a car of that fact" (p. 378). And yet such cases accounted for as much as one third of all the deaths and injuries at grade crossings in 1937. Examination of thousands of cases shows that the great majority of the grade crossing accidents today are due solely to the high speed and recklessness of automobile drivers.]

4. The Railroads Today are Financially Too Weary to Bear a Large Proportion of the Cost of Grade Crossing Eliminations, While State Revenues Available for Highway Improvements Have Increased Tremendously.

It is a well known fact that one-third of the railroad mileage of the country is in the hands of receivers or trustees and another third is on brink of insolvency. The railroad situation generally is critical, and the financial condition of many companies, including many of those operating in Pennsylvania, is precarious. Labor costs, taxes, and other operating expenses have been increasing steadily, while the trend of operating revenues has been downward. The result has been a severe decline in railroad earnings. In 1938 the principal railroads operating in Pennsylvania suffered a total deficit of over $48,000,000.

Roads Operating in Pennsylvania	Deficit or Surplus for 1938
Baltimore & Ohio	$13,178,225	(Def.)
Bessemer & Lake Erie	815,190
Cambria & Indiana	778,757
Central Railroad of New Jersey	4,264,825	(Def.)
Delaware & Hudson	156,205	(Def.)
Delaware, Lackawanna & Western	3,954,954	(Def.)
Erie	10,777,794	(Def.)
Lehigh & New England	337,798
Lehigh Valley	3,280,613	(Def.)
Monongahela	183,665
Montour	574,637
New York Central	20,154,357	(Def.)
New York, Ontario & Western	1,994,314	(Def.)
Pennsylvania	3,010,781
Pittsburgh & Lake Erie	1,698,521
Pittsburgh & Shawmut	74,392	(Def.)
Pittsburgh & West Virginia	200,213	(Def.)
Pittsburgh, Shawmut & Northern	77,106	(Def.)
Reading	3,295,309
Western Maryland	455,461
Total	$48,660,330	(Def.)

On the other hand, the funds available to the Commonwealth for highway construction and improvement have increased over 100% in the last ten years, as shown in this table:

Motor Vehicle Fees	1927	1932	1937
Registration	$25,916,220	$29,676,167	$38,332,000
Gas Tax (State)	17,286,333	30,452,677	55,711,000
Total	$43,202,553	$60,128,844	$94,043,000

In the years 1930 to 1936, inclusive, a total of $52,240,303 in Federal funds have been made available to the State Highway Department for road construction and improvement in Pennsylvania. Clearly there is today far more money available from these sources for grade crossing elimination than there is from the railroad treasuries.

5. The Present System of Imposing a Large Proportion of the Expense of Grade Crossing Eliminations on the Railroads is Unjust and is Contrary to the Public Welfare.

The steam railroads have been the most influential single factor in shaping the economic development of the United States, and are still the backbone of the transportation system of the country. They afford the cheapest and safest mode of transportation consistent with speed and comfort. As an arm of the national defense, they are indispensable. The railroads are one of the nation's principal and essential industries, and a large measure of the country's welfare depends upon their solvency. They give employment to upwards of 1,000,000 highly trained men and women of whom about 100,000 are employed in the State of Pennsylvania. Inactivity of the railroads has contributed more to the stagnation of general business, lack of confidence in American investments and unemployment than any other one factor in the national recovery. If the railroads are to remain in business, giving employment to hundreds of thousands of people and purchasing millions of dollars worth of essential supplies they must be permitted to make ends meet.

Orders for eliminations, which ignore the welfare of the railroads, are both onerous and unjust. The preservation of the railroads is essential to the "public welfare." Moreover, the work of eliminating railroad crossings at grade from the streets and highways of the state is public work. It is a public undertaking in behalf of the people of this state, in which the railroads have arbitrarily been required to pay one-half the cost. Public work should be paid for out of the public treasury or by those who are specially benefitted thereby.

The main purpose of grade separation is now the furtherence of uninterrupted rapid movement by motor vehicles. In the language of Mr. Justice Brandeis, heretofore quoted, "The railroad has ceased to be the prime instrument of danger and the main cause of accidents. It is the railroad which now requires protection from dangers incident to motor transportation.

Elimination of grade crossings does not improve the daily performance of the railroad train. It does eliminate delays to many motor vehicles. Accidents at grade crossings occasionally derail the train and injure passengers, but by far the most people killed or injured in such accidents are motor vehicle passengers. In other words, the people whose lives are saved by the elimination of grade crossings are almost entirely confined to the motor vehicle passengers. Motor vehicles use public highways under authority issued by the State. This authority carries with it the obligation to safeguard the general public as well as the motoring public in every way possible. There are thousands of buses and trucks using the public highways for commercial purposes under authority issued by the State Officials. This use of public highways for private profit carries with it a definite obligation to safeguard the general public and the commercial highway user in every way possible.

During 1937 and 1938 over 19,000 applications were received by the Public Utility Commission from truckers for common or contract carrier rights on the public highways of the State. Most of these applications were granted. Many of these truckers are in competition with the rail lines. Requiring railroads to assume an unreasonable share of the cost of eliminating grade crossings makes it easier for the commercial trucker to compete with the railroads, while it adds a burden to the rail carriers. In view of these tremendous and far-reaching changes in economic and transportation conditions, there can be little doubt that it is no longer just and equitable to compel the railroads to assume so large a burden in the elimination of grade crossings, and that such policy, if continued will be definitely detrimental to the public welfare. This fact has been recognized by the Federal government, which has adopted the general policy of paying for the entire constructional cost of grade separation, out of appropriations to the states for that purpose. Mr. Thomas H. MacDonald, Chief of the United States Bureau of Public Roads, who has repeatedly advocated the reduction of the railroad's share of the cost of elimination and the modernization of state laws on this subject, said, in an address before the American Railway Engineering Association at Chicago on March 17, 1937:

> "Perhaps the first major recognition by the public of the changed condition of transportation and the realization that the railroads are an asset to be conserved, rather than a monopoly to be curbed, came with the provision in the federal highway legislation that permitted the construction costs of grade crossing improvement to be paid wholly from public funds. While it may be said that this departure from established custom grew out of the emergency necessity to provide employment of sound character, nevertheless its acceptance by the public without adverse criticism indicates the distance that public thought has traveled in its willingness to deal fairly, and as conditions now exist, with the railroads. In this, certainly the traditions of the past have been denied by a recognition of actualities and a willingness on the part of the public to meet these fairly. If we can hold to the thought of efficient transportation in whatever form, as a national asset, the debate as to meticulous methods of assessing costs of improvements which add to the efficiency of transportation loses force. The important point to the public is that those improvements shall be made."

Former Governor Alfred Smith, as a member of the National Transportation Committee, in a supplemental report, dated February 13, 1933, expressed the opinion that the railroads' share of the cost of elimination of grade crossings should be materially reduced. "In many states," he reported, "the railroad's share is as high as 50%. This is unduly burdensome and unfair to the railroads, and it has naturally resulted in bitter opposition to elimination orders and the general slowing up of the crossing elimination program. This reduction cannot, however, be accomplished by federal legislation or fiat. It must be brought about by persuasion in the several states."

In the New York Constitutional Convention of 1938, which considered this subject, Governor Smith said: "I am satified, after studying this subject for twenty years and after successfully sponsoring two amendments to the constitution, that there is no answer but to put the entire burden of the cost of elimination on the state." The proposal to limit the railroads' shares to 15%, which that convention approved and placed before the voters, was adopted at the last election as an amendment to the Constitution of the State of New York. Pennsylvania should not hesitate in following this enlightened lead, and should amend her laws to conform with modern conditions of highway and railroad transportation as rapidly as possible.

BILLS ON THIRD READING

The SPEAKER. The Chair will now return to page 37 of the calendar, bills on third reading, which were passed over.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 1030, entitled:

An Act to further reenact and amend the act, approved the second day of June, one thousand nine hundred and fifteen (P. L. 736). entitled as amended "An act defining the liability of an employer to pay damages for injuries received by an employe in the course of employment; establishing an elective schedule of compensation; providing procedure for the determination of liability and compensation thereunder; and prescribing penalties," changing maximum and minimum rates, periods, total amounts and aggregate of compensation; changing the system of computation of wages for compensation purposes; changing practice and rules of evidence; defining earning power after accident; authorizing the board to terminate compensation in certain cases; changing the classes of dependents entitled to compensation in case of death; increasing powers and duties of the board; and imposing additional penalties, and generally amending, clarifying and changing the provisions of said act.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, I desire to refer generally, relatively briefly to all of the compensation bills on the calendar for present action.

The SPEAKER. The Chair believes if the members who desire to debate these bills will refer to them generally it will expedite debate. That will be permitted, unless there be objection. The Chair hears none.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, I have heard there are only seven men in the world who understand relativity. The impression that I have gained from previous comment regarding compensation legislation is that there are not seven men in the world who understand it, but that only one single intellect has grappled with the intricacies of this problem. The advent of this bill in the world, and the manner and method of its accouchement, as it were, serves rather in my mind to pass doubt upon its maternity. Apparently, as the matter has been presented to the House up to this time, someone has ascended the high mountain and there talked with God, received a series of compensation acts and has brought them down to the world with not a single word to be changed. That is one story. It seems, however, that those who talked with God sought later to change the story. They did not talk with God, it seems they wrote it all themselves.

We have before us a series of intricate, complicated measures relating to the relation of employe and employer and we are told that the person who wrote these bills found it necessary to labor alone.

There were none to help him; there were none that came to his rescue, but word by word, sentence by sentence, the bill was compiled by one lonely mind operating in the realm of improbability.

This is a peculiar situation, gentlemen, and I acknowledge that I approach the contemplation of these measures with misgiving, for it has already been intimated on this floor that if the people on this side of the House knew anything about compensation they would not ask foolish questions. The fact that questions are asked, it has been intimated, proves an abysmal ignorance on the matter of compensation. Mr. Speaker, that is right. People ask questions because they don't know. Up to the present time the response to questions has been, "If you are so ignorant, if you don't know, you should sit in silence and accept these measures from the people who do know."

Compensation legislation in Pennsylvania, Mr. Speaker, the history of it dates from the realm of antiquity. There are legends running back to 1915, and some people understand that back in 1915, a young man by the name of Dave Reed had something to do with the drafting of compensation legislation as it appeared initially upon the statute books of Pennsylvania. That is one legend, but present day testimony is to the effect that there wasn't any "Dave Reed" and the body of compensation law as it existed prior to 1937 was the sole product of a single mind emanating from Jefferson county. That may be right, Mr. Speaker, and it leaves me in a very unfortunate position.

When this bill was pending on second reading, a few members of the House, who perhaps should have known better, asked how much this schedule contained in the pending program was likely to lower compensation rates, and the answer was at that time, "that is a very intricate question." It was something for the underwriters to estimate, and really if anybody knew anything about workmen's compensation they shouldn't ask such a foolish question. Another question was asked, "How much it would lower the compensation of the worker; how much less you would get for a foot; would you get anything for a foot? How much less would you get for an eye; would you get anything for an eye." Again this House was told that those were technical matters, that they were features to be framed by a universal mind and that clumsy laymen, mere members of the House, that were not schooled in the intricacies of compensation legislation should not attempt to put their clumsy fingers into the very delicate mechanism that had been framed by an expert. The measure was not to be questioned in this House, it was not to be questioned by representatives of labor, it was to be sent to the Senate and let the other house modify even a single "small t" or dot a single "i" at its peril, because we had the extremely perfect legislative achievement of all times.

I confess, Mr. Speaker, that I have heard of a prophet and I have heard of infallibility, but I have never before encountered a situation where a party caucus could be told by the sponsor of a bill, "If you change these bills in any respect, they cease to be my bills. These bills are to go through as my bills and don't you touch them, don't you modify them, because if you do you disturb the delicate background."

Members of the House, you may have such confidence in that overmastering intellect that you are willing to take all this legislation as is.

I confess that the manner in which this bill has come before the House; the manner in which its provisions up to this time have been protected against inquiry and against discussion, has prejudiced me and led me to the conclusion that I cannot trust completely measures reputedly framed by one man, and that individual for a lifetime connected with a certain school of thought in matters relating to compensation. So, because that doubt has arisen, I must decline, until I have had more information than I have been able to gather up until this time, to support these measures, submitted as they have been under the auspices with which you are better acquainted than I am.

Mr. HERBERT B. COHEN. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, at the expense of possibly boring the members of this House, I nevertheless feel, in order to appreciate the seriousness of the proposition before the House, there should be a detailed enumeration of just exactly what these bills do. Possibly I could shorten it to a very great extent by calling to the attention of the membership a few percentages that I calculated, that clearly indicate the reduction that the worker will suffer in his compensation payments.

If you will refer to page nineteen of the bill, you will see that for the loss of a hand there has been a reduction in compensation from two hundred weeks to one hundred and seventy-five weeks, or twelve per cent reduction for the loss of a hand. For the loss of an arm, a reduction of nineteen percent; for the loss of a foot, a reduction of fourteen and one-half percent; for the loss of a leg, a reduction of fourteen percent; for the loss of an eye, in addition to the removal from the bill of compensation for the removal of cataract from the lens of the eye, in compensation payments alone, in addition to the reduction of the liability for compensation for the loss of an eye, there is a reduction from two hundred weeks to one hundred and twenty-five weeks, or a reduction of thirty-seven and one half percent. Even I cannot conceive that the Governor of the Commonwealth, who in his telegram which was read at this House indicating that he had passed through the vale of darkness, if he has been consulted about this bill, could stand for a reduction for the loss of an eye of thirty-seven and one-half percent in compensation. It clearly indicates that either he has not been consulted or that his telegram did not express his real inclination.

I think I should point out in a categorical manner just exactly what this bill does. I feel sure that each individual member should have clearly before him the effect of each and every amendment that has been placed in the bill.

This bill does the following:

Specifically exempts industrial homeworkers from coverage.

Deletes language exempting domestic servants and farm laborers.

Deletes language subjecting individual partners and officers of corporations from penalties imposed.

Deletes language covering volunteer firemen.

Deletes provision giving minors power to contract, etc., and to file claim against parent employer.

Strikes out presumption in favor of employe in damage suits and provision for admissibility of remarks made by employe within 12 hours after the accident.

Changes language covering liability for principal contractor for compensation to injured employe of uninsured subcontractor to cover only accidents occurring on property of principal contractor.

Bars compensation when injury is caused by employe's disobedience of safety rules or wilful failure to use safety appliances.

Strikes out language giving minor employed by parents right to compensation and covering minors or other employes engaged at time of injury in violating law, rule or regulation of business or order of employer.

Reduces time limit for compensable death from 500 to 300 weeks after the accident.

Provides that employe must be "actually" engaged in business of employer.

Makes possible self-insurance of part of liability; abolishes annual fee for self-insurers.

Abolishes requirements for posting of notice of compensation by employer.

Abolishes penalty for fraudulent statements to department by employer but raises penalty for failure to secure compensation liability.

Compensation for total lisability—Raises percentage of wages from 65 to 66-2/3. Lowers weekly minimum benefit from $12 to $9. Imposes maximum amount limit of $7,500. Abolishes provision making compensation retroactive after disability has continued four weeks. Provides that when total disability follows partial, the 500 weeks period for which benefits for total is payable shall be reduced by number of weeks for which partial benefits were paid. Reduces maximum weekly benefits in cases of permanent partial from $18 to $15, and reduces maximum period from 400 to 300 weeks. Raises percentage of wages payable for schedule injuries from 65 to 66-2/3 and makes reductions in weekly periods during which compensation is payable in the case of loss of major members. Abolishes from schedule compensation for loss of toes. Reduces compensation for disfigurement. Provides that periods for compensation for permanent total and permanent partial injuries shall run concurrently.

Medical benefits—Reduces period of medical benefits from 3 months to 60 days and abolishes right of board to extend period. Abolishes right of employe to be examined by his own physician at expense of employer. Abolishes provision for dental services and artificial appliances. Reduces maximum amount from $200 to $150. Provides in addition hospital service during 60-day period at prevailing rate.

Provides that disability payments shall be deducted from death benefits.

Imposes restrictive provisions for compensation for hernia.

Death benefits—Reduces minimum weekly compensation. Raises maximum percentage of wages payable from 65 to 66-2/3. Reduces age of department children from 18 to 16 and deletes provision for payment of benefits until age 21. Restricts compensation to widows. Imposes maximum weekly benefits of $18 and reduces minimum average weekly wage upon which benefits are to be calculated from $18.50 to $15. Makes general reduction in amount of benefits payable to children.

Changes method of calculating average weekly wage.

Right there let me stop for a moment and explain just how insidious that apparent innocous amendment is. The membership of this House well knows the situation occasioned by the Romig Decision when it was decided by the Superior Court of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and well knows that the Supreme Court of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania overruled the Superior Court in the Romig Decision. To re-enact all the insidious obnoxious elements of the Superior Court's Romig Decision, makes it possible for an injured employe to receive as low as fifty cents a week compensation for injuries suffered even though the individual lost a member, an arm, an eye or some other vital part of his body.

Bars compensation to alien widows and children.

Reduces time for employe's notice of injury to employer from 30 to 14 days, regardless of any knowledge of injury by employer and provides that if notice is not filed within 90 days no compensation shall be allowed.

Reduces time for filing claims from 2 years to one.

Abolishes penalties on employers who make commutations of benefits in violation of the act and introduces a provision relating to commuted settlements which is disadvantageous to employes.

Reduces amount of compensation payable to injured minors illegally employed from double regular amount to 110%.

Strikes out provision for presumed election to be covered in absence of rejection of act.

Deletes provision for second injury fund.

Abolishes penalty on employers who fail to send copy of agreements to department and makes other deletions disadvantageous to labor concerning agreements disapproved by department.

Permits review and modification on basis of fraud, mistake of law, or fact or change in condition of employe, provided that except in case of eye injuries, petition for review must be made within one year after date of last payment of compensation.

Provides that compensation of impartial physicians appointed by referee shall be paid by department and later assessed upon either or both of the parties, instead of being paid by the employer.

Provides that findings of fact by the board must be based upon "sufficient competent evidence to justify the same."

Reduces time within which rehearings may be held from 2 years to 1, and deletes language suspending time during which appeal may be taken during determination of certain rehearings.

Provides that when case is remanded to board by court the testimony taken in the original hearings shall (instead of may) be considered as though taken in further hearing.

Reduces time in which a final receipt for payment of benefits may be set aside from 600 weeks to one year and limits grounds upon which it may be set aside to conclusive proof that the receipt was secured by fraud, coercion or other improper conduct.

Deletes provisions for assessment of medical and legal fees in the same manner as other awards against employer and lauguage permitting representation of claimant by union agent.

Abolishes assessment of costs of administration of workmen's compensation and rehabilitation act on insurers and self-insurers.

Changes separability clause to provide that the damage law and workmen's compensation sections must stand or fall together.

Mr. Speaker and members of the House, I feel we have before us a bill of such tremendous importance to every working man, woman and child in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, before we act with favor upon it every one of these particular amendments should be the subject of study and scrutiny by each member of this House. I do not fear that a continuation of the act of 1937 is imposing upon industry in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania a burden that it cannot carry, but I do fear that if we pass this act, and this act is ever signed by the Governor and made the law of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, that the men, women and children injured in their service to industry will not receive their just and honest dues. I fear that with the passage of this bill, with benefits below those of the old 1915 act, we are going to establish in this Commonwealth a prominent relief roll, a roll composed of men injured in their service to industry in the Commonwealth; men who are not receiving from that same industry which they served compensation sufficient to afford them the opportunity to rehabilitate themselves. I fear with the passage of this act and its final enactment into law we are taking away from industry a burden which should be theirs, and placing it upon the Commonwealth, because with this act in effect, with these benefits reduced, with continued industrial accidents, with relaxation of safety measures which the employer will allow because he will know that injuries are now not going to cost him anything, we will have in Pennsylvania a group of injured men, women and children right on the relief rolls, from which they will never be removed. What you are doing is standing on the floor of this House talking about the fair women who found jobs for a couple of people in some township and took them off the relief rolls, and by your vote on an important measure you are making injured men and women, men and women who are working so impecunious by the miserly benefits that you are attempting to pay them, that after each and every injury those same people will go right back onto the relief rolls that you are trying to reduce. If the men, women and children, who for years have served industry and are injured in following their gainful employment, are injured at the expense of our industrial society, deserve nothing better than they will get by House Bill 1030, you are the men who are maintaining the relief rolls at their high level. You are the men who will say, "Once injured, no opportunity for rehabilitation." You are the men who will say, "Once having lost an arm, no opportunity for gainful employment." You are the men who will say, "The widows and the children must also become recipients of our relief rolls."

I plead with the membership of this House not to enact into law a bill of such vital importance, a bill of such destructive nature to the working men and women of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Mr. HINDMAN. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, I realize that there has been quite a little discussion on this bill, but it is one in which I am so vitally interested that I do not feel I can allow the opportunity to pass without any making some expression.

Ladies and gentlemen of this House, this is one of the most important bills we have had to consider during the period I have been in Harrisburg. Pennsylvania as you know is an industrial state, hence workmen's compensation has played a very important role ever since its enactment in 1915. As you probably know the act passed in that year was intended to be supplemented by the Legislature in 1935 but that act was killed in the Senate. In 1937 a new compensation law was passed and I regret very much that while parts of that law, we all admit, went too far in certain directions, yet it certainly was a very great improvement over the previous law of 1915. At the time the law was passed in Pennsylvania, this great industrial state, stood about 23 in the list of states in the United States having compensation laws. When these last bills were enacted a great deal of time was given them. Weeks were consumed in committee, the bills were studied, they were amended and changed. Actuaries were consulted, the medical profession was consulted, the industrial employer of labor was consulted, the Department of Labor was consulted, and there were a great many specialists along that line who were taken into the confidence of those who were framing the laws.

Mr. Speaker, I say to you if that law was not right, parts of which the sponsor of this bill reminded me were not constitutional, how much more likely to be unconstitutional is a bill which is the product of the brain of one man. I am sure I have always had the most profound respect for this gentleman, but his party has given him one of the biggest contracts we have ever known to be given a single man, who, according to his own admission was the sole author of this bill.

Ladies and gentlemen of this House, even Thomas Jefferson, to whom we give credit for framing that wonderful document, the Declaration of Independence, was not the sole framer of it, but he had a great many advisors, so I feel with such a momentous proposition as this before us, it should have had a great deal of study and deliberation, it should have had the very best talent you could get to help work out this momentous problem. As to the time a man who was injured in industry is entitled to compensation, I say to you it is fallacious that a reduction should be made from sixty to thirty days. As far as the compensation to the medical profession is concerned, that was reduced from two hundred dollars to one hundred and sixty dollars. In the Act of 1915 each physician was permitted one hundred dollars for each case. That was very small indeed, and the cost due to the advance in the methods in treating these cases, the necessity for x-ray pictures and the various forms of treatment which are necessary, the expense is approximately thirty to thirty-five percent greater today than it was at that time.

I submit to you that that is a very unfortunate part of this bill. I have it on good authority that the leaders of the medical profession in the state of Pennsylvania were not even consulted regarding any portion of this bill. What happens if a man is injured in industry, as many of them are, and cannot work perhaps for six months? According to this bill, after the first sixty days, he will either have to be turned over to charity or be treated by a physician without any remuneration at all.

Ladies and gentlemen of the House, I repeat and say, "Amen" to what has been said before. I hope that you will not pass this bill in its present form. In the interest of thousands of working men in all walks of life in this great State of Pennsylvania, consider this bill most carefully and do not pass it. I say that to you in all seriousness. If you do you are retrogressing. You will be taking one of the most backward steps that I have known to be taken since I have been here on this Hill. I hope you will ponder it very carefully and decide for yourselves, knowing that your final verdict will mean a great deal to thousands of people in this state.

Mr. MORAN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Jefferson, Mr. Wilson.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Jefferson permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. WILSON. Mr. Speaker, the Democratic party has picked out its speakers, and I am very grateful that they have established themselves and are speaking ahead of me. I see no reason why the gentleman from Allegheny should take a different course from those who have preceded him. It seems to me if he has some objection to this bill he should do like the other gentlemen have done and express his opinion. I would like very much if the gentleman would state his objections, as well as any others who have objections to the bill, so that one statement by myself will be enough. Therefore, I would not like to be interrogated upon the merits of the bill at this time.

Mr. MORAN. I thank the gentleman from Jefferson, Mr. Wilson. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, you are considering at this time a bill or a number of bills that are going to effect every worker in the State of Pennsylvania. Some twenty-five years ago there was a workmen's compensation act attempted in the State of Pennsylvania. The only thing that was "workmen's compensation" about it was the name. Up until 1937 it did very little good for the people in industry. They say that a lot of industrialists do not participate in the Workmen's Compensation Act as it now is in Pennsylvania. They say that it puts a handicap on industry, and they even say in some cases it drives industry out of Pennsylvania. I say, ladies and gentlemen of this House, that the only thing it has driven out of Pennsylvania and the only people that do not want to participate in workmen's compensation in Pennsylvania, are the sweat shop operators, and we are very glad they do not participate in it. We hope they get out of the state of Pennsylvania.

No industrialist fails to set aside a part of his profits against wear and tear and accidents that decrease the efficiency or necessitate the replacement of his machinery. But what howls arise when some industrialists are asked to set aside a sum to pay compensation for the accidents that happen to their workers?

The reason for the distinction is rather brutal:

Machines cost more than men.

An injured workman can be replaced by another workman at the same wages. The industrialist loses nothing. But society loses the services of a worker—perhaps permanently—through an injury sustained while in the employ of a certain employer.

Someone must take care of that injured worker.

Such cases should not be a charge upon the public at large any more than a broken machine in a factory should be replaced out of tax funds or private charity.

The cost of industrial accidents to humans belongs in the same place as industrial accidents to machines—on the shoulders of the employers in whose service those accidents occur.

Some employers fought any State laws for workmen's compensation. The same type today fights legislation to make them pay something approaching the whole cost of such accidents.

Pennsylvania's workmen's compensation law was passed about 25 years ago, when there was still a quabble over whether to have any such statute. This is why it was an inadequate compromise until enacted in its present form in 1937.

It was so out of date that this great industrial State ranked Thirty-fifth in a list of how well States provide for the care of injured workmen. Pennsylvania was even behind the Philippine Islands.

There was simply no excuse for that—although there is an explanation.

As long as the Pennsylvania Legislature was dominated by servants of the reactionary type of employer there was little hope of bringing the workmen's compensation law up to date.

But the 1937 Session passed measures liberalizing this law and put this Commonwealth among the leading states of this Union.

Ladies and gentlemen of the House, I say to you if you want to make Pennsylvania a backward state, as far as workmen's compensation is concerned, vote for these measures, if you want to continue to keep Pennsylvania among the leading states of the Union, with a liberal compensation law, vote against these measures.

MOTION TO TABLE BILL

Mr. MORAN. I move, Mr. Speaker, that this bill be laid upon the table.

The motion was not agreed to.

On the question recurring.

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. WILSON. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, it is rather a wonder to me that the gentleman who has preceeded me did not think of the old saying, "The more they wondered the more the wonder grew, how one small head could contain all he knew."

Mr. Speaker, in order to get this thing rightly before the House it becomes necessary to take a few minutes to explain it. If there were anything that would convince those who know compensation that the gentlemen on the other side are not posted, have not taken the pains to post themselves and have not presented it correctly, the talk that has preceeded me is surely convincing on that score.

Mr. Speaker, and members of the House, let us take the history of compensation for just a moment. The Compensation Act was passed in 1915. They refer to the fact that I was a member of the House, and they also refer to the fact that Senator Reed was here and helped to draft this law. Senator Reed was not a member of the House, but he was on the Committee appointed in 1913, and he, together with others made a report. In 1915 he made a report of certain parts of it and he was very able in that work. You will remember that Francis Shunk Brown, a former Attorney General put the act together. Those of the members who were here, together with myself on the Committee were the ones responsible for putting the act on the statute books.

We started out with a maximum of ten dollars a week and a minimum of five dollars a week. That went along for a number of years. It was amended in 1917, and increased to twelve dollars for the maximum and six dollars for the minimum. Again in 1927 the maximum was increased to fifteen dollars a week and the minimum to seven dollars a week. It went along from 1927 until 1935, when the Democrats came into power and introduced a bill. That bill was a bill that would have, if it had been passed, increased compensation very greatly—over two to three times. It is unnecessary to go into that because it did not pass the Senate. Then in 1937 we had the act of 1937. That is the Act that these gentlemen have been speaking about so highly. I do not recall that any one of them endorsed the provisions of that act in their entirety, but even if they did it would do no good. The trouble is this, we are confronted with a situation, Mr. Speaker, and that situation should be explained in two or three important particulars so that the public can understand them.

During the session of 1937, shortly after the act went into effect there was a commission appointed by this General Assembly to investigate the costs of taxation and workmen's compensation. That report should have been in but it was not in until after the 1938 session went by. I tried to get the report of this commission before the Legislature but they would not release it. We claim, of course, that was for political reasons. I want the gentlemen in this House to know who were on that commission that investigated taxation and workmen's compensation. The members of the Commission were: John H. Dent, Chairman, Senators Stiefel and Gelder, and Representatives Lovett, Trout, Vice Chairman and Weiss.

Various complaints were made about the increased cost of workmen's compensation, and they were fully verified by the report that was made by that commission. It said it was prohibitive and here is the whole thing set forth. It went as high as three hundred per cent. It did say that industry was leaving the state. There are just a few words in this report that are very interesting. Some of these people had their compensation cost increased from nine dollars per hundred to twenty-two dollars per hundred; others from $8.33 to $18.64; others from $12.00 to $29.90; others from $8.30 to $17.71; others from $9.00 to $20.00; others from $8.00 to $18.00; others from $7.33 to $25.25; others from $9.00 to $19.83. All of these facts were known by those who made a business of compensation and knew what the effect would be and believed it. Sixty-five per cent of the anthracite employers rejected the act and that began when this new act went into effect. No matter how wonderful are the provisions of this new act, it makes no odds how fine it would be if the act would be complied with, but they are not complying with it, they are unable to comply with it. The people who are hiring the men in the anthracite fields, the large employers, could not carry it, and so they rejected the act. There are over two hundred thousand people in this state that are under no act at all because of the fact that their employers have rejected the act. Not a single word has been spoken by the gentlemen who have preceded me, on that score. And now, even more of these anthracite coal operators would have rejected the act, leaving their employes without any protection whatsoever so far as compensation is concerned, had they not been actually bankrupt or in the hands of receivers. These gentlemen, if they know anything about the situation in Pennsylvania will say to you, in addition to that the bituminous coal operators are finding themselves, in the same condition as the little saw mill operators, and the rest of the people are in the same condition, all these things are taking place and they are rejecting the act. Hundreds of them, one thousand six hundred and thirty employers, many of them large, have rejected the act, and you have no compensation for those employes. What explanation have you to offer the men and the dependents of those employes who were not covered by compensation? Over half of those in the anthracite field are not covered, more and more of the bituminous people are rejecting the act, and not only the bituminous people but other people. Not one word has been said about the rejection of this act and how many people would be left entirely without protection, if you please, be left alone with nobody to pay their expenses to get a high class lawyer to bring an action under the old law, a condition that would bring about a breakdown of workmen's compensation in Pennsylvania to such an extent that more than half, approximately three-quarters of them in the anthracite field are not covered by this act at all, and a goodly proportion of the bituminous operators are not under the act at all. Many employers find that they cannot get insurance at all. This is well known to all the employers in this state.

It is all right to talk about one thing and then leave the most important thing out. It is not a pleasant thing to be accused of being a one-man power. There isn't a man in this House but knows there isn't any such thing as that.

The problem was this: The workmen's compensation act in Pennsylvania has broken down and every man who pays any attention to it knows it. The gentlemen on the other side, at least two of them were here in 1935, advocating a bill that was almost twice as much as the bill that was finally passed in 1937. The gentleman from York and the gentleman from Allegheny were supporting a bill that was twice as much as the bill actually passed. They actually advocated on the floor of this House, instead of a one to two hundred per cent increase, a two to four hundred per cent increase. That was their knowledge of the bill. These two gentlemen know at least, that the Committee that wrote it somewhere and some way in 1937 passed the bill through the House of Representatives and sent it to the Senate. When the Senate got it they cut it right in two in the middle, and the two gentlemen, the gentleman from York and the gentleman from Allegheny, were actually parties to a bill that was twice as much as the bill that was passed. They were told at the time, or at least an effort was made to tell them at the time, on the floor of this House, as to what the bill would do. They interrogated me in the same manner, and in words of condemnation that were much the same as when I began to talk about this bill. When the bill came back from the Senate, ladies and gentlemen of the House, after having been cut right in two in the middle by amendment in the Senate, the question arose, would the House agree to those amendments? and in spite of all that had been said, in spite of all the arguments much the same as tonight, in spite of all the promises and the wonderful things that that act was going to do they said, "Yes, Mr. Speaker, we move that those amendments be concurred in," reducing it right in two in the middle; cutting their words right in two in the middle. When that took place they even went so far as to commend me, if you please, the one man who was such an enemy to labor and the dependents of those deceased laborers. They did it on the floor of this House. The record of 1937 will show that the sponsor of the bill said in public that he owed me a debt of thanks and so expressed himself. He said every word I said was true; every amendment made was correct; that the act as framed in the House would have closed all the mines in Pennsylvania; it was too high and therefore they were accepting the amendments of the Senate. That is what happens, gentlemen, when men who are inexperienced try to write a law, and that is what they get. After it was enacted into law, what did they get? They got the act of 1937 and these reductions began to take place and industry began to flee from Pennsylvania, just as I had predicted it would. The rating bureau took weeks and weeks of time to ascertain how much they should be charged for rates after the bill went into effect in its present form.

It would be enlightening to the people on the floor of this House and within the sound of my voice, who go out tonight and look around and about the cities and towns, if they will pick up the Pennsylvania Compensation Manual that is based upon the act of 1938 and read some of it.

This comparison has been prepared by the people who tell you what the rates shall be.

You can readily see what is wrong. They are living up in the clouds instead of taking conditions as they actually are. Here is a further point along that line, the whole act was tested as to the reasonableness of it and as to the constitutionality of it, and that eventually resulted in an opinion being filed by the Supreme Court, in a unanimous opinion, if you please, that was written by Justice Maxey. That opinion embraced forty-seven pages in the first instance and goes into great detail. Not one word has been spoken by the attorney from York about this decision. Many of the things he says I have deleted from the bill were deleted in compliance with the directions that had been laid down by this opinion of the Supreme Court. Not one word is said about the opinion of the Supreme Court. I wonder if they are going to cast reflection upon the unanimous opinion of the Supreme Court. Remember this, a tailor or a dressmaker given a certain amount of cloth from which to complete a garment to be handed to the purchaser, given only so much cloth, must then go about it to construct that garment in the best manner possible. What I claim for this act, this bill No. 1030, is that it is a balanced bill, made necessary by reason of the opinion of the Supreme Court and by reason of the fact that the act broke down and the employers of this State by the hundreds rejected it, and there is no compensation for the people. We had to start upon the premise that compensation could not be put into a bill that would cost in its entirety much more than the act prior to 1937. Why haven't they told you anything about that?

These rejectors haven't had any difficulty because they rejected the act. When an employe is hurt what do they do? They merely settle with their employes in litigation cases, taking as the basis the act prior to 1937, and therefore when they settle with them they make a complete settlement as though it had been made under the old law. All over this state employers are doing that today, and when they make a settlement it stays, it is done, it is completed and there are no complaints. The lawyers are not filing claims, and thousands of the poor widows are not paying exemption fees to anybody. There isn't anything paid out because employers are settling these cases under the old act.

Mr. Speaker and ladies and gentlemen of the House, if a very great percentage of the employers of this state are now settling their claims under the old Common Law, using as a basis the Workmen's Compensation Act as it was prior to the Act of 1937 why would any reasonable man or woman on the floor of this House advocate the continuance of an act that would bring about such an intolerable condition? Why under the sun would any reasonable man condemn a member of this House who conscientiously and sincerely brings into play all of his knowledge based upon the training and experience that he has had to do the fair thing with the amount of cloth with which he has to work? I fully realize that the finger of scorn may be pointed at me temporarily for this work. Be that as it may, I have great faith that it will gradually sink into the minds of the people who have sat here and criticized so freely that they have brought destruction and ruin upon themselves. They refused to accept the situation as it is. Now, what do I do? I merely do the best I can, in good faith, with the material with which I must work.

Mr. Speaker, I have here five bills, and the proposition is that these five bills are being considered at once. They are House Bill Nos. 1030, 1031, 1301, 1302 and 1401. It is my contention, Mr. Speaker, that these five bills are companion bills, and that the people who have spoken before me have made many mistakes because they failed to read all these bills to see what they do. Somebody prepared a list of the things that they thought I did or I didn't do. Many of these things, as I said before, are partially right, but had to be done by reason of the opinion of the Supreme Court. I will touch on the Supreme Court's decision, Mr. Speaker. I am very sorry to have to take up a little additional time but I feel it would not be fair to me, nor would it be fair to the Republican members of this House, who have placed their confidence in me, if I did not take sufficient time to defend these bills on the floor of this House.

This bill re-writes the main body of the law. It changes the Act of 1937, which has recently been declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court in some eight different, important particulars, and doubt as to the constitutionality of the entire Act was raised by the Court, so that the Act will be based upon the main provisions and general form of the Act prior to the 1937 enactment. However, there are several important changes and corrections as to the old Act. It raises the maximum rate from fifteen dollars to eighteen dollars per week, which is the same as the 1937 Act. It raises the minimum weekly compensation from seven dollars to nine dollars per week (which is a reduction of three dollars per week as of the 1937 Act) and as to the minimum, if the employe's weekly wages are lower than nine dollars, the weekly rate of wages shall be the weekly compensation. The percentage of wages is increased as to both the old Act and the 1937 Act, from sixty-five per cent to sixty-six and two-thirds per cent. This is done for convenience in administration.

The maximum duration of payments for total disability to injured employes is five hundred weeks, which is the same as the old Act. It raises the maximum total payment to injured employes, over the old Act, from six thousand five hundred dollars to seven thousand five hundred dollars. It retains the periods for specific injuries the same as under the old Act, but with the possible increase in the weekly rate in each specific case it may raise the total compensation in such case accordingly.

As an example: If an employe lost a hand under the old Act and received the fifteen dollars maximum rate per week for the one hundred seventy-five weeks allowed, he would receive a total of two thousand six hundred twenty-five dollars, but under House Bill No. 1030, he would receive for one hundred seventy-five weeks at eighteen dollars per week, or a total of three thousand one hundred fifty dollars. Now, how can they argue that it would be less?

It also has a provision, over and above the old Act, as to loss of hearing in both ears. It provides one hundred fifty weeks compensation in such case, or a possible total of two thousand seven hundred dollars.

Mr. Speaker, a man who loses both his ears would under this Act get two thousand seven hundred dollars, but under the old Act he didn't get it. Under House Bill No. 1030, if he loses his hearing, he gets two thousand seven hundred dollars, provided he is fortunate enough to get the maximum rate, the same as in the old Act, but it carries a possible total amount of compensation in such case of two thousand seven hundred dollars as against two thousand two hundred fifty dollars.

The disfigurement period is a possible one hundred fifty weeks, the same as in the old Act, but it carries a possible total amount of compensation in such case of two thousand seven hundred dollars as against two thousand two hundred fifty dollars under the old Act.

It increases the medical services from thirty to sixty days, and raises the total cost of same from one hundred dollars, plus hospital costs, to one hundred fifty dollars, plus hospital costs.

It restores the old hernia clause, but strengthens the defense as to doubtful cases.

The period of time to dependents are the same as under the old Act; however, it provides for no compensation to alien widows and children.

The percentages to dependent children are the same as under the old Act, but the increased possible wage basis increases the possible weekly compensation to children slightly.

In general, comparing it to the old Act, the increased total costs may be from 10% to 20%. However, this indicated increase in total costs will be held down slightly on account of special provisions as to the statute of limitations and the change in method of computation of wages. (See Section 309).

It makes clear the doubtful and uncertain provisions of the old Act, and will, on account of its clearness, prevent at least 50% of the number of litigated cases. This feature alone will be a great saving to the State and both employers and employes.

It will be noted that all unconstitutional provisions have been kept out of the Act. To that end, volunteer firemen are covered by a separate Bill (House Bill No. 1301), and the exemption of agricultural workers and domestic servants is provided for under another Bill (House Bill No. 1302). These provisions are the same as originally passed—that is, by separate Bills.

House Bill No. 1031 repeals the Act approved July 2, 1937, (P. L. 2714) entitled, "Occupational Disease Compensation Act".

To explain: The 1937 "Occupational Disease Act" is a supplement to the 1937 Workmen's Compensation Act. The purpose is to repeal that supplement and cover Occupational Disease Compensation by a separate and distinct Act. This has been covered by House Bill No. 1401.

House Bill No. 1401 is a complete Occupational Disease Law, independent of the Workmen's Compensation Law. It is elective, and election or rejection may be made regardless of whether the parties have accepted or rejected the Workmen's Compensation Law.

It provides for compensation for disability or death for the same schedule of occupational diseases as carried in the present Occupational Disease Supplement, and like the present Occupational Disease Supplement compensation for disability or death, is the same as that provided in the Workmen's Compensation Law, and as the present Occupational Disease Supplement limits the compensation to $3,600 where death or disability is due to silicosis, anthraco-silicosis and asbestosis, that same limit is carried in this bill for such diseases.

It carries the same schedule for loss of members as House Bill No. 1030, as members can well be lost from an occupational disease as well as from an accident. It provides for compensation to the same dependents as provided for in House Bill No. 1030. It eliminates the ambiguity in the present Occupational Disease Supplement regarding the $3,600 limit for disabili death due to silicosis, anthraco-silicosis and asbestosis and also eliminates the provisions of Section 8 of the present Occupational Disease Supplement which the Supreme Court declared invalid

While it provides for joint payment by the Commonwealth and the employer in cases where the disability or death results from silicosis, anthraco-silicosis and asbestosis and such other occupational diseases as develop only after an exposure of five or more years, the Commonwealth's liability hereunder has been reduced to 50% for the first two years, as compared to the Commonwealth's liability of 90% for the first year, under the present Occupational Disease Supplement.

The procedure for the payment and determination of claims are the same as provided in House Bill No. 1030, except that Medical Boards are created to determine the medical questions involved in contested claims. The duties of the Medical Board are clearly set forth in this Bill.

The Medical Board's findings on medical questions are final, subject to review, while in the present Occupational Disease Supplement the Medical Advisory Board therein established was not clothed with any real authority, and its opinion could be entirely disregarded by the compensation authorities. This has been corrected in House Bill No. 1401.

This Bill establishes an Occupational Disease Fund in the State Workmen's Insurance Fund for payment of such compensation as the Commonwealth is responsible for, and carries an appropriation of $100,000 which, it is believed, is ample to take care of the Commonwealth's responsibility for the biennium. This bill would become effective October 1st, 1939, which should give employers and employes ample time to accept or reject it on or before that date.

I want to call to the attention of the members of the House and the Speaker, that House Bill No. 1030, does not provide for any compensation to alien widows and children. Why? Because the conditions in Europe and the conditions of the world are such that it cannot be administered and the administration has not been satisfactory. Let me cite one case as an example, the last one I had just a few weeks ago of a widow in the old country. She went back there from America over twenty-five years age. She was twenty-five years away from her husband, and for three years there was no letter, no money, or anything else. After the man's death, that was proven conclusively, but in spite of that the referee in charge granted compensation. It is not fair, in comparison with the administration in this State.

The percentages to dependent children are the same as under the old Act, but the increased possible wage basis increases the possibly weekly compensation to children sligthly.

The old Act is the only Act that you can fairly compare it to. It is not fair to say on the floor of this House, that something is being taken from the employes and their dependents when they do not have it, because of the rejection, the wholesale rejection, if you please, and I leave it up to you, Mr. Speaker. Did they present that picture to you? They did not. Did they enumerate the hundreds of people that would be affected, the literal thousands of people that would be affected by it, and the dependent children that would have been affected by it, without any compensation at all? The idea of hanging their opinions on something that is up in the clouds; the idea of criticizing somebody that in all fairness and good faith tries to remedy a condition that has been made intolerable by the actions of such men as the gentleman from York and the gentleman from Allegheny, a condition, if you please, Mr. Speaker, that would have been much worse, or twice as bad, had they had their own way.

When the gentleman from York was endeavoring to interrogate me on the floor of this House, when this bill was on second reading, he knew but very little about the act and so acknowledged, and wanted a longer time to prepare.

Right there, Mr. Speaker, I want to say to you that even the press knew all about this bill.

It has been here just a month, and these gentlemen refused positively to take any notice of it; they refused to take it as though it meant anything. The gentleman from Cambria in his own paper said that the bill in its present form would probably not go very far. You see we are neighbors out there and we have many of these papers and editorials and so on. The gentleman from Cambria may treat this matter in a sarcastic manner; the gentleman from Cambria may say he does not understand anything about it, but don't you think he should, upon the merits of the bill, tell you how many have rejected the Act and in what condition the people of this state are. Should he not have told you that? Should not the attorney who knows everything and who has been very prominent on the floor of the House for three sessions, have told you something about that? Should he not commend some of the people who advocated this bill, agreed to write it and put it in writing and let him read it. He formulated these questions to fire at the gentleman from Jefferson. Did you ever see such an exhibition of lack of good faith in claiming knowledge which they do not possess?

Now, for Dr. Hindman, he comes into the picture, as fine a man as you can find anywhere, there isn't any question about that. He comes into the picture, he knows nothing about the subject at all except the medical expenses. Does he know anything about the proposed Act of 1935. Does he know anything about the act of 1937? Does he know anything about the employes and the insurance people of this state that have secured thousands and thousands of dollars over and above their compensation claims? Mr. Speaker, that is just exactly the record of the self insurers in this state, thousands upon thousands of dollars. It is not only the record of the self insurers, but it is the record of many insurance companies, if you please. Now, why? Because there is an economic condition in Pennsylvania that some people persist in denying; because there is such an economic condition in this state they say it is on the verge of ruin, and any man who has any intelligence, and I am sure that the gentleman from Cambria does have, I am sure he will agree with me that the situation is most serious. What brings about that result? I will tell you what brings it about. One of the main factors for it, Mr. Speaker, and there is not a member on the floor of this House that can refute it, one of the main factors why we are in this financial condition today is because we have an intolerable Workmen's Compensation Law that punishes the little employer, that punishes the big employer, that makes it impossible for us to get ourselves out of the red. There are other factors also, taxation, unemployment, if you please. They are all together in the picture. Unless Pennsylvania in her wisdom and in her strength, and we people have the courage to stand up in the face of the criticism that is levelled at us right on the floor of this House, if you please, by people who have shown that they do not know a thing concerning that which they speak about, unless we provide adequate compensation legislation then we are in a sorry plight indeed. Where can we possibly raise the money to keep these hospitals and schools going? He is the county of Schuylkill unable to pay its teachers. There are other townships, counties and communities importuning us on all sides What are we to do? Is there a single man on the floor of the House who can answer me tonight as to what they are going to do? Is there a single man on the floor of the House that will say that the words I am saying to you now are not the truth? I challenge the gentleman from York to go on record and I challenge the gentleman from Allegheny to say it. I know that the gentleman from Cambria will not say it because I have read his editorials, and I know that Dr. Hindman is not the kind of a man that can make the statement that there isn't grave danger here. I will get back to these rates in just a moment.

Here is what the Supreme Court said in that decision. On page five of this decision, which was an opinion by Justice Maxey is this statement:

> "The total number of persons employed in the anthracite industry in Pennsylvania is approximately one hundred thousand. Between 1926 and 1935 the working capital of the anthracite industry shrank from $111,097,223 to $8,860,217."

Mr. Speaker, is it any wonder that they are going into bankruptcy and into the hands of receivers and that their property is being stolen by bootleggers?

The opinion goes on to say:

> "During the years 1932, 1933, 1934 and 1935, the industry suffered losses, respectively, of $10,507,779, $8,572,586, $1,664,142 and $10,235,977. In 1934, the total amount of workmen's compensation liability incurred by anthracite operators in Pennsylvania was $2,600,000. The anthracite industry was also conducted at a loss in 1937, and the workmen's compensation liability for 1936 and 1937 was approximately the same as in 1934. The cost of workmen's compensation to the anthracite operators of Pennsylvania would be increased by more than 100 per cent. over the cost of workmen's compensation under the Act of 1915, solely by reason of the increased schedule of compensation. The features of Act No. 323 other than its schedules would increase the costs of compensation by an additional 20 per cent. In many cases of total permanent disability and death from accident, Act No. 323 would increase the compensation benefits by approximately 200 per cent. The estimated compensation liability of anthracite operators under Act No. 552 during the first year of its operation would be $8,640,000. This amount would be increased by $2,500,000 during each of the three successive years so that in the fourth year of the operation of the act the total compensation liability of anthracite operators under Act No. 552 would be $16,200,000. Under the provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Act of 1915, the plaintiffs were exempted from the requirement that insurance be carried against their liabilities under Article III. Prior to January 1, 1938, anthracite operators who applied for an exemption from the duty of insuring against liability under Article III were required by the defendant to deposit with him securities of the value of many millions of dollars in order to obtain such exemption."

Did the gentleman from York tell you anything about what it costs you to get an exemption under those conditions, by putting in conditions surrounding the giving of a bond, and so forth?

The opinion goes on to say as follows:

> "They were also required to carry excess insurance against such liability. If the anthracite operators were to accept the provisions of Acts Nos. 323 and 552, they would be required to deposit additional sceurities in the amount of millions of dollars in order to obtain an exemption from the duty of carrying insurance against workmen's compensation liability, and they would also be required to carry additional and greater amounts of excess insurance."

Now, that is the opinion of the Supreme Court but that is only a start. On page seven, you will find the following:

"The legislature derives its power to enact a Workmen's Compensation Act from Article III, section 21 of the Constitution, being the amendment adopted November 2, 1915."

I do hope that the gentleman from York will at least listen to this:

"This constitutional authorization of such an act lays down three fundamental requiremnts of the act: (1) The compensation which may be required of employers must be 'reasonable.' (2) The injuries compensated must arise 'in the course of employment.' Compensation for occupational diseases of employes must also by clear implication arise in the course of employment. (3) The acts authorized must provide for benefits to be paid by employers to their employees. The constitutional provision referred to does not authorize acts which would provide compensation from employer 'A' to the employees of employer 'B.'"

The lawyer from York will understand what is meant when I tell him that.

On page eight are these words by Justice Maxey:

"If compensation rates are fixed so high that capital does not reap a fair share of reward from these joint endeavors or if the rate is fixed so high as to wipe out or unduly encroach on that margin of a just return to which capital is entitled, the compensation rate is unreasonable and therefore the act prescribing it is invalid and unconstiutional."

Those are the words of Justice Maxey. Did they tell you about that? They did not. Justice Maxey has only started.

He says:

"There can be no more fatuous policy than one of so burdening industry as to kill the spirit of enterprise and to paralyze what would otherwise be normal initiative and energy. One of the earliest and most widely known and accepted fables is that of 'killing the goose that laid the golden eggs.' In this venerable fable the man who committed this act of folly is held up as an archetype to be avoided. The courts of this state and nation have in countless decisions recognized and enforced the right of those who invest and manage capital to a fair share of the fruits of such investment and management. It has been held by the United States Supreme Court that even the owner of a business dedicated to the public service, such as a railroad, is entitled to 'fair or reasonable profit.'"

That is not all, members of the House, we have just started. The opinion further says:

"Dayton-Goose Creek R. Co. v. U. S. Interstate Commerce Com., 263 U. S. 456. In I. C. Com. v. U. P. R. R. Co., 222 U. S. 541, the Supreme Court of the United States declared that 'an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission may be set aside if it appears that the rate is so low as to be confiscatory and in violation of the constitutional prohibition against taking property without due process of law.' In Pub. Service Com. v. Beaver Valley W. Co., 271 Pa. 358, 114 A. 373, this court declared that if the rates allowed to a public service company are inadequate to provide a reasonable return on the property invested in the corporation, the result is confiscation. It is equally true that if the rates of compensation which the legislature orders employers to pay injured employees prevents any return or a reasonable return on the property invested, the result is confiscation—a situation intolerable in a constitutional government. Laws should conserve property, not destroy it. The tragic experiences of the people of other countries today clearly demonstrate that the step from a government's arbitrarily taking of property to its arbitrarily taking of life and liberty is a short one. In republics like ours the protection of life, liberty and property are the specific subjects of constitutional and judicial protection.

The United States Supreme Court said in Knoxville v. Water Co., 212 U. S. 1: 'The courts, in clear cases, ought not to hesitate to arrest the operation of a confiscatory law, but they ought to refrain from interfering in cases of any other kind . . . . Our social system rests largely upon the sanctity of private property, and that State or community which seeks to invade it will soon discover the error in the disaster which follows.' In Pierce, Governor of Oregon v. Society of Sisters, 268 U. S. 510, the same court said: 'Prevention of impending injury by unlawful action is a well recognized function of courts of equity.'

"A workmen's Compensation Law which meets the test of reasonableness in compensation as between the employee who receives and the employer who pays is one of the most socially beneficient enactments which statesmanship is capable of producing."

We all say "Amen" to that.

"On the other hand, a Workmen's Compensation Law which places upon any industry a burden so crushing that it makes that industry's existence either impossible, or, to its owners, economically undesirable is a measure which the workmen themselves should emphatically condemn and reject, for it paralyzes the very activities on which their economic well-being depends. Unprofitable industries soon become idle industries; idle industries mean idle capital, and in all ages and countries idle capital has always meant idle men."

I ask the gentleman from York and all of those who have spoken, to look over the fields in the anthracite region and the fields in the bituminous region. Those who are here opposing this bill are those who are followers of the people who are responsible for the shut-down in the bituminous industry, and every man and women on the floor of this House happens to know it.

Justice Maxey goes on and says this:

"There are many provisions of Act No. 323, which are alleged to be unreasonable. For example, under section 306 A of Act No. 323 the minimum compensation for the first 500 weeks after the 7th day of total disability ..... shall not be ..... less than twelve dollars per week ..... provided that if total disability shall continue for four weeks or more, the employee also shall be entitled to receive compensation for the first seven days of total disability. Should total disability become permanent, then, in addition to the compensation provided for 500 weeks, and beginning at the expiration of the 500 weeks, the sum of $30 per month shall be paybale during such permanent total disability prior to death.' It is obvious that the above provision for compensation for life imposes a heavy burden on industry and if the complainants can prove that the minimum of $12 per week exceeds in a substantial number of instances the wages paid, the provision should be adjudged unreasonable."

And he so judged it to have been unreasonable.

Now, listen to this, he says, and this is your own Romig Case, if you please:

"A law which requires an employer to pay a disabled employee, and particularly for a long period, more than the employee earned before his disability arose, does not conform to the constitutional test of reasonableness."

Justice Maxey tells you right there and that is a decision joined in by all the Justices of the Supreme Court, and is the main point complained about. It so happened, Mr. Speaker, that I carried through one of the very first test cases, and the argument that I made in 1937 applies to this and I will be willing to take it into the Supreme Court now because it is better understood. I want to repeat this:

> "A law which requires an employer to pay a disabled employee, and particularly for a long period, more than the employee earned before his disability arose, does not conform to the constitutional test of reasonableness".

They are complaining about the unsound computation of wages. First we accept the theory as advanced in the state of West Virginia, only making it a little bit more favorable to the employee in our state.

We realize that the Supreme Court recognizes that no employee shall receive compensation rates in excess of wages, because the theory behind it all is to give back something which the man has lost, but if he never earned it he is not entitled to it.

Justice Maxey says:

> "The most earnest advocates of Workmen's Compensation Laws never contemplated that the rate of compensation for disabled employees should be placed so high as to make idleness more remunerative than work."

That is the answer in the Romig Case. Not a lawyer in the state of Pennsylvania who has paid any attention to it, and not a lawyer who knows anything about compensation will say anything any different. We are confronted with the idea, we are obsessed with the idea that the Romig Case is a part of the Bible, but here, the Supreme Court tells you it is not reasonable to pay a man more than he earns and that is what was done in the Romig Case, because the question was not taken properly to the Supreme Court and every lawyer knows that it should have been on the idea of reasonableness, to come under these words of Justice Maxey.

> "Plaintiffs contend that during the 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th years of the operation of Acts Nos. 323 and 552, the cost to the anthractie industry of Pennsylvania will be, respectively, $14,360,000, $16,880,000, $19,400,000 and $21,920,000. It is said that the cost to this industry in 1937 before the passage of the challenged acts was $2,600,000. Plaintiffs in their brief declare as follows: Stated differently, under the Workmen's Compensation Act of 1915, as amended prior to 1937, the cost of Workmen's compensation to the anthracite industry for the 4 years beginning with 1938 would have been $10,400,000; but under Acts Nos. 323 and 552 it would be $39,080,000. Of this amount the employers would be obliged to pay at least $26,516,000."

Under those figures if the old act had prevailed in the four years prior to 1938, it would have been $19,400,000, but under this act which has been so highly lauded, under this act which has been used as an example of the very finest craftsmanship—and by the way, Mr. Speaker, who wrote it, who sponsored it, who put in those unconstitutional provisions, who defended on the floor of this House the unconstitutional provisions, the unreasonable provisions? The gentleman from York and the gentleman from Allegheny County, if you please. Not only that, they advocated an act that would have cost twice as much, and instead of being $39,000,000 as against $19,000,000, it would have been $40,000,000 or $50,000,000 as against $19,000,000.

They contend it is not right for a man to specialize and learn something about the Workmen's Compensation Law. They would point a finger of scorn at a man who dislikes to get up before an audience and bear the burden of a fight like this, but in that, ladies and gentlemen of the House, I have the support of the Supreme Court, and no doubt the gentleman from York, who has been in the habit of pointing his finger at the Supreme Court, will do so now. That's alright. I want to say to the Speaker of this House and to the members of this House if they were in good faith they would have known about this decision, forty-seven pages in length, they would have read it. It is not fair to get up here in the Hall of this House and criticize the gentleman from Jefferson without reading the decision of the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court filed an opinion a little later, adding two sections which made eight sections unconstitutional. For information of the House, I will read those eight particular sections.

1. Section 203 of the 1937 act, which made employers' liable to pay for injuries of sub-contractors' employes "whether said injury occurred upon the premises occupied or controlled by the employer or not." Reason: The Constitution "does not authorize acts which would provide compensation from Employer A to employes of Employer B."

2. Section 301 (b) of the 1937 law, which provided that "violation of any law or rule or regulation of the business or industry or a positive order of the employer at the time of the injury" shall not affect the employe's "right to receive compensation". Reason: "Any employe who is injured while violating a law or rule or regulation of the industry is not injured 'in the course of employment,' "

3. Part of Section 8 of the Occupational Disease Act of 1937, and

4. Section 201 (a) of the 1938 Workmen's Compensation amendment, which impose a presumption of negligence upon the employer and deprive him of usual defenses of common law, when the claim takes the form of a damage suit in court instead of of action under the compensation law. Reasons: They violate the Pennsylvania Bill of Rights and the 14th Amendment (due process) to the U. S. Constitution because they have "no logical or reasonable basis"; are "arbitrary and invalid"; and "attempt to make conjecture serve as proof."

5. Section 201 (b) of the 1938 Compensation amendment, which provides any "declarations, remarks or utterances made by the injured employes within 12 hours after the injury" shall be admissible as "competent evidence" in damage suits. Reasons: The statements need not be made under oath and are not subject to cross-examination; the provision lacks uniformity and impartiality because it does not apply to any damage actions except those brought by injured employes, and opens the door to "loose hearsay evidence" for the benefit of one party but not of the other and "denies equal protection of the law."

6. Part of Section 437 of the 1937 act, which authorized a lay member of a labor union to represent a claimant in litigating his claim. Reason: It violates previous decisions and the Attorney General conceded this provision to be invalid.

7. Section 502, placing upon "all employers" or their insurance carriers the total cost of administering the Compensation Act and the Industrial Rehabilitation Act. Reason: The compensation system is elective, but employers who elect not to operate under the act also are charged costs, which violates the Constitution by "taking money from one individual and giving it to another, or using it for another's benefit"; and the assessment of costs is a tax upon employers and as such, is an improper delegation of taxing power to the department.

8. Section 321, which creates a "second injury fund" and requires employers of their insurance companies to pay into the fund $1,500 for each fatal accident to any employe who leaves no dependent to collect the death benefits. Reason: The required payment is a tax "in violation of our equal protection and reasonable classification provisions" by imposing "a flat levy on one group of employers from which all other employers are excluded."

Following the action of the Supreme Court, it was sent back to the lower court for the purpose of finding out whether or not the entire act was reasonable. Then they tell you in that opinion and show you it is not reasonable, therefore the gentleman from Jefferson was put in an embarrassing position of being compelled against his will, if you please, Mr. Speaker, and you know it is true, of sitting down and preparing an act that would stand the test of constitutionality. The finger of scorn is now pointed at me by the gentleman from Cambria with sarcasm, which is all right. I take it in fun because the gentleman is not expected to know anything about this act, and the gentleman from Washington, Dr. Hindman, is just the same, and I wonder if the gentleman from York is in the same position too; he ought not be.

Mr. Speaker, it is unfortunate indeed, there is nothing personal intended, really I have great admiration for the gentleman from York. There isn't a man who served with him for two sessions but who knows he is a very astute lawyer. No man, could have conducted a hearing in the manner in which he did so successfully if it had not been that he was brilliant. A man so brilliant that he could do all that, how could he argue and tell you nothing about the Supreme Court decision? A man who has all those qualifications at his finger tips, a man who has all of his accomplishments, so that all the people know him and admire him for his ability, alas, many of us are wondering how a man so brilliant could make statements such as that.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. MORAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Allegheny will state his point of order.

Mr. MORAN. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman is not talking on the bill before the House.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Jefferson will confine his remarks to the subject before the House.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. HERBERT B. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from York will state his point of order.

Mr. HERBERT B. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, the rules of the House prevent advertising or hawking on the floor and if the gentleman from Jefferson persists in advertising my legal attainments I feel sure he should mention that my office address is No. 124 East Market Street, York. Pennsylvania.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state to the gentleman from York that having sat through the 1935 and 1937 sessions with the gentleman from York, during which the gentleman from York and the Speaker were on the floor talking a great deal, that the gentleman from Jefferson is not advertising the gentleman from York; he is boasting a bit about him.

Mr. WILSON. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, I have taken up much of the time of the House, and when I boast about the gentleman from York I mean every word of it. He is a gentleman of ability, there is no question about that, and what I am complaining about is that when a man of his ability takes the wrong tact, and forgets to tell you the things that he should tell you he becomes very dangerous, because there is a man who can wield influence, there is a man who can dodge the issue, there is a man who can follow the instructions of those above him for political purposes.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would admonish the gentleman from Jefferson that the Rules of the House prevent hawking and advertising but do not prevent boasting. There are, however, some Rules of the House, that do prevent certain reference to members of the House. The gentleman will proceed.

Mr. WILSON. Mr. Speaker, there is another thought that has been injected into this discussion, getting back to second reading. The plea of not knowing what the bill contained and no time to analyze it. I want to say the bill was introduced a month ago. It is easy to understand. I claim it is within the knowledge of many members of the House and within the knowledge of certain members of the Press; all its provisions are well understood. The Press took an interest in it, inquired and got the information.

I hold in my hand two sheets of paper prepared by a member of the press who, with all of his other work, was interested, and he really had plenty of work—I am not advertising him or hawking, because I will not mention his name—but he gave me a comparison and here it is. It would have been very easy to have inquired of him. Can anybody say that a man paid by the week, paid by the month, paid by the year, where he gets a definite salary, is not very much better off under this act than he was under the old act prior to 1937? It is strange! The same thing will apply to the debate on the employe, if he earns it he gets it, if he doesn't earn it, he doesn't get it, the Supreme Court has said.

Now, members, I could go on talking all night, but you do not want me to do so, I am sure. It is up to you people to say. In the course of the debate, the point has been raised: Do you feel that the gentleman from Jefferson is entitled to a vote on this bill? I want to say that I am in general practice, I have three offices. I take claims against employers as well as for them. I receive a salary from one company but I do not have one dollar of stock in it, and that company is not under the act, they have rejected the act because it is intolerable. They tried it and they found out they could not do it. They disregarded my advice. Mr. Speaker, I am not interested in a single dollars of investment at the present time that has has nothing to do with this act. I am fulfilling the duties that were laid at my door when I was appointed Chairman of the Workmen's Compensation Committees, and that is the truth, and every man here who wants can inquire and find out. I am saying you can do as you please, it does not interest me any more than I have tried to do my duty. Reject this act if you want to, but before you do you really should have read these rates prepared by a member of the Press some three weeks ago, accepted and adopted by me, and my thanks go out to the gentleman.

I say, Mr. Speaker, and members of the House, no man on either side of the House, no man or woman without reading the Supreme Court decision, without reading the rates prescribed by the rating beureau, without reading the Dent report, should vote against this bill. Vote "yes" if you want the bill. If you do not want it why didn't you prepare one and advocate it? Do you want a bill? The Supreme Court kicked the 1937 act out the window.

The Supreme Court kicked it out the window just as sure as you are siting in those chairs and the gentleman from York knows it. Now then I had to prepare a law that was a little bit better than the act prior to the act of 1937 in an effort to bring many thousands of employees back under the act, because I understand we have only about two-thirds the number of accidents where the act of 1937 was rejected than we had while operating under any compensation law. You see what that means. Under rejection the employer is not responsible and employees become much more careful immediately. I am sure, Mr. Speaker, with this bill, which they say is so iniquitous and which takes all the rights of the people away, it will still have enough sugar and honey in it to get those people who rejected the act to come back under it. I am sure that the 200,000 employees that are under no act at all by reason of rejection will be brought back under compensation. I am going to leave it to the House. If the House passes it and it goes to the Senate, let the Senate take it up. I will refer them to Justice Maxey's opinion; I will refer them to the rates set forth by the Rating Bureau's books; I will refer them to the Dent report; I will refer them to the 200,000 people who are not under the act on account of rejection. There are probably twice that number not under any act beause they are not paying any attention to it. I will refer them to the people who are spending hundreds of thousands of dollars for litigation.

Mr. Speaker and members of the House, just one more thing and I am done. I want you to know that I could go on talking until tomorrow morning. Under the present act, if you call it the present act, that is, under the act of 1937, there were so many uncertainties with regard to the cases that were close to the line, that it was necessary for the referees on the boards to decide them. That will not be true under House Bill 1030. There are provisions in it to make it plain. The principal things that have been complained about only apply to about five per cent of the cases, the close cases, the unjust cases, and cases of that character—they could not possibly apply to the proper claims.

Mr. Speaker, are you satisfied that I mean what I say? Are you satisfied that I am in earnest? Are you satisfied that at least I am telling the truth? Are you willing to trust me or do you want to go on refusing to do it like they did in 1935 and 1937? Choose your road, gentlemen, it will be all the same to me. I thank you.

Mr. HERBERT B. COHEN. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, not for one moment have I ever doubted the sincerity of the gentleman who has just preceded me. Irrespective of what the gentleman might say, I feel sure that were he to search the records of the 1935 and 1937 sessions, he would not find one occasion on my part where I ever doubted either his sincerity or his competency.

However, Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Jefferson approaches the subject with a different philosophical attitude. The gentleman from Jefferson is confused as to the applicable philosophy in this particular instance. I feel that the workmen's compensation payments are a social obligation placed upon industry. Industry must bear that obligation, and if industry cannot bear the obligation, then there is something wrong with industry. There is no reason why inadequate payments to workers should be subsidized from the Commonwealth's Treasury. If a particular industry cannot meet its obligations then there must be something wrong with that industry, and the social by-products of that industry should not be imposed upon the general taxpayers of the Commonwealth.

Further, workmen's compensation and the degree of payments under the Workmen's Compensation act has had a decided beneficial effect in the number of accidents, as the gentleman from Jefferson himself has indicated on the floor of this House. I realize no employer, no industry could have within its treasury sufficient funds to compensate a man for the loss of an arm, or a leg, or an eye. I realize that no industry in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania could go into its coffers and find sufficient money to replace a husband or a father. I realize there are limitations that must be thrown around the act, and I further realize when you increase the payments, those who sustain industrial injury are not social charges on the community, and by that same token you will accomplish for the people of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania the greatest service under the Workmen's Compensation Act, because thereby you reduce industrial accidents.

The gentleman from Jefferson testified that since the 1937 act has been in force industrial accidents have decreased thirty-three and one third per cent. I say to those who have not lost their lives, to those who have not lost their arms, to those who have not lost their eye-sight, that that is because the act of 1937 was in effect, and by that token we have accomplished more for industry, more for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, than we accomplished by increasing the actual monetary award. It is all a difference in philosophy. I know that possibly two hundred thousand workers are employed in industries that have rejected the act, but what about the two million workers in Pennsylvania who are protected by this act? Should they be cast into a situation again where industrial accidents will increase 50 per cent? Should they be cast into a situation again whereby they must become recipients of relief? Should they again be cast into the situation that the gentleman from Jefferson advocates, and that you men will advocate by your pronounced vote, whereby the limitations of the Romig decision will again be put into force and effect? We say on account of the economic situation, a man who is perfectly willing, able, desirous and capable of working five and a half, six or seven days a week, and can only work one day a week when he loses his arm, or his legs, he is compensated on a rate basis of one day a week, or fifty-seven cents for the week. We say to you men, as the gentleman from Jefferson has written into the act on pages 36, 37 and 38, that because of the unfortunate economic situation, because of seasonal employment characteristic in so many industries, that an individual, while willing to work and only able to secure work for a limited time, has his compensation based upon the actual wage he received and not on the wage that he is capable of earning, and not on the wage that he would have earned in the same industry under more favorable and economic conditions. Men, you cannot pull yourselves up by your boot straps. You cannot in one sentence bemoan the fact of increased relief rolls, increased hospitalizations increased impoverishment in the homes, you cannot cry about that on one hand and then on the other hand enact a law that those who are willing to work are placed smack right back onto the relief rolls, on account of an accident in industry. You cannot do that. You cannot cure our economic ills by placing again into our economic society a malignant cancer to eat away at the foundation of industrial life; you cannot do it because as sure as night follows day relief rolls increase, assistance to dependent mothers increases as soon as you do it. Orphan children are put smack on relief rolls. Industry that cannot pay its way must find ways and means to do so without subsidation from the Treasury of the Commonwealth.

I say to you that the comparison is not with the act of 1915, the comparison is not with the picayune increases that were made for a period of a few years after 1915. Men, the idea of this Assembly should be to reach the Utopia, whereby those injured in industry and unable to take their place in society are paid their way by those who caused the injuries, and if you don't do that right in this Commonwealth you are going to have the situation of men being injured going off of workmen's compensation on relief as soon as their payments stop. You are going to find men injured in industry getting fifty-seven cents a week for the loss of a member, and then immediately going on the relief rolls. You are going to find these same people who are complaining about high compensation rates, complaining about taxes necessary to maintain the relief rolls. Why? Because this act in its entirety is not an actual representation of the needs and requirements of the people of our Commonwealth.

I am going to give you one outstanding example, and this example is characteristic of the entire bill, from page 1 to page 81. I don't know how many employees there are in the Commonwealth employed in services from which they receive the major part of their salary in the form of gratuities. Every waitress that serves your meals depends upon gratuities; every boy that shines your shoes depends upon gratuities. Take away those gratuities and the salaries that great group of servants in the Commonwealth receives amounts to a mere pittance. Still on page 38 of this bill, we are told in determining the wage of individuals that gratuities are not to be considered as a wage. Women who work in the majority of the hotels receive a negligible salary, possibly one or two or three dollars a week and if they are injured their compensation rate is based upon the salary they are paid by their employer, and the gratuity that is an important part of their wage is not considered in calculating the amount of compensation due.

I ask you, are you going to say to the thousands of waitresses and the thousands of employees in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, that upon the passage of this bill by your vote when one of these people is injured, all he shall receive is compensation based upon actual wages. If you do, you will not say anything different than is said in paragraph after paragraph, in section after section, of this entire bill. This bill is a fraud on the working men and women of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania; this bill is a fraud on the employer of the Commonwealth. "They know not what they do."

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, in the House of Representatives at the present time we have elected approximately one hundred and twenty-nine Republicans, and I tell you men on the other side of the House that the reason you were primarily elected to this body was on the basis of the promises made to the people of the Commonwealth. I wonder when your Governor and you men who were candidates for the General Assembly, traveling from one end of the state to the other, whether or not you promised the workers of Pennsylvania that you would reduce the time limit for compensable death from five hundred to three hundred weeks after the accident. I wonder if when you gentlemen on the other side of the House were campaigning during the last election, you promised the workers of Pennsylvania that you would make possible self insurance, that you would abolish annual fees for self-insurance. I wonder if Bill No. 1030 embraces the fact as to whether or not you promised the people of Pennsylvania that you would abolish the penalty for fraudulent statements to the Department by employers. I wonder, members of the House, whether the Republican majority made those promises to the people. On the written record of the campaign we find no such promises, and all during the campaign the Governor of the Commonwealth, the members on the ticket who ran along side of him, all the way down to the candidates for the General Assembly, never made any statement of those views with reference to the 1937 act regarding workmen's compensation, except in two instances. We have in the final week of October 1938 the Governor speaking in South Philadelphia and at that time he spoke before an audience of twenty-five hundred workers.

He said, "I will be fair to the working people in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania." He didn't say anything about House Bill No. 1030 that rips down the very liberal structure of the 1937 Act of Assembly.

Then from Philadelphia he journeyed to Washington County and in Washington County he had this to say about the Workmen's Compensation Act. He said in the Workmen's Compensation Act there was one joker nothing else about any part of the bill but one joker. This is what he said to the miners in Washington County. I quote the Governor:

" 'Either through the haste with which these laws were drafted and passed,' he asserted, 'or for other reasons, the purposes of these laws were defeated by jokers, about which the little New Dealers have not done much boasting.

" 'This act bars from occupational disease compensation the largest single body of workmen in the State of Pennsylvania, the coal miners of the anthracite and bituminous fields. That affects more than 2,000,000 people, about one-fifth of our population, in the key industry of the State.

" 'There is one great scourge in the mine fields, the terror of those who spend their days in the mine shafts and headings, and the never forgotten dread of the women and children who see their fathers, sweethearts, children and husbands leave for work.

Causes Lingering Death

" 'That scourge is miners' asthma, medically known as anthracosis. It is caused by breathing into the lungs, during long periods of time, the fine dust of coal. It condemns the victim to a long period of invalidism and a lingering death.

" 'Under the new act the right to claim compensation for miners' asthma must be based not on breathing coal dust, but on breathing sand dust. The act specifies the chemical name of the material so that there may be no loophole for the miners—and the name specified is silicon dioxide, which is quartz. Quartz is sand.

" 'So far as coal miners are concerned, either in the anthracite or the bituminous field, it is well-nigh impossible for him to claim compensation on that basis. Sandstones and quartzites and conglomerates do exist in connection with both hard and soft coal veins, but they are the problem of the so-called "rock" men—who form but a small fraction of a per cent compared with the number of coal miners who never come into contact with these rocks in such a way that they could prove they had breathed dust from them.' "

From my study of House Bill No. 1030 and the correlated bills which follow, nothing was put into the act but everything was taken out of the act.

In House Bill 1401, introduced by the gentleman from Jefferson, Mr. Wilson, he lists a number of occupational diseases taken care of in the act, and listed in it is this promise of the Governor and the Republican party to the people of the Commonwealth.

I say to you Republican members of the House, the gentleman from Jefferson has said on this floor that at the present time there is an accusing finger on him. I wish to assure the gentleman from Jefferson that after tonight, the accusing finger will not be placed on the gentleman from Jefferson, but the finger of the distressed men and women of the Commonwealth after the passage of this act will be placed on the entire membership of the Republican party and the Republican leadership in this House. I thank you.

Mr. SKALE. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, I realize that much has been said before this and I do not propose to take very much of your time, but with your kind indulgence I desire at this time to point out my objections to this act.

Under this bill at the present time it requires that when a petition is filed to terminate compensation, compensation shall actually end and no further payments will be paid to the injured employee. Let me point out where this is a hardship on employes who have been injured in the course of their employment. I know several cases where the employes received total permanent disability and after several months of payments, the employer filed a petition to terminate the compensation. This was under the act prior to 1937, and immediately the compensation payments stopped. That wage earner, that head of the family, that man who put forth his heart and soul on behalf of his employer, who was injured on behalf of his employer, was unable to obtain any further income for his family. The result was as previously pointed out by the gentleman from York, it required that that family go on relief. Under the act of 1937, the employer upon filing this petition for termination of compensation, still continued and was compelled to pay compensation until the matter was finally determined. I feel that is the proper, just and equitable procedure in such a case. Furthermore, members of the House, it has always been the practice where an impartial medical expert is appointed by the referee or by the board of review, the cost of the medical examination was borne by the employer. Under the pending bill the cost of such medical expert in the event the employee should lose his award or his case, the cost is assessed on him.

Mr. Speaker and members of the House, I come from a district which is predominately composed of and inhabited by workers. I myself during my younger days worked in a factory. I know the hazards and the dangers to which the working men in some respects are exposed and I feel that under this bill the working man is greatly exposed to danger and hazards without proper protection to himself and to his family.

The present Governor of this Commonwealth, it is true, concurred in the Romig Decision, the destructive effect of which we know was overruled by the Supreme Court.

The gentleman from Jefferson, Mr. Wilson, refers to the opinion written by Justice Maxey and indicates that that opinion was concurred in by the other members of the Supreme Court. I do not have to tell you what the record of Justice Maxey is when it comes to matters of this sort.

The Republican party places itself in the position of an Indian-giver, it increases to some extent disability payments from sixty-five to sixty-six and two thirds percent, but on the other hand it takes away the beneficial effects under the 1937 act. For example, on page twenty-two of this bill, if you will read it, you will see the changes made in the 1937 law. Under the 1937 law an amputation between the wrist and the knuckle is equivalent to the loss of the hand, but under this act that is attempted to be changed so that the amputation must be between the elbow and the wrist before it can be called the loss of a hand. Further, under the 1937 law an amputation between the toes and the ankle is equivalent to the loss of a foot. This bill eliminates the toes entirely, and provides that an amputation between the knee and the ankle is considered as the equivalent of the loss of a foot. In other words, the loss of the toes is eliminated entirely and no compensation is paid. At the present time under the act of 1937 amputation above the wrist is equivalent to the loss of an arm. Under this bill it provides that an amputation at or above the elbow should be the equivalent of the loss of an arm.

Members of the House, I believe compensation should be reasonable and adequate. I think it should not be a mere hand-out to those men and women who are providers for their families, men who work in the mill, in the factory or on the farm, who go out and earn a living for their families, men who give their life, their health for their employers, they certainly should be protected adequately and reasonably by their employers. This bill certainly reduces the payments to such men and women who are injured in the course of their employment and for and on behalf of their employer's interests, certainly this bill does not properly and adequately protect them.

I sincerely hope that the members in the majority will consider these facts because when you leave this House you will certainly be confronted by these people, your constituents who helped to elect you, and I can assure you they will not be satisfied with the passage of this kind of legislation.

Mr. CHRISTLER. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, when I came down to Harrisburg to help inaugurate Governor James, I heard a number of miners on the street corner singing the following song:

"My sweetheart's a mule in the mine
On welfare I sit and tobacco I spit
But my sweetheart's a mule in the mine."

Gentlemen, those miners voted for Governor James in the hope of being sent back to work. I was elected on the same ticket as Governor James and while these speeches were being made, I thought of those miners, and it has given me renewed determination to vote for this act because it will probably start up some of the mines. I haven't heard any of the opposition argue this point at all, that the adoption of this act will have a tendency to start up the mines, and after all, that is what we want to do, restore jobs to the people, jobs in industry. I happen to represent what once was a very large coal company in the western part of Pennsylvania. Three of their mines in West Virginia are working for the one reason, and the principal reason, that their workmen's compensation laws are less drastic. While I was back home I asked the operator what was the principal thing that could be done for the coal industry and he said, "We ought to have a new compensation act". So in the interest of these singing miners who wish an opportunity to go back to work and get off the welfare, I am going to vote for this bill.

REASON FOR VOTE

Mr. Gates filed the following reason for his vote on House Bills Nos. 1030, 1031, 1302, 1401:

I am voting "no" on House Bills Nos. 1030, 1031, 1032, for the following reason:

I voted to have a public hearing on these bills because they are the most important measures affecting the men and women of my state who earn their living by the sweat of their brow and indirectly affect the children of the workers—the privilege of a public hearing was voted down with the statement that when the bills passed the House the Senate would then grant a public hearing. If Senators should have these measures discussed pro and con by both Industry and Labor I personally think we should have had the same opportunity so we could have voted with the greatest degree of intelligence.

STATEMENT BY MR. ANDREWS

Mr. ANDREWS asked and obtained unanimous consent to make the following statement.

Mr. Speaker and members of the House, I recognize a monumental achievement even though I may not be in thorough accord with the plan of the architect.

The drafting of these compensation laws, the bills upon which the House has passed, is a monumental achievement in draftsmanship. The address made tonight by my neighbor, the gentleman from Jefferson, was one of the soundest and one of the best parliamentary deliverances that I have heard upon this floor in twenty years. While the gentleman from Jefferson did not convince me concerning the position he took, I do want to say that I have never at any time doubted his sincerity. I realize the fact that for thirty years he has been working year by year towards this point where this House would pass a bill defining and outlining the compensation laws drafted by him.

The SPEAKER. On behalf of the gentleman from Jefferson the Chair thanks the gentleman from Cambria for his very gracious statement.

BILLS ON THIRD READING

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 1031, entitled:

An Act to repeal the act, approved the second day of July, one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven (P. L. 2714) entitled "A supplement to the act, approved the second day of June, one thousand nine hundred fifteen (Pamphlet Laws, seven hundred thirty-six), entitled, as amended 'An act defining the liability of an employer to pay damages for injuries received by an employe in the course of employment; establishing a system and schedule of compensation; providing procedure for the determination of liability and compensation thereunder; and prescribing penalties,' as amended and re-enacted, providing for the inclusion of occupational diseases within the scope thereof, and providing definitions, provisions, and procedure related to such diseases; and making an appropriation."

And said bill having been read at length the third time considered and agreed to.

And said bill having been read at length the third time considered and agreed to.

The majority required by the Constintution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative, and the amendments were concurred in.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the Senate accordingly.

SENATE INSISTS ON AMENDMENTS NON-CONCURRED IN BY HOUSE.

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, informed that the Senate has insisted upon its amendments, nonconcurred in by the House of Representatives, to House Bill No. 318, entitled:

An Act to reenact and amend the title and the act, approved the twenty-second day of June, one thousand nine hundred thirty-five (Pamphlet Laws, four hundred fourteen), entitled "An act to provide revenue for State purposes; imposing taxes upon certain classes of personal property; providing for the assessment, collection, and lien of the same, and the distribution of the proceeds thereof; imposing duties on executors, administrators, registers of wills, recorders of deeds, prothonotaries, and court clerks, and on persons, copartnerships, associations, banks, national banks, trust companies, and other corporations receiving deposits of money, and on certain corporations and limited partnerships; conferring powers and imposing duties on certain State officers and departments; imposing penalties; and making an appropriation," as previously reenacted and amended by eliminating ground rents from list of taxable personal property, defining, clarifying and limiting certain exemptions, exempting from the taxes imposed by the said act property held by executors and administrators of the estates of nonresident decedents, property held by trustees for certain resident and nonresident religious, charitable or educational organizations and property held for nonresidents and foreign corporations under certain circumstances exempting loans issued by first class or non profit corporations from the tax imposed by section seventeen of said act and continuing the State personal property tax and the emergency rate of tax on scrip bonds, certificates and evidences of indebtedness assumed or on which interest is paid by corporations for a further limited period of time.

Mr. WOODSIDE. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House recede from its non-concurrence in the amendments made and insisted upon by the Senate, and concur in the amendments made by the Senate.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. HERBERT B. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from York will state his parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. HERBERT B. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, the motion made by the gentleman from Dauphin provides for two actions on the part of this House. First, to recede from the amendments not concurred in, and second, to concur in the amendments inserted by the Senate. I rise to inquire whether the proper procedure would not be up to divide it into two motions.

The SPEAKER. The usual procedure is for the action to be put into one motion, because it requires a roll call. If the gentleman from York feels that the question should be divided, the question will be divided.

Mr. HERBERT B. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, I do not insist on a division of the question, I merely rise to inquire whether the question not being divided, would meet the Constitutional requirement and the Rules of the House in the passage of legislation. And the further question of whether or not some individuals might not take advantage of the fact that the proper procedure was not followed in the enactment of this particular type of legislation.

The SPEAKER. The Chair feels that there is no question as to constitutionality, but if the gentleman from York desires to have the question divided, the Chair will divide the question. The motion of the gentleman from Dauphin, Mr. Woodside, would then be that the House recede from its non-concurrence in the amendments inserted by the Senate.

Mr. WOODSIDE. Mr. Speaker, I suggest that the question be divided. I move that this House recede from its non-concurrence in the amendments made by the Senate to House Bill No. 318, Printer's 543.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. HERBERT B. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a further parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. HERBERT B. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, does the motion not require a seconder and must not the gentleman it, state that they voted with the majority.

The SPEAKER. For the information of the gentleman from York, this is not a motion to reconsider a vote. The who made the motion and the gentleman who seconded measure was returned to the Senate for further action, the Senate returned the measure to the House and the House is now taking the next step. The House may either insist upon its position in not concurring or it may recede. However, since the gentleman from York has raised the question, the Chair will ask that the motion be seconded. While the Chair does not believe that to be necessary, the Chair desires to give the gentleman from York every possible consideration.

Mr. HERBERT B. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, I am not asking for any consideration from the Chair. I am merely raising these points because I feel if this legislation is enacted it should not be susceptible to any question as to the procedure followed in the enactment of it.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is satisfied from the viewpoint of proper parliamentary procedure, and would state further that no one can go behind the record as far as that is concerned.

Mr. HERBERT B. COHEN. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, we are now asked to recede from the position the House took last night relative to our nonconcurrence in the amendments presented by the Senate. Frankly, I see no reason why the House should so recede.

Since last night I have had an opportunity to read at length the dissenting opinion of Justice Maxey, as well as the opinion of the majority of the Supreme Court. I believe that in this particular instance Justice Maxey possibly was right. I feel sure he is more correct in this instance than he was in his decision on the Workmen's Compensation Act, and if the majority of the House felt that the Justice was correct in his opinion on the Workmen's Compensation Law, surely you would not leave such an eminent jurist high and dry in his opinion on the particular situation now under discussion by the House.

It will be argued to you that it does not make any difference what this body does because the Personal Property Tax Act is by itself an invitation for the flight of capital from the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. It will be maintained and possibly has been so maintained, since the display of initiative on the part of the majority last night, that the particular reasons for that vote are not tenable and it will be represented that by this particular enactment the inclusion in the act of the amendments inserted by this House nothing is going to be attained. I say to you gentlemen that something definite may be attained by seeing to it that the particular amendments referred to are maintained in our act. If we enact the four mills personal property tax in the form that is being recommended to us by the Senate, ipso facto, as soon as the act is signed by the Governor, every trust that has ever been established in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania with a trustee residing outside the Commonwealth will be relieved from the payment of the four mills personal property tax to the State and the four mills personal property tax to the county.

It will be stated to you that even if we do put this amendment into the act, that trusts will be established outside of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Trusts can be established outside of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania with or without this amendment, but if we insist that the amendment be included, those estates that are now established with a trustee outside the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania will be brought under the provisions of this act. Under the present act, either with or without the amendment, capital can fly out of the state of Pennsylvania, but if you enact this act without the amendment you are saying to the millions and millions of dollars of taxable personal property already established by trusteeship, that is a trustee outside of the confines of the Commonwealth, you are saying to them, "Gentlemen, you don't have to pay any personal property tax in the State of Pennsylvania".

It will be argued that the cestui qui trustents, those who receive the benefit of the trust, might be susceptible to taxation under this act. I say to the membership of the House that that is apparently an undecided legal situation and until it has been determined not only by our State Supreme Court but by the Supreme Court of the United States, the cestuis qui trustents are not going to pay the tax. I realize the situation with which the majority is confronted, but I say the better procedure would be that we save for Pennsylvania the taxable personal property that is already established rather than see capital go to another state as a result of the passage of this act either with or without the amendment. This is a very technical situation. It is a situation that requires the advice of experts. I concede that, but I say as a result of my study and as a result of the advice of those experts with whom I have consulted, it is better for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to keep what it has than it is to leave the amendment out of the act and lose what it has. If you do that, the Dorrance estate and every other estate now established, with one single trustee out of the confines of the Commonwealth, every bit of taxable personal property is lost to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and your budget is out of balance. This act as it is presently drawn, and as it is presently before the House, coming from the Senate, exempts millions of dollars of taxable personal property. You are saying to those men, "You don't have to pay the tax." You are still saying by your vote that the small holder of a mortgage, the small holder of a few stocks and bonds of foreign corporations, you are saying to the poor individual widow or orphan who is the recipient of some small personal property income, "You pay the tax," but to the estate of Mr. Dorrance and to thousands of other established estates throughout the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, you are saying "You do not have to pay the tax." I cannot conceive how this House could be satisfied to take that position.

Mr. WOODSIDE. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, the gentleman from York has suggested that as soon as this bill is signed, certain people will be relieved from taxation who are now subject to it. The fact is that this law will be the same as the law which is now on the statute books, and has been on the statute books for the past two years, if the motion which I have made along with the following one is agreed by this House. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, it seems to me that the argument of the gentleman from York is not sound.

Let me make this observation. He talks about driving capital out of the state. If we vote down this motion, it will drive capital out of the State and drive business out of the State because under the law as it is now written, and under the law as it would be with this amendment you could go into another state and establish there an active trusteeship, and be relieved from taxation. If this amendment were put in the only effect it would have would be to cause people who are the trustees, who are residents of Pennsylvania along with the trustees who are residents outside of the State, to resign and to make all of the trusteeships outside of the State. That would not bring any additional business to Pennsylvania.

Relative to the budget. Estimates have been made by the Department of Revenue and they claim this will not in any way interfere with the estimates that have been made. For this reason, ladies and gentlemen of the House, I ask you to vote "aye" on my motion.

Mr. HERBERT B. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Dauphin, Mr. Woodside.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Dauphin permit himself to be interrogated.

Mr. WOODSIDE. I will, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. HERBERT B. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to inquire of the gentleman from Dauphin whether under the act as now interpreted by the Supreme Court's decision at No. 444 January term 1938, the Dorrance Estate is taxable in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Mr. WOODSIDE. Mr. Speaker, the Dorrance Estate is not taxable and if this amendment were put in the bill the Dorrance Estate would still not be taxable, because the trustees living in Pennsylvania would resign and leave the trusteeship in New Jersey, and they would not be taxable under the amendment.

Mr. HERBERT B. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, if this act is passed upsetting the decision of the Supreme Court and nothing further is done about the Dorrance Estate trustees, would the Dorrance Estate then be subject to a personal property tax in the state of Pennsylvania.

Mr. WOODSIDE. Mr. Speaker, that is a very interesting assumption because it probably would not occur, but even if it did there would still be plenty of argument as to whether or not the Dorrance Estate would be taxable in Pennsylvania.

Mr. HERBERT B. COHEN. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, the gentleman from Dauphin does not apparently desire to answer my assumption. The question I asked the gentleman was whether or not if we passed the act with the amendment inserted, would the Dorrance Estate be taxable. The Dorrance Estate would be taxable. Now, the assumption is and the assumption that the gentleman from Dauphin wants us to subscribe to, is that the Dorrance Estate trustees would move from the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. I do not know that they will, you don't know that they will, the gentleman from Dauphin does not know that they will. But I know this, that if you do not make an attempt to get the Dorrance Estate by insisting that the House amendments be in the bill, you are surely not going to get one cent of taxes from that estate.

Secondly, there might be thousands of estates established now that have a definite corporate trustee in Pennsylvania and other trustees not in the Commonwealth. Those estates could not escape taxation if we insert the House amendments, but if we do not insert those amendments we are letting them go scot free. We are sitting idly by here, we are taking a fatalistic position, and saying in a fatalistic manner, the Dorrance Estate licked us, not the Supreme Court, we are not going to do anything to see that the three trustees pay three-fourths of the taxes. That same thing is true of every established trust in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and if we do not do anything not only will we lose the tax from the Dorrance Estate but from thousands of other established estates. We are going to lose the tax of every individual Pennsylvanian that has enough money to consult expert tax counsel and establish a trustee in Delaware or Maryland. Already the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is being combed by corporation lawyers, representing trustees in Delaware asking for the establishment of trusts to conform with the opinion in the Dorrance Estate.

I say to the membership of this House, you must take affirmative action, and to allow the amendments of the Senate to prevail means that we are by our vote saying to the holders of a sizable amount of personal property, we are not even going to lift a finger to get that taxable money, but we are passing an act that will take from the small taxpayers. Let me tell you men I have been through this before. I know that the four mill personal property tax is one of the most difficult taxes to handle. I know that it is a tax that will have a great amount of repercussion when you go home. I know that you will be continuously spoken to by the small taxpayer and the only explanation you are going to be able to give to that small taxpayer is to say, "Well, we might have taxed you but we left the Dorrance Estate go free."

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. Woodside and Mr. Winner and were as follows:

BILL ON THIRD READING

Mr. WOODSIDE asked and obtained unanimous consent to call up out of order House Bill No. 1076, Printers No. 463, on page 32 of today's calendar, which was passed over.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on final passage of House Bill No. 1076, entitled:

An Act to amend the act approved the first day of June, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-seven, (P. L. 1168), entitled "An act to protect the right of employes to organize and bargain collectively; creating the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board; conferring powers and imposing duties upon the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, officers of the State government, and courts; providing for the right of employes to organize and bargain collectively; declaring certain labor practices by employers to be unfair; further providing that representatives of a majority of the employes be the exclusive representatives of all the employes; authorizing the board to conduct hearings and elections, and certify as to representatives of employes for purposes of collective bargaining; empowering the board to prevent any person from engaging in any unfair labor practice, and providing a procedure for such cases, including the issuance of a complaint, the conducting of a hearing, and the making of an order; empowering the board to petition a court of common pleas for the enforcement of its order, and providing a procedure for such cases; providing for the review of an order of the board by a court of common pleas on petition of any person aggrieved by such order, and establishing a procedure for such cases; providing for an appeal from the common pleas court to the Supreme Court, providing the board with investigatory powers, including the power to issue subpoenas and the compelling of obedience to them through application to the proper court; providing for service of papers and process of th board; prescribing certain penalties," broadening the definition of "labor dispute;" further defining the rights of employes; further defining and limiting unfair labor practices; making further provision for designation and selection of representatives for the purposes of collective bargaining; changing the practice before the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board and limiting its powers in certain cases; and requiring investigations of labor disputes and issuance of subpoenas on the application of either party to a controversy.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, Job said, "Would that my enemy should write a book." If Job were around here tonight he would say, "Would that my enemy enact House Bill No. 1076 in its present form." Heaven forbid, Mr. Speaker, that at this time of the night I should spend any precious time trying to persuade the Republican party not to make a mistake.

Mr. MORAN. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, I am going to be very brief in this. I want to direct the attention of the members of the House to the fact that this is a very bad bill. It absolutely will bring back company unions if it is enacted, and it is against organized labor. I ask the members of the House to vote this bill down.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Session 1939. 133d of the General Assembly.

Vol. 23 HARRISBURG, PA., FRIDAY, MAY 5, 1939. No. 49.

SENATE

FRIDAY, May 5, 1939

The Senate met at 10:30 o'clock, a. m., E. S. T.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor Samuel S. Lewis) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. BURLEIGH A. PETERS, offered the following prayer:

Wrestling on with the problems of legislation which confront us, Our Father, we have entered into another day by Thy sustaining grace. We could not have laid down and slept and arisen except for Thy watchfulness and protecting care over us for Thou dost neither slumber nor sleep.

But here we are assembled with much work to do and the health and strength and will to do it. For these blessings we are deeply and profoundly grateful.

May the fabric we weave this day on the loom of conscientious endeavor be of that quality which will stand Thy scrutiny not only today but for all time. If it be made of truth, it must endure.

May it be the fabric which expresses through its durability and beauty the light of truth shining in the darkness of error and the light of righteousness in the darkness of sin. Yea, Lord, may it be definitely the light of life shining in the darkness of death, for are we not Thy children even though we be Senators and are we not accountable unto Thee for all our stewardship of life even though we are chosen to these high offices? As good stewards of Thine, we must disseminate Thy truth.

So now, in the humble discharge of the several duties which devolve upon our shoulders, we leave us in Thy care, as indeed we always are, but especially do we pray for Thy presence deep within our very spirits as we labor together for the well-being of all the people of our great Commonwealth. We pray in the name of the Almighty God of Hosts. Amen.

COMMUNICATIONS FROM THE DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC ASSISTANCE

The PRESIDENT. The Clerk will read the following communication which was addressed to the Secretary of the Senate:

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA
DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC ASSISTANCE

Harrisburg, May 4, 1939.

The Honorable George F. Holmes
Secretary
Senate of Pennsylvania
Commonwealth of Pennsylvania
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania

Dear Mr. Holmes:

In accordance with Senate Resolution Number 19, adopted March 7, 1939, I am submitting herewith a report on the number of aliens receiving public assistance in Pennsylvania and the total amount paid to aliens for each county and for each of the four types of public assistance administered by the Department of Public Assistance.

Since citizenship has not been a requirement for assistance eligibility, it was necessary to obtain the required information from case records and by field investigation. Moreover, since there is a continuous turnover in the case load, it would have been very difficult and costly administratively, to obtain the information retroactively for each of the months of January and February, as requested in the Resolution. To have done so would have necessitated investigating at considerable cost many cases which are no longer receiving assistance.

Accordingly, the count was made as of a given date (March 25, 1939) and the weekly grants, for general assistance, were translated to a monthly basis, in order to make them comparable with the monthly grants reported for the other types of assistance.

Sincerely yours,
HOWARD L. RUSSELL, Secretary

The PRESIDENT. The letter will be spread upon the Journal and a copy of the Report will be placed on the desk of each Senator.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The Senator from Westmoreland, Mr. Dent, will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I have here a resolution from the Workmen's Sick and Death Benefit Fund of the U. S. of A., which I should like to have entered upon the record.

The PRESIDENT. It will be so recorded.

RESOLUTION

The undersigned organization in session assembled adopted the following resolution:

Whereas, It has been carefully noted that the Department of Public Assistance of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania has made it necessary for the recipient of assistance to bind and oblige themselves by virtue of execution of Bond to the extent of $5,000 and

Whereas, The aforesaid bond is binding in full force and virtue to each husband and wife, heirs, executors, etc., and

Whereas, The obligator, if in default of satisfactory settlement within thirty days of all monies granted under the State Laws of support in Pennsylvania, must authorize judgment to be entered immediately by the Prothonotary and must further agree to the selling of real estate on writ of Fieri Facias (sheriff sale). and

Whereas, The Governor of Pennsylvania in his inaugural address stated "Relief must be humanized—that it be prompt and adequate and fully administered," and

Whereas, We feel that the above bond emasculates the initiative of American citizenship; that it demoralize Pennsylvania residents and has tendencies of making perfect paupers of decent law abiding property owner or heirs thereof, now

Therefore, Be it resolved that this organization go on record in recommending the withdrawal of the aforesaid executive order issued April 1, 1939 and recommend that it remain without force and virtue as in prior years, and

Be It Further Resolved, That this resolution be posted on the Bulletin Boards and transmit copies thereof to Honorable Governor James, Senator Dent and Assemblymen Maddin and Denman and furnish additional copies for the public press.
